FRIDAY MORNING, OCT. 28, 1887

LEE AND DAVIS.

The South is honoring both the living and the dead. While Georgians and people of other States assemble at Macon in immense numbers to do honor to that pure, upright very able, eminent citizen, JEFFERSON Davis, of Mississippi, who was chosen by the people to be the Chief Executive of the young and puissant Southern Confederacy which they sought to establish by their own strong arms, the people of Virginia, and visitors from other States, are doing honor to the memory of Rob-ERT EDWARD LRE, the knightliest soldier of all the world. There is no treason or stratagem in these things, It is a brave, great people showing their love and admiration for devotion to principle and to the highest types of Christian manhood. With the utmost deliberation we have again and again asserted that the noblest qualities of manhood in highest development were most happily united in Lee. Where else but in Shakespeare, the greatest master of expression this world has seen, can you find fitting words for the portrayal of such a grand and peerless character? The great poet thus described Lee in two passages:

"He sits 'mongst men, like a descended god. He hath a kind of honor sets him off. More than a mortal seeming."

'This was the noblest Roman of them all His life was gentle; and the elements So mixed in him, that nature might stand

And say to all the world, This was a MAN.

Lee was chivalrous, courageous, noble, generous, great. He was more: he was gentle, sweet, just, lovable, full of human sympathy and human attachments. He loved truth and duty as but few men ever loved those cardinal virtues. He loved his wife, his children, his friends, his country, as only the tender-hearted and good ever love them. With all of his high genius for war he was as gentle as a lamb and open to every appeal from the lowly as well as from the high. He lacked that sternness of character that was sometimes necessary in a great leader in a great crisis. There was too much of gold and not enough of iron in his character for a perfect leader in a time of ut- whether you get it or not." most peril. He had all the other high qualities, and no man was ever loved more by troops that the ragged and often bare foot soldiers of the Army of Northern Virginia loved Lee. There was nothing that he could ask them to do that they would not try to do. His appeal to them was as the appeal of the honored father to the devoted son. In Europe he is justly regarded as the greatest soldier ever born on the American continent. The South

mand and in action. Long's fine life of the great Confederate soldier will do much in letting the world see the true nobility and grandeur and beauty of Lee's superlative character.

Virginia has been indeed the mother of States and Statesmen. No American State ever produced anything like the number of great men that she has produced. The roll of her men is long and illustrious. We can name a half hundred and still leave the list incomplete. A Commonwealth that can name as its sons Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Henry, John Randolph, Henry Clay, and many other men of celebrity and high abilities in statesmanship and oratory may well be proud of her offspring. A State that can point among her children to such soldiers as Washington, "Light-Horse Harry," (Gen. Lee) father of the great Confederate, to Robert E. Lee, Jackson, Jo Johnston, Thomas, Jeb Stuart, Early, and A. P. Hill may well claim that she stands foremost. We honor Virginia for what she has been and what she has done. When her living sons gather in her beautiful and delightful city to rear a monument in memory of the greatest American soldier and the most exalted type of manhood they do well, and all manly men in the North will say well done.

Southern Confederacy, now nearly eighty years old, still lives, feeble and broken in health, but with his mental faculties preserved in full vigor; with the same high convictions of duty; with the same undying attachment to liberty and to a constitutional government; with unfaltering love and gratitude to his countrymen; with brimming ardor for the right and an unconcealed dislike for the wrong; with the virtues that sur. pass all stoicism; with a soul without taint and a character without stain, a lover of truth and honor and manliness and of his own Southern people; with the faith of a believer in the Son of God, the Saviour and Redeemer of sinners; with high intellectual faculties disciplined by study and broadened by age, Jefferson Davis is this day the highest expression of Christian manhood and statesmanship walks the American continent. Southern people but honor themselves in honoring him. They would deserve the censure of all men if they failed to pay just homage to the vicarious sufferer of the whole South. With this noble Southron we rejoice to believe old age brings much of solacement and joy. There is "mu-

When Southern people assemble to receive such a man-so typical, so representative -- they are discharging a duty and are ennobling themselves. Long live Jefferson Davis!

Both Gen. Lee and Mr. Davis were members of the same Christian communion-the Protestont Episcopal Church.

REFORM IN RHODE ISLAND.

Tariff reform has even struck manufacturing Rhode Island. So great is the change of sentiment in that remote corner of the country in regard to the robber Tariff that Judge Charles S. Bradley, the Democratic candidate for Congress, is running on the Tariff reform platform and making speeches against the Republican Barbed Wire Fence arrangement. He makes the Tariff the issue in the contest. In a recent speech he said:

"Is it not for the interests of a manufac-turing community like Rhode Island to have raw materials introduced free of duty? Can anybody doubt about that it would be the best plan for Rhode Island to have these duties removed? Of course it is. It so happens that in the two adjoins ing districts of Massachusetts, old Republican districts, which have the same diversity of occupation that we have-in these districts, both of them, Democrats were sent to the Fiftieth Congress. If the two Democrats had been there in the Fortyninth Congress, and we had had two Democrats from Rhode Island there also, you would have had that relief to the manufacturing industries to-day which is so nacessary. And it may be, gentlemen, that it depends upon your vote in this election

Just as New England and th Northwest are getting sick at the stomach over the excessive doses of protective Ipecacuanna, the political quacks in the South are trying to force huge doses of the same nauseating and distressful drug into the Southern stomach. We hope Democrats will force a square fight all along the line. If taxation pronounced "robbery" by a Republican Supreme Court is moral, just, humane and wise, then the country should knows him to be as pure and good have taxation with a vengeance and and generous and kind and lovely in piles of it. If high taxation be inwhich American citizens are heirs, then give the country more high taxtion. But who can believe in such a political and economical monstrosity and heresy? Taxation takes away the life-blood of a free people. Down with high and unnecessary taxation!

BRIEF NOTES In the November number of the American Monthly there is a charming paper by that gifted son of the South, Maurice Thompson, upon "Paul Hayne and His Poetry." As soon as we can command space enough we purpose to reproduce a part. The whole paper is graceful, delicate, appreciative and sympathet ic. We are glad to see so well known a man of letters discussing with so much delicate insight and discrimination one of the greatest of Southern poets and one of the most admirable of men. The whole paper is excellent and is worth reading. Mr Thompson thinks Lanier the greatest poet born in the South. Where is Poe? Does he class him as Northern because it is alleged he was born in Boston by accident? Thackeray was born in India, but he regarded himself as purely English.

Julian Hawthorne, a writer of unique and original powers - a veri table genius, as was his great father - discusses in the American Monthly the present aspects of "Literature." He does not take a rosy view of American literature, however high his opinion of English literature. He

"Very few independently American books are written; and, when they are written, it will occasionally happen that the reader fails to regard them with much patriotic enthusiasm. On the other hand, the reader, if he be enlightened to the degree of possessing a conscience (which is perhaps a wild supposition, unless he happens to be also an American author), somewhat regretful of the merits of Tolstoi, Daudet, Rider Haggard and Stevenson, and is indignant at, while he profits by, the fact that their books are not only better reading than most of our native growth. but are also purchasable for twenty cents Congress is accordingly petitioned to put a stop to the robbery of foreign authors, prominence being given to the argument that such robbery is contrary to the dictates of abstract morality. It would possibly be more to the point if we were to ask Congress to pass a law making it incumbent on American authors to write better books, or at least to prevent foreign books from being so good.

"At yet, 'having in mind our years and necessities, my only surprise is that there are any good American books at all. The strongest and most imaginative minds among us find other things to do than to produce literature.'

Mr. Hawthorne thinks Tourgee's last novel, "Button's Inn," is the best American novel for the year.

Everything in his book is strong, picturesque and genuine; there is a touch of poetry in the treatment, which raises it above the level of the ordinary by applying these descriptions to human life and

Tourgee long ago impressed us with his own superior abilities and meanness. His "C" letters were very able and remarkable productions. His novels burlesquing the South were failures, whether viewed as literature or politics. They were lies and trave sties. If he has really written a good novel, he but confirms our judgment of him as an uncommonly

Judge Thurman, the old Roman so near the Democratic heart, and the wisest and greatest of Northern Democrats, or Northern statesmen for that matter, has been making a speech in Ohio for his party. In it he very highly eulogized Mr. Cleveland. He said among other things: "I don't believe that a more honest, prayer, truer man ever filled the Presidential chair of the United States. [Prolonged applause, and a voice, 'Hurran for Cleveland!' I say he is an honest, brave man. He is more than that; he is a man of far more ability than people who don't know him may suppose. He has that supreme faculty, the best of all faculties. which we designate by the term 'common sense.' [Applause.] If he is not a levelcommon-sense, honest man, then am no judge of men. [Applause ] Now am glad to find that every day that he lives grows in the estimation of the Ameri-can people, and my firm belief is that when his four years are at an end they will say to him, 'You have doue well when we put such and such trusts in your hands. We have tried you for four years and found you will do well, and now you may take your seat for another four years.' Great applause."]

An English country rector has lived on less than one dollar a week -some 98 cents-and has published his bill of fare and itemized expenses. Here is the list:

"Rent of cottage and garden, 9d.; rates, id.; clothing, 7d.; fuel, 6d.; oil for light, 1id.; bacon, 1; lb., 7id.; tea, 2 ox., 4id.; sugar, ib., 1id.; bread 5 lb., 5id.; butter, ib., 4d.; soap, ib., id.; cheese, 6 oz., 2id.; flour, 11 oz., 1d.: suet, ib., 1id.; six apples, id.; akim milk, 7 pints, 1id.; salt, id.; fresh meat, ib., 4id.; total, 5s."

Could a man perform full mental labor or engage in manual labor upon such diet? We remember a Greek fable in which the horse learned to live without eating, but unfortunately as soon as he acquired that happy faculty he died. Enough of plain, substantial food is essential to successful labor of any kind, if character as he was great in com- deed, as Randall thinks, the great health is to be preserved. It is very panacea for all of the political ills to | probable that Americans, as a class, eat too much.

> It is said the Supreme Court Judges revised the voting lists and struck off over 600 names of fraudulent voters. That is no great number for a city of 450,000 people. We suppose New York, Philadelphia or Chicago would furnish many thousands every year if the polls could be purged. The Baltimore American, a rampant Republican Protection organ, thinks if the purgation could have continued that 2,264 would have been stricken off. If this is so, it is bad, very bad. Are all these true Democrats? Are there no illegal Republican and Bolting voters? A pure ballot is what is needed. But can it be obtained now? It is far purer in the South than in some parts of the North.

> The new and popular so called 'Trust" system in vogue in the North, appears to be nothing more nor less than an annex of the Tariff, or a Republican assistant. It is system that is dangerous, ruinous, unrepublican and undemocratic, for it will aid in crushing the people he New York Times says :

"The protectionist orators who are making speeches in this State should not forget to say something about the new-fungled monopolies called Trusts which are swallowing so many industries. The subject is one intimately related to that of protection by high duties, and it cannot have escaped heir attention. Possibly some of them are directly interested in Trusts, either as managers or as shareholders."

Experiments in growing tobacco in England have been made. In a few weeks 600 pounds will be ready for sale. It is reported to be of good quality.

CURRENT COMMENT.

--- As the scattered legions of the late Confederacy gather at Macor, and pass in improvised columns before the living representative of a heroic cause, what painter is there who should not aspire to put the scene upon a glowing canvas? Honor to Davis! No man, in the tide of time, ever stood more grand ly-more imperially for Principle. No victor's wreath encircles the brow of Jefferson Davis. So hath it been ordered by the Supreme Ruler of men and nations. Not the less will history enroll his name high on the lists of statesmen and patriots. Nor less true is it that the period will come when a living Union will unite with an extinct Confederacy in honoring his name. This will be when time shall have obliterated the traces of passion and made clear to all American eyes the inherent glory genuine manhood. - Columbia (S. C.) Register, Dem.

--- Senator Allison has got as far as Chicago on his way to take part in the Republican campaign in this State. He will be welcome as a mod erate and sincere man, not given to platitudes and apt to talk intelligibly on public questions. If he talks, when he gets here, in the manner in which he spoke to a reporter in Chtcago yesterday he will introduce a pleasing variety into the canvass. Senator Evarts pooh-poohs the surplus. Senator Hiscock regards it with horror, but is silent as to "the how" of reduction. Ex-Senator Miller is inclined to reduce the revenue by increasing taxes to the prohibitory point. Mr. Allison thinks the tariff will be the all-absorbing topic in the next Congress, "to get rid of the enormous surplus revenue from taxes." He looks forward to "some measure that would meet the public demand for cheaper goods and a lit-tle less revenue." The Republican campaign show cannot be said to be monotonous. Here are four Senators with four pronounced "specialties." -N. Y. Times, Ind. Rep.

OUR STATE CONTEMPORARIES.

Suppose that Miss Abbott be defended upon the plea that she regarded Mr. Chandler as unnecessarily severe upon her profession, and that because she entertained such an opinion she was justifiable in her course, and the plea is sustained at the bar of public opinion; who, then, may not rise in the congregation, and, challenging the minister, dispute the truth of his declaraions? Such conduct cannot be permitted, t is without apology or excuse. - Wades-

A few days ago we stated that "it is a self-evident fact the success of the Radical party in North Carolina means mixed chools for the whites and blacks." The Raieigh Signal takes it up like a chick would a June bug and denies the assertion, but produces no proof whatever to substantiate what it says, only that Horace Greeley, a Massachusetts Yankee, favored mixed schools. We care very little for what Horace Greeley did or favored, as it effected North Carolina neither one way or

The Sunday MORNING STAR (Wilmington) comes to us this week with unusual brightness. We specially note the editorials, "The Stage—Ancient and Modern,"
"Patrick Henry—A Judgment Reversed."
These editorials would do well to grace modern history. From them an important lesson may be learned. In the main we endorse all the STAR says in reference to theatres, but we have often thought that many preachers go far beyond their legitimate calling to denounce in very bitterness, things their conscience cannot approve, thereby often doing more harm to the holy cause they represent, than they do good. But in no case whatever do we approve and endorse the act of any one, howprove and endorse the act of any one, however much they may consider themselves misrepresented, who may seek the church to reply to the minister, and thereby create a scene, but a bitter and uncharitable denunciation of vice can in no event cause a reformation. Better to hold up Christ and Him Crucified, than to stigmatize his murderers. Miss Abbott was wrong, undoubtedly wrong. Mr. Candler may have been right.—Hillsboro Recorder.

Green & Co., in their cotton circular, say Cotton options have shown animation and numerous fluctuations, many of them sharp and unexpected, yet the ruling feature of the situation was its absorbing capacity and its tendency to stand up well against the pressure. A QUESTION ABOUT Brown's Iron Bitters ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousand of times, "How oan Brown's Iron Bitters oure everything?" Well, it doesn't, But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IROS Physicians recognize Iron as the best restorative areas theory to the profession and inquiry of any Physicians recognize from as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are mose preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicina. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice, it is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS the tooth, carrie hasdache, or produce constitution—all other irren medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures indigention, Billousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malarin, Chills and Fevers, Tired Recling, General Debility, Pain in the Side, Buck or Limbs, Headache and Neural-gia—for all these aliments Iron is prescribed daily. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not not be taken by meaning the first symptom of benedit is represent maken by mea the first symptom of benedit is represent manager. The muscles then become firmer, the direction improvas, the bowsis are active. In seems the effect is maily more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the checks; nervoumness disappears; functional desugrements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustemance is supplied for the child. Hemessher Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY from medicine that is not in-parious. Physicians and Druggiets recommend it. The Genuine has Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. TAKE NO OTHER.
