The Democrats of the North and South embodied present a far greater number of

OREGON, VERMONT, AND LOUISIANA

The subjoined article appeared in the New York Journal on Monday, the 11th of December, 1876. It was written by a Republican. The article refers to the election of the Governors of Vermont and Louisiana. It says that the Republican party in these States is in a minority, and that the Democrats are in a majority. The article also discusses the question of Reconstruction in Louisiana.

The enforcement, or attempted enforcement of this law, will cause a collision unless Grant orders Ruffin to protect Chamberlain. If Gov. Hampton were to be arrested we doubt if even the interference of the U. S. soldiers would be able to prevent his being arrested. A telegram to Mr. W. M. H. Bernard says that Chamberlain is evidently alarmed at the attitude with which the people of the State are assuming authority. Officials throughout the State are refusing to accept commissions signed by him, and the superintendent of the police in the city refused to pardon granted by Chamberlain. The determination of the Legislature to pay to Chamberlain the money which he claims to be due for his services, will probably be a great blow to the people of the State.

It then quotes Grant's tepid and blundering assertion that the "Gov. Hayes represents a party carried in the States that furnished most of the suppression of the rebellion, and Governor Tilden carried all but three of those who sought to recede from the duties of the State." The figures are taken from the report of the provost marshal general of the United States army, made at the close of the war:

By way of refutation the Courier-Journal appeals to statistics, and considers how many troops were furnished by nine States for the Union army, and that Grant commanded, and that voted for Samuel J. Tilden.

State	Number of men furnished
Connecticut	56,755
New York	446,993
New Jersey	70,815
Delaware	21,347
Maryland	42,933
West Virginia	82,008
Indiana	194,383
Missouri	108,778
Kentucky	76,279
Total	1,046,701

According to the report of the provost marshal general the total number of men furnished in response to the call of President Lincoln was 1,124,000. It is seen, therefore, that the States carried by Tilden among those which furnished means for the suppression of the rebellion, supplied about two-fifths of the number of the Union States carried by Hayes.

It is not stated in the report of the provost marshal general that the States which furnished means for the suppression of the rebellion, supplied about two-fifths of the number of the Union States carried by Hayes.

From Florida we have interesting news, which promises to bring the Democratic cause in Florida into the Legislature. A bill has been introduced in the Florida Legislature, which provides for the election of the Governor and the Legislature of the State of Florida. The bill also provides for the election of the members of the Florida Legislature.

The New York Herald of Monday contains a very important letter from General Francis C. Barlow, of New York. The Herald says of him and his mission: "Barlow is a gentleman of integrity and intelligence, a Republican in politics, a citizen who has been honored with important public trust, and of the highest standing in the community. He is a man of high character, and has been a member of the State Board of Education, and was present throughout its proceedings. troops in Washington. In view of the readiness of President Grant to use his troops in building States, as in the case of Louisiana in 1873, 1875 and 1876, and in the memorable case of South Carolina in the months of October, November and December, 1876, it is highly entertaining to watch the "man on horseback" as he quietly gathers his troops at Washington to "build the United States House of Representatives." He has now either in Washington or on the way two thousand infantry, artillery and marines, and says he will have 70,000 if he finds it necessary, but for what purpose remains to be seen. He means to conquer a peace, and carry out the grand Napoleon idea, he will take possession of the "Confederate House" filled with rebels and vile "copperheads." All this may read like badinage or romance, but unfortunately there is but too much truth in it. The fact is, we are in great danger of being "Mexicanized," and it is not improbable that in some month to come the New York Tribune, that is upholding Grant in all he does, may be able to announce in bold-headed type as descriptive of the situation, what it said the other day of the state of affairs in Mexico: "The army has decided the fate of the government and overthrown the Constitution."

The Ohio Democrats in Congress have resolved to have a grand mass convention in Cincinnati and Columbus on the 8th of January. The call will be issued in a few days. The New York Herald says that the Democrats will have a grand public gathering in the New York City Hall on the 15th of January. The Herald also says that the Democrats will have a grand public gathering in the New York City Hall on the 15th of January.

The Approaching Inauguration - The military preparations for the inauguration of President Hayes on Monday, January 20, 1877, are in progress. The Raleigh Observer of the 19th says: "Arrangements were concluded yesterday evening, with 'mice, boys' of the National to furnish the Wilmington Light Infantry with their uniforms when they come to the inauguration." One of the halls has been secured for their use. Bring your blankets along boys, it is colder here than in the City by the Sea, and everybody that can leave home, come to the inauguration in North Carolina.

THE AFFAIRS OF FENDER. We have received a communication from the above, which is too long for the necessarily crowded condition of our columns. We, however, give the main points. There is general satisfaction expressed by all parties at the result of the protracted agony in the House of Representatives on the enquiry as to whether our Representative Lloyd, who beat our Democratic candidate Ward, thirty-four votes, shall represent Fender, or whether we shall have a representative from New Hanover. If under any protest the matter should again be brought upon the House, probably ninety-five per cent. of the twenty-five hundred voters of Fender are ready to sign a petition to the Legislature asking that Lloyd may remain in the seat, and that Fender may be permitted to manage her own affairs, as other counties are allowed to do. Lloyd was legally and constitutionally elected, and the people of the new county are almost unanimously in favor of his retention in the seat.

THE CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL has gone into the business of "muzzling" Southern men, by publishing a scurrilous article, in which it accuses the "Confederate" and "traitor" members of the Cincinnati Commercial of being "traitors" and "traitors". The Cincinnati Commercial is a paper which is published in Cincinnati, Ohio. It is a paper which is published in Cincinnati, Ohio.
