COTTON.

New York Commercial Chronicle. NEW YORK, Sept. 1 .- The movement of the crop, as indicated by our telegrams from the South tonight, is given below. For the first day of Sept., 1882, the receipts have reached 5,055 bales, against 12,352 hales last week, 6,356 bales the previous week, and 4,811 bales three weeks since; making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1882, 5,055 bales, against 15,956 bales for the same period of 1881, showing a decrease since September 1, 1882, of 10,001 bales. The exports for the week ending this evening reach a total of 26,928 bales, of which 20,240 were to Great Britain, 961 to France, and 5,727 to the rest of the Continent, while the stocks as made up this evening are now 111,470 bales.

The deliveries on contracts in the regular way were very large on Wednesday. The market on Thursday was quiet, and futures slightly depressed. To-day there was a decline of Sa,9 points, with September most freely sold, and the general speculation very dull. Cotton on the spot showed no change in quotations down to the close of Thursday's business. The transactions of the week are without important feature, except a considerable business for export on Monday afternoon (reported in Tuesday's business), and large speculative transactions on Tuesday afternoon (reported in Wednesday's busi-

What has become of that letter. which, the STAR said Judge Bennett was going to address to Col. Dockery, asking for a joint canvass? Oh! where ?- New Bernian.

Here it is. We copy from the Raleigh News-Observer :

NEWTON, N. C., August 30. Capt. S. A. Ashe, Raleigh, N. C.: DEAR SIR:-On the 22d current, at Lincolnton, in the presence of Col. James A. Leak, I asked Col. Dockery to meet me in a joint canvass of the State. He said that he could not make an arrangement to that effect without the concurrence of Col. Cocke, and that he would write me from Asheville in respect to the matter after seeing him. Herewith I send you the letter this day received from Col. Cocke. Make such use of it as Capt. Coke and yourself deem proper. I had a splendid audience here yesterday. Cordially yours, R. T. BENNETT.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., August 29.

Hon. R. T. Bennett: DEAR SIR:-At the request of Col. Dockery I write you. He informed me that you desired a joint canvass for eight or ten discussions somewhere in the 'State. I decline to allow it on account of Capt. Coke's action toward me. You can blame no one but your chairman for my denial of the request. I am, with great respect. W. M. COCKE, JR.,

BENNETT CHALLENGES DOCKERY.

Charlotte Journal.

While at Newton Judge Bennett received a letter from Mr. Cocke saying that he wrote at the request of Col. Dockery, who had informed him that Judge Bennett wanted ten or twelve joint discussions in the State, but that he (Cocke) would not allow it, and he went on to charge the responsibility for not having joint discussions from the beginning on the Chairmen of the Democratic Executive Committee. This is, of course, a very poor excuse for not accepting Judge Bennett's proposition, but in order to settle this matter once for all, we are now authorized to say this: Judge Bennett respectfully invites, nay, most eaarnestly requests, Col. Dockery, the Republican candidate for Congressman at large, to meet him at all of his appointments throughout the State. We are further authorized, if this is declined, to say that Judge Bennett will abandon all his appointments, and go to Col. Dockery's appoint-

BEN HILL AND YANCEY.

Dr. James B. Hamilton, of Georgia, who was surgeon in the Confederate army, and a friend of Ben Hill and Yancey, gives the following ac-count of the difficulty that occurred elect it. between Ben Hill and William L. Yancey:

"When Mr. Hill was sent to the Confederate Senate he was much opposed to the war. Mr. Yancey was a fire-eater, and a great hater of President Jeff. Davis. Mr. Hill assumed the championship of Mr. Da-vis, took sides with him and defended him in everything he said and did. This so exasperated Yancey that one day in the Senate, after Mr. Hill had concluded a speech in defense of Mr.

Davis, he rose in his place, and in that style of his which is simply in-imitable, proceeded to charge Mr. Hill with inconsistency, and a want of ardor for the cause of the South. He then brought up Mr. Hill's past record, and finally referred to the Stephens difficulty, and inti-mated that Hill was a coward. When he did that Mr. Hill picked up an inkstand and threw it at Yancey, just grazing his cheek-bone. Yancey, in dodging, slipped and fell back-ward over his desk, thereby hurting himself slightly. That was all there was of it." "Then Mr. Hill was not the cause of producing such spinal injury as to eventually cause his death ?"

"He did not. He was not within ten feet of Mr. Yancey." "Then the seemingly premature death of Mr. Yancey was not in any sense caused or brought on by Mr. Hill ?"

"It was not. Mr. Yancey died of Bright's disease of the kidneys. This you can state as a fact as true as Judge Bennett's speech at Asheville is thus referred to by a correspondent of the Raleigh News-Observer: Judge Bennett followed in a speech of two hours. Per-haps the greatest tribute I could pay his excellent speech is merely to state the fact that the crowd regularly increased from its inception to its close. With hardly a single exception, every man who came in at the door remained till the speaker brought his eloquent address to a reluctant close, protested against by the hungry crowd who, though dinnerless and tired, cried out, "go on! go on!!"
