A Saggestion to Mr. Randall. Memphis Appeal, Dem.

"The internal revenue must be the basis of our reform policy," says ex-Senator McDonald, "and from this our country must receive its supplies." This is a succinct statement of the best policy of the Democratic party. The most intelligent and the most unprejudiced of the economists of the day are agreed that the increase of the surplus must be stopped and that the duty must be taken off imported necessaries. To make whiskey free and at the same time to place an embargo on imported necessaries is a proposition which is so maniit patiently. Yet such is the proposion of the Republican party and of Mr. Randall. The adoption of the policy suggested by Mr. McDonald would so strengthen the Democratic party before the country as to make success in 1888 absolutely assured. The people would instantly perceive its wisdom and Democratic speakers could take the stump without apology. Never was there such an opportunity to put the Republican temporize will be to invite defeat.

A Republican Journal on Randall's Letter.

Lancaster Examiner (Rep.) Mr. Randall in his wonderful but non understandable letter to the St. Louis Republican says: "I am not a protectionist per se or a free trader per se." We are glad to hear this, as Mr. Randall over his own signature informs us that he belongs to that large class of statesmen Macaulay was fond of sneering at-"a trimmer." In matters of government our leading statesmen should really tell us whether they are men, mice or long-tailed rats. We have respect for Frank Hurd and Judge Kelley, because they tell us some? thing definite. But we cannot understand a straddler. Mr. Randall should write another letter.

ONSLOW RAILEOAD EXPLA-NATION.

Editor Star:-In the Sunday' STAR the following statement appears, which may, by implication, mean that should the city subscribe to the capital stock of the Onslow Railroad the municipality will have no representation in the directory of the company. "There is no provision in the charter of the company providing for representation in the directory of the company, as some per-sons have supposed. When the county was asked to subscribe, the charter was amended so that the county should have representation;

but this does not apply to the city.' remember the roach that my grandfather The second section of the original charter of the Onslow Railroad gives the names of forty-six corporators and adds "such other persons and corporations as may be associated with them" shall be a corporate body and have a corporate existence. The 14th section provides that if by an election a municipality subscribes to the capital stock of the road, the proper authorities of the city or county shall immediately make such subscription, and appoint a board of trustees of not less than three resident tax-payers, who shall issue the bonds voted at the election, and shall deliver the bonds so issued to the Railroad Company upon receiving therefor, for the use and benefit of the city or county, proper certificates of stock in the railroad company, to the amount of the subscription so voted. This makes the municipality a stockholder in the company to the amount of its subscription, and unlike the public stockholders in several of the railroads in the State, gives them their proportionate strength with the private stockholders in directing and controlling the management of the company. Unless I am mistaken, the State, which owns much more than a majority of the stock in the Atlantic & North Carolina road, has not a proportionate voice in the management of the road over the private stockholders, which its predominance would seem to entitle it. But in the

It will be noticed that the provisions of Section 14 above referred to, require the proper authorities of the city or county voting a subscription festly absurd that one may not argue to immediately make such subscription to the capital stock, and it certainly seems that when a subscription is made, the party making it becomes a stockholder.

The "terms and conditions" upon which the subscription is asked, are for the security of the city. If no road is built then the city spends no money. When it is remembered how many times it has occurred that municipal bonds have been issued and sold, and the proceeds pocketed by party at a killing disadvantage. To those to whem the bonds were delivered, and no road built, it appears that similar "terms and conditions' should be imposed upon all municipal subscriptions. I am not aware in this case whether they were demanded by the city, or offered by the company; but no reflecting person can doubt the advantage of them; and without some guarantee of the kind a subscription should not receive a single vote.

CHICAGO'S BOODLERS.

The Defence Rest Their Case and Argument Begun. By Telegraph to the Morning Star. CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The defence in the coodie trial rested their case this morning.

Practically no testimony was produce on behalf of the accused, except a general denial from each of them, and evidence as to their previous good character. Judge Jamison immediately limited the lawyers to two hours each in pleading and the speeches began.

The first address was made by Assistant State's Attorney Walker and was a ter-rific excoriation of the defendants, particularly of Commissioner Wren. As Walker went on with his denunciation of Wren, the face of the huge defendant grew pale with anger and passion. He tried to smile at first, but gradually his brow became overcast and when Walker alluded to the fact in the record that Wren had forged Walker's name to a bill for buggies supolied to the county by him (Wren) under Walker's name, he turned round and pointng to Wren said solemnly, "And when he said in court that he did not know his own writing-when his forgery was placed under his eyes-he perjured himse f. "You're a liar," came thundering from the defendant's corner, and the ponderous Commissioner rose steaming with passion. instantly all was in commotion. Walker's face turned crimson; his eyes sparkled like fire. "Yes," he cried, "I repeat it, Dave Wren you're a perjurer." "You're a liar; you're a liar," yelled Wren as, with clenched hands and teeth, ne advanced towards the State's advocate But now it was Judge Jamison's turn 'Cease, this moment," exclaimed the Court, the moment the interruption came from Wren, and he hit the desk a blow with his hand. When Wren repeated his insulting remarks the Judge turned pale, and then turned red. "Don't let me hear another word out of your mouth, Wren," he thun dered, and in another moment Wren had been forced into his seat by a pair of bailiffs. At once Wren's attorney, Col. Nunn, sprang to his feet and tried to address the Court. The Court angrily and decisively said. "I will hear nothing. Go on, Mr.

Walker.' Col Nunn-"If the Court please ?" The Court-"I won't hear any speec rom counsel or any body. Go on, Mr

The Court-"Well, take your exceptions without making any speech about it. Go on, Mr. Walker. The speaker renewed his assertion that Wren had repeatedly committed perjury.

Once more Wren struggled to his feet in the hands of a bailiff, and, glaring savagely at Walker again exclaimed, "You're a liar, and you know it." And then rushed out of the court room. During the early portion of the day the continuation of tame accounts from Liverpool had a depressing influence. and under rather full selling there was a shrinkage of 10@12 points, October showing the greatest weakness, but afterward more or less unfavorable crop advices created a reactionary feeling, and there was a recovery that put late months to about last evening's figures or a fraction higher, and the close was steady. BABY HUMORS And all Skin and Scalp Diseases Speedily Cured by

Cuticura,

Cuticura.

Our little son will be four years of age on the 25th inst. In May, 1885, he was attacked with a very painful breaking out of the skin. We called in a physician who treated him for about four weeks. The child received little or no good from the treatment, as the breaking out, supposed by the physician to be hives in an aggravated form, became larger in blotches, and more and more distressing. We were frequently obliged to get up in the night and rub him with soda in water, strong liniments, etc. Finally, we called other physicians, until no less than six had attempted to cure him, all alike falling, and the child steadily getting worse and worse, until about the 20th of last July, when we began to give him Cutricura Resolvent internally, and by the last of August he was so nearly well that we gave him only one dose of the Resolvent about every second day for about ten days longer, and he has never been troubled since with the horrible maindy. In all we used less than one half of a bottle of Cutricura Resolvent, a little less than one box of Cuulcura, and only one cake of Cuticura Soap.
