She has loved perhaps unwisely And too well; All the secret of her sorrow-Who can tell?

Who can know the weary heartache Of her life? Who conceive its utter darkness Or its strife?

We only know that all is over; She lies there With the purple seaweed clinging In her hair. Livid features- blue eyes staring Open wide: Poor dumb lips that cannot tell us

Why she died None may ever know her story Or her name; She has thrown aside the shadow Of her shame. She has dared to face her Maker

In despair-His alone the right to judge her; Leave her there.

WILMINGTON, April 11, 1894. MR. W. H. BERNARD: Dear Sir :- I have examined very carefully the 1st Part of the American Encyclopædic Dictionary. I am really surprised at the excellence of the work both for its intrinsic merit and its price. I have made a parallel comparison with Webster's Unabridged; and with the Century, published also in parts, costing me $2.50 per volume; or complete, $60.

I find the American Encyclopædic

Dictionary superior in many respects to Webster's Unabridged, and for genera purposes equal to the Century. The type is distinct and full, the illustrations numerous, the derivation of words scholarly and accurate, the definitions exceedingly complete and verified by many extracts from leading modern authors, the encyclopædic information very full, the diacritical marks plain, with prominent equivalents at bottom of

I unhesitatingly endorse the First Part of this Dictionary as meeting the require-ments of the scholar and filling the wants of the general reader and man of business needing general information in a compact and reliable presentation. No one need fear that his money will be misspent, who invests in this work,

Yours truly, WASHINGTON CATLETT.

The Jumping Wishbone Here is an interesting suggestion: When the turkey has been duly served and nothing is left but a pile of bones, pick out the "wishbone"—the bone which is shaped like the one shown in Stretch across the bone a double niece of stick which just reaches to the top of the bone. On this point place a bit of soft pitch or any very sticky substance strong enough to grip the end of the stick; then place the wishbone on the table, and when the twisted string has overcome the resistance of the pitch the bone will jump high into the air. On this principle "jumping frogs" are

The Foolish Rooster.

"Here, chick, chick!" called Harry, opening the gate of his poultry yard. He had just traded off a small colony of rabbits for half a dozen fowls, and he was very proud of them, for they were beautiful birds, especially Narcissus, the handsome rooster. He really shone in the spnlight a he came hopping out, with his scarlet comb, green tail and navy blue wings and breast. But I think his pretty head must hold a very small brain. As soon as Harry let him out for ex-ercise he stalked straight to the cellar window and gave it a savage peck. Then he stopped to crow and then rushed at it again, flercer than ever.

You see, he thought that his own reflection in the glass was another bird, and he wanted to fight with it. And so he could not take a stroll in the green grass, nor scratch in the flower beds, nor even peck at the grasshoppers and beetles that the hens made such a fuss about. He only fought his own shadow till it was time for him to be shut up again.

I think his brain must be very small indeed. - Youth's Companion.

Clipping Their Claws. One of the hardest tasks that the keep ers in museums and zoological gardens are ever called upon to perform is to trim the claws of certain wild animals. This is necessary, because if it were not done once in awhile the claws would be apt to turn into the flesh from lack of exercise. In the wild state the animals use their claws so much in climbing, etc., that it keeps them sharp and wears them down to the right length. In captivity, of course, they cannot do this, and their keepers have to resort to all kinds of tricks to accomplish it. Even our pet cats find it necessary to sharpen and shorten their claws occasionally and can often be seen scratching on the bark of trees for that purpose.

Little Ruth Looked On. Little Ruth Cleveland made her first public appearance in Washington recently, when she went with her mother and her governess to see the amateur performance at Albaugh's theater in which Secretary Carlisle's grandchildren danced. The affair was given by Mrs. Carlisle, with the assistance of a number of young society people, the money to be applied to the repair of The Hermitage, the home of Andrew Jack-

Artificial Petroleum. It is not perhaps generally known that petroleum can now be produced artificially. The process is very simple, being the distillation, in a strong iron vessel, under a pressure of 25 atmospheres, of the animal fats and oils at a temperature of 800 degrees C. Under favorable conditions 70 per cent of the fat-ty oils are transformed into petroleum, which is 90 per cent of the theoretical yield. The product thus obtained has been found to be in every particular identical with natural petroleum. It is suggsted that, with modifications of condi-tions in the process, oils of different

It is premature to predict the changes in the petroleum industry or to say what bearing this discovery may have. At present it certainly appears to be of little practical importance, yet it is not the less an interesting fact, and one per-haps not to be lost sight of. The dis-covery will doubtlessly be further de-veloped, and it is not improbable that it veloped, and it is not improbable that it may become of commercial importance.

If, as is claimed, 70 per cent of the animal oil is convertible into a good petroleum, it would appear that Degras oil, which sells at 2 cents per gallon, could profitably be converted into a superior grade of petroleum, selling, say, at 12 cents. It would be no more remarkable than many other transmitted.

without a buttonhole Although the double skirt or overskirt is steadily advancing in popularity, the plain skirt refuses to retire from public favor, and it is to be hoped that it will continue to hold its place, for it is lighter and more convenient in every respect than the draped convenient in every respect than the draped skirt. The latter appears to advantage in muslin, gauze and thin evening materials, but in woolen goods for street wear it is undeniably weighty. It is being used for all sorts of gowns, however, and probably by next winter it will be firmly established as the ruling mode, and we shall see heavy cloths and even velvets made up in that style.

A sketch is given of a double skirted toilet in silver gray vignone. The plain un-derskirt is of checked silk to match, while the second skirt is draped in box plaits over the hips, confined by a strap, which and revers are also of checked silk, while the upper half of the sleeve consists of a balloon puff of vignone surmounted by a wide epaulet of the same material buttoned down the top of the shoulder.

TRIM TOQUES AND CAPOTES.

We are receiving every day our Nearly All Spring Headwear Has Jet, Metal and Lace Ornamentation. The display of millinery this spring is as gay and varied as any one could desire. The manufacture of artificial flowers has risen from a handicraft almost to an art, and blossoms that are really wonderful imitations of nature crowd the counters of the shops and adorn the fanciful hats that this season has produced. Violets and red roses are the reigning favorites, repeating the purple and carmine tints so fashionable in fabrics. We are evidently entering on a period of frank coloring, for the half tints and subdued shades which have been considered "the thing" heretofore are giving place to brilliant reds, clear blues, vivid greens and unmistakable yellows.

Some very heautiful mixed straws are season has produced. Violets and red roses

Some very beautiful mixed straws are seen, mainly in combinations of green, pink, black and ecru, and plain neapolitan braids are also shown almost as flexible GUIPURE CAPOTE and soft as muslin. Many of the wide hats have the brim shaped in starlike points, while in others it is bent and twisted in every conceivable fashion. Spangles always appear in the trimming and are used immoderately. A black neapolitan flat trimmed with black had the bent brim covered with black spangles of all shapes and sizes while in lace hats the pattern is followed out on the net by them. The lace is gathered very little, of course.

Besides the large hats, a number of toques and capotes are shown. The trimming often allowed to fall on the hair at the back. Sometimes it is ribbon bow, sometimes two orthree jet ornaments with pendants, sometimes only a bunch of violets. There is scarcely a bat or bonnet to be seen into the construction of which lace of some sort does not enter, while everything glitters with metallic or jet decoration.

A stringless capote is shown with a crown of spangled guipure. A scant ruffle of lace takes the place of a brim and is arranged to droop upon the hair behind. A black resette is placed in the middle and on each side, and in front are two black ostrich plumes.

A SUMMER ROOM. ement In Green and White How to Make a Paper Lamp Shade. Among the details of a successfully fur-nished summer room The Decorator and Furnisher mentions a silk hammock Furnisher mentions a silk hammock swung across one corner; a new cover and valance for the mantel board, made from sotton crape in green and silver, the same material being used to frill into the small screen which should conceal the fireplace; fresh shades for the lamps, candles and electric globes, quickly and economically executed, of white and green crape tissue paper, the green over the white. They are best arranged on the wire placed over the lamp. It minimizes the trouble of stretching upward to place the lamp on a milking stool. Slip the paper over, draw it together at the top, leaving a good heading, and then tie it loosely with string round the wire, by which means you can regulate the fullness caremeans you can regulate the fullness carefully till it is equal all round, and then tighten the string. In the same way place the two other papers separately over. The lowest paper is then bent under about two inches above the edge, the next is formed into a couple of waves, and the upper one drawn up in waves above, so that it makes about five vandykes all round. The paper remains as you press it, and the result is a pretty, most graceful shade.

A delicate flavor of rose leaves is a great addition to certain cakes and confections, than many of the extracts sold for the purpose, according to Harper's Bazar, which gives the following recipe: It is made by chopping the leaves of fragrant roses into a smooth mass with white sugar and placing them in an oven long enough to heat thoroughly, but not entirely melt the sug-ar. Use a cupful of the leaves to 3 of sugar. Keep in airtight cans and allow to stand six months before opening. This must be used carefully, only a small quantity being necessary to flavor a large cake. A novelty at a recent dinner was a Roman punch flavored in this way with the Turk ish preserved rose leaves, which may be purchased at any store dealing in oriental goods. Into an ordinary Roman punch which is simply a lemon sherbet flavored to taste with rum, the rose leaves were stirred a few at a time until a delicate fla-vor was obtained, and the mixture was then frozen to a soft and snowy consisten-cy and served in small glasses. Half a can of the Turkish leaves would flavor a sufficient quantity for eight persons. Angel food, if correctly prepared, is on of the best loaf cakes made. The recipe herewith given is warranted by The Bak-

THE COLONIAL TYPE.

REVIVAL OF THE FURNITURE OF A CENTURY AGO.

Style Free From Extravagance and Extreme Conceits and Possessing Statelines Without Stiffness The Colonial Mantels. Typical Colonial Parlor Fully Furnished

The colonial style of late years has brained a considerable degree of attention. Its revival is a remaissance of the colonial chairs, tables and cabinets of a century ago and salthough based upon classic lines is appositive creation, characterized by charming individuality. The colonial mantels are constructive features of apartments and are usually of wood bearing floral garlands and pendants in relief. The pillows bearing the shelves are fine examples of turnery, and much of the pleasing effect of the mantel is due to the fine proportions maintained by the delivery of relief work in cornice and moldings, made more effective by ample and well considered spacing.

The most elaborate carying appears to have been reserved for the round center tables for parlors and drawing rooms, and a variety of small tables are noticeable for extreme refinement of line. One admires the fine workmanship of the table, which after half a century of straining wear gives no sign of unsta leness, no wavering even of the extended leaf that seems hung in the air. Colonial chairs are invariably to be admired, combining as they do artistic beauty with strength. The backs generally show open work, as in rails or wavy forms radiating from the central stem below, the central panels being more or less richly carved and frequently pre-senting a slightly concave surface. The settees have a solid seat beneath the back formed of panels. The backs, whether upholstered in textiles or in open framework, are rounded as they approach the sides. Carved scrolls forms. with ornate center, form the usual top finish. Buffets or sideboards with the unvarying celleret in the center are stately in appearance without being massive. The carving is merely applied to the back in radiating curves with a figure at the apex. Good proportions and high finish of surface, with metallic brass mountings, imparted to these side-boards an imposing appearance. Fine metal work in wrought iron and brass was the pride of the colonial period, according to The Decorator and Furnisher, from which the foregoing is reproduced. It was sparingly and tastefully used in furniture and interior furnishings as

COLONIAL SIDEBOARD. lions bearing figures remarkable for originality and beauty. Metal, too, found a place in the mounting of caskets, in hinges and flanges for doors and in grilles displaying intricate interlacings. In fine, the colonial is a distinctive style, that stands midway between the empire on the one hand and the Chippendale on the other. A colonial apartment fully furnished is unique enough to inspire the desire for possession in the bosom of the most indifferent dame.

Stylish Trimmings. Narrow jet galons are more used for trimmings of all kinds than anything else and flat insertions made of paillettes. Heavy guipure insertions in black and white trim dresses and mantles as well as gowns display long hanging fringes in tufts. A great deal of lace of all, kinds is employed both on gowns and mantles, with black moire and moire
