FIGURES VERSUS THEORIES

we believe, abandoned the sub-Treasury, which was one of their cardinal principles, but they still adhere to the Government ownership of railroads, telegraphs, &c. This is as bad as, if not worse than, the sub-Treasury. It is one of the favorite hobbies of the Rev. Mr. Martin, the Divinity called, as he professes to believe, Populist candidate for Congress in this district. If Providence called him, as he says, to represent the people of this district in the national legislature, Providence would in kindness have supplied him with some common sense, at least enough to prevent him from making himself ridiculous in the eyes of every one who is not destitute of common sense.

He has, we are told, the gift of volubility, and can knock the stuffing out of our vernacular when it comes to stringing words together, and delights in expatiating on the untold benefits that would come to the masses of the people if the Gov ornment owned and controlled the railroads, and especially to the masses in the Sixth district of North Carolina, which, by the way, is a farming district.

He illustrates by calling attention to the fact that with Government ownership travel would be so cheap -about a cent or a half a cent a mile -that it would be cheaper to travel than to stay at home, and that freights would be so cheap-practically nothing-that we could get California grapes, peaches, pears, raisins, plums, prunes, oranges, &c., laid down at our doors for a mere song; tropical fruits from Florida and the islands ditto; wheat, flour, corn, pork, beef, etc., from the fields and the pastures of the West, ditto; that we could live like lords, bask in the sunshine, or in the shade, if we didn't fancy the sunshine, and keep our small change to buy store clothes, go to the circus, &c., or words to that effect. And then our lumber, we'd get that so cheap already grooved and planed, that the ordinary sable field hand could have a nice house with an upstairs to it, and it he was particularly nice and had a little money he could have something approximating a palace

This is about the sum and sub stance of the verbal picture he draws of the blissful slice of territory this shoestring domain is to be when Uncle Samuel owns and runs the railroads. He doesn't inform his hearers where they are going to get the filthy lucre to buy these things even at the nominal cost he predicts, and seems to be oblivious of the fact that this would knock the bottom out of farming and the lumber business in this country and leave several thousand people with nothing but a very large surplus of time on their hands, which they could put in fishing, possum hunting or playing for little or nothing.

All the Populist advocates of this wild proposition do not talk as foolishly nor idiotically on it as he does, but there is none of them who knows anything about it. They haven't the slightest conception, or do not seem to have, of the immensity of the railroad systems of this country, of the cost of building, equipping roads, of operating, and what it costs or should cost to carry people and

Hon. Jerry Simpson, the unique and original Populist Representative from breezy Kansas, contends that if a railroad can afford to haul a live hog from Kansas City to Chicago for a few dollars it can afford to haul a live Congressman for the same, ignoring the fact that the hog does not demand a palace car, with mahogany finish, cushioned seats and other accompaniments of comfort and elegance which the Hon. Jerry avails himself of when he travels. If he were willing to put up with the surroundings, plainness and lack of style and ease of the hog car, we have no doubt that the railroads would be willing to haul him at hog rates.

But, as we remarked, they do not know anything about the railroad business and necessarily talk a great deal of nonsense when predicting what Government ownership would do for the people in the way of lessening transportation, and cheapening rates of travel and freight. The experiment has been tried in other countries and we have the cost of service in those compared with the cost in this, where the railroads are abused more than they are in any The latest from China is that Li | country under the sun. Egypt and Nicaraugua-2. The following Governments own part of their railways, but do not operate any, leasing all the present mileage to private companies, viz: Greece, Holland and Italy-3. "The relative rates charged for freight and passenger service on the government-owned railroads and the other facts cited in connection with such roads are calculated to afford little encouragement to the advocates of government ownership. A comparison of passenger charges per mile shows an average in Great Britain of 4.42 cents for first class, 8 20 for second class and 1.94 for third class. In France the average is 3.85 cents for first class, 2.86 for second classand 2.08 cents for third class. In Germany the rate is $.10 cents first class. 2.32 cents second class and 1.54 cents third class. In the United States the average charge is 2.12 cents.

"The average charges per ton per mile are as follows: In Great Britain, 2 80 cents; in France, 2.20 cents; in Germany, 1.64 cents, and in the United States, 1 cent."

It will be seen from this that there s no country in the world, whether the Government operates the railroads or not, where the cost of travel and freight is as low as it is in this country, where the Populist statesmen and their dupes are clamorous for Government ownership.

FIFTY-FIFTH VOLUME.

THE MORNING STAR IS twentyseven years old, and begins its fiftyfifth semi-annual volume to-day.

Six months ago the Sunday issue was greatly enlarged, and the promise was made then that, with a moderate increase of business, every issue would be made as large as that of

That promise is redeemed to-day. The moderate increase of business has come; and we have so much confidence in the future that we fully expect a steady growth, both in subscriptions and advertisements.

The increase in size, of course, means an increase in expenses; but it is our intention to give the readers of THE MORNING STAR the best newspaper we can afford, and to offer the business men of Wilmington the best medium for reaching the merchants and farmers in the territory that is commercially tributary to Wilmington.

The fact that THE MORNING STAR is the oldest daily newspaper in the State shows that twenty-seven years s a long period in daily journalism in North Carolina. And during all these years there has been no change in its name, proprietorship or editorial management.

With thanks to the thousands of riends who have stood by us for nearly a generation; and with a cordial acknowledgment of the generous courtesies shown us by our contemporaries of the "fourth estate," THE MORNING STAR looks gratefully at the past, and hopefully to the future.

SENATOR RANSOM

Will Address the Democrats of New Hanover at Wilmington Monday Night,

Senator Ransom has accepted an invitation to address the Democratic voters of New Hanover county in this city on Monday night. October 1st. If the weather is favorable the address will probably be delivered out doors, and that there will be a great gathering of people to hear the distinguished speaker, goes without saying. The County Executive Committee and the Young Men's Democratic Club have ample time to make preparations for the event, and will no doubt arrange for a great popular demonstration. The following is a copy of the invitation to Senator Ransom and

They have made three presentments for different crimes. They have taken evidence in twenty bills of indictment. Of these, nineteen true bills were found and one not a true bill.

The County Home and County Jail have been visited; and so far as the grand jury have been able to inform themselves by a brief inspection, both these institutions seem to be well kept, and the inmates, both paupers and prisoners, well ted and cared for.

In the County Home the rooms and premises were found neat and clean, The kitchens for both white and colored departments were in good condition, and the dinner which was cooking at the time of inspection appeared to be of good wholesome food, and from enquiries made of inmates it is furnished in sufficient quantities, though some slight objection was offered to want of va-

Other Business Transacted. The County Democratic Executive Committee met, pursuant to published call, at the Court House, yesterday afternoon. Eleven of the thirteen mem-

Mr. E. A. Northrop was elected to fill a vacancy existing in the representation of the Fifth Ward.

Chairman Borden announced that nominations to fill the existing vacancies on the county ticket were in order; whereupon the name of Mr. Herbert McClammy was presented for the House of Representatives. There being no opposition, Mr. McClammy received the unanimous vote of the Committee. The vacancy for Constable of Wilmington Township was filled by the unanimous nomination of Mr. J. W. Millis. This completes the ticket.

A motion was adopted requesting Chairman Borden to invite Senator Ransom to speak here on the night of October 1st, as he speaks at Burgaw that day and can address the people of New Hanover at the time indicated without interfering with his other appointments.

The committee confirmed the election of the Executive Committeemen for Federal Point Township chosen by the voters August 8th. After authorizing the Chairman to appoint canvassing and campaign commi tees, the Committee adjourned.

There can be no doubt that there will be a very large crop of cotton made this season; but it is equally certain that the mammoth figures, ranging from 9,500,000 to 10,000,000 bales, heretofore given out, will have to be reduced. There is nothing in sight now to justify any estimate in excess of 9,000,000 bales, and the crop is likely to be somewhere near those figures.

- It the Emperor of China continues the work of "divesting" on Li Hung Chang much longer the poor old Viceroy will have nothing left when the chilly blasts of December come but the Georgia uniform-a shirt collar and a KING KORN'S KROP.

The Yield Is Variously Estimated at from 1,300,000,000 to 1,387,000,000 Bushels-A Considerable Shortage.

In consequence of the large production of corn in the South this season the people of this section are much interested in the crop estimates. The New York World says:

The biggest crop raised by a single country is Indian corn, and the United tates is the country that raises it. In a good year the United States produces 2,000,000,000 bushels of this staple, and has produced more. At the average market price these 2,000,000,000 bushels are worth $1,000,000,000, or about ten times as much as the gold production of the whole world for a year. It would pay the entire public debt of the United

But this year the corn crop is short. A severe drought has greatly reduced the yield. Just how much is what many people would be very glad to known, and the World therefore prints to-day reports from nearly three hundred correspondents scattered throughout the corn region.

These reports cover the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Mich-Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and South These twelve States include the great corn belt of the United States, and in an average year produce about 75 per cent. of the crop.

The Government report makes the yield this year 1,100,000,000 bushels, but most all of the corn authorities say this is too low, and the World's exhaustive reports indicate that the latter are right. If one will study these reports carefully he will see that they indicate about two-thirds of an average crop, or in the neighborhood of 1,300,000,000

The greatest reduction has been in the States west of the Mississippi, and there the loss has been heavy. Kansas, which raised more than 150, 000,000 bushels of corn in a good year, reports only 42 000,000 bushels. But the States east of the Mississippi, where rain is a more certain quantity, pull up the average. The reports follow by States. The annexed estimate by the Prairie Farmer, it will be observed, is somewhat larger than that of the World; but it should be noticed that it calls attention to the fact that it is the "third small crop in succession: CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—The Prairie Farmer's corn crop report for September "Special investigation indicates that the acreage lost amounts to 7,764,000 acres. Of this one-half was in Nebraska and 6,500,000 acres were in Ne braska, Iowa and Missouri. The amount 'cut up' has been overestimated in some quarters by including a large amount o corn which was ripe and 'cut up' simply to save the fodder in best possible condition. The present return indicates a crop of 1,897,000,000 bushels, against 1,718,000,000 bushels last year. It is the third small crop in succession, and, considering the depleted stocks and increased population and consumptive demand, is the smallest supply on record."

The Florence Times says: "The receipts of cotton at Florence from August 25th to September 17th were 489 bales. Of this amount 66 were shipped to Charleston, 137 to Noriolk and 286 to Wilmington."

Well, what of it? There's nothing the matter with Wilmington. She has plenty of money to pay the market value for cotton; she has three of the finest cotton presses in the country, she has a depth of water to the ocean sufficient for ships carrying 10,090 bales, and there is the leading cotton ports of the South. | to-day.

THE COTTON TRADE.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Letter-Crop Esti-

The decline of the past week, in face of the bad crop accounts which have been forwarded from every section of the South, and which are making themselves apparent in the files of the Southern newspapers, in addition to their publication by the Government and pri vate sources, is an instance of the incredulity of the public as to the extent of any damage to the growing crops in America this season. If crop accounts of a similar character had been received in previous years, the market undoubtedly would have responded with an advance, notwithstanding the increase in the movement of the receipts over those of last season, for the simple fact that this movement would then be compared to the big crop year, and found to be less than in that season. But this year the spirit of buying produce of any character has vanished, as a result of the severe losses which were experienced last year in the continued decline of cotton and wheat. The cotton trade with their friends have made up their minds seemingly in such a manner that it will be impossible to change it that this season's crop will be a very large one, and therefore it is utterly useless to consider the question of buy ing cotton at any price whatever.

To locate the exact reason for the sharp break of 1/4c. a pound, which has occurred since our last letter, it is to be found in the fact that a report was sent from Augusta, Ga, by a prominent man in the Liverpool cotton trade, that the cotton crop appeared to him to be a very large one and might possibly exceed 9,-000,000 bales, and as his opinion is looked up to in his own market the natural result was to throw upon the cotton markets of the world not only the holdings of his friends, but a general and indiscriminate rush to sell ensued which sharply broke prices, as there is not speculation enough on either side of the water to think of buying cotton at

Our cables from Europe to-day state in one instance that the feeling in the trade there tends towards the belief that cotton will sell as low as 3d, a pound this season, and that therefore it is useless to consider the question of buying cotton at any price. On the other hand it is also felt that the demoralization abroad and in this market has been sufficient for the present, and that the markets will be apt to become comparatively steady, and if anything, react from this sharp decline. Looking at the market broadly, it rould seem as though we were now feeling the effects of the extreme force of the wave of pessimism which has been growing gradually since the cotton cul-August, which has continued with interruptions to work against the value of cotton, until to-day it is selling at 6,29 for October. In other words, in four years cotton has declined 50 per cent. o its actual value. At the same time the visible supply of cotton on the coming Saturday will probably be less than it was in any year since 1890, and, therewe must look for this seacrop to form the basis for this extraordinary depreciation which has occurred in the price of cotton. Other circumstances, such as bad trade and financial panics have been taken from the situation; in fact trade has so improved throughout the world that it is estimated the consumption of American cotton this year will be larger than ever before known. Whether this wave of pessimism is now approaching its end and will be gradually succeeded by an optimistic view of the cotton market will depend largely upon the advices which are received regarding the cotton crop during the next 60 days. We have yet to encounter the most dangerous cotton crop, namely, a frost, and as the plant this season is green and luxurious it would be more disastrons than for any season since 1889. There remains, therefore, the same story which we have repeated from time to time in these letters, namely, that there is no speculation, and until the belief in a 9,000,000 bale crop is badly marred by crop prospects, it is not likely that there will be any increase in that, factor to support prices. Therefore, the question stil remains an open one, whether the prospects for the crop, which have sadly deteriorated since the 1st of September are now such as will produce a yield of 9,000,000 bales or a yield exceeding the estimate for consumption for the coming season, namely: 8,250,000 bales of Amercan cotton. Should by any accident the crop fall to or below this required consumption, an advance would occur in the cotton market which would astonish those who are now so confident that cotton will sell at 2 pence per pound in Liverpool, and it is this factor which is the only one preventing such a decline at the present time.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE. Phirty Thousand Casks Sold in Savannah Wednesday-Stock in First Hands Reduced to Five Thousand Casks.

The News has the following concernng a heavy transaction in spirits turpenine in Savannah last Wednesday: A sale of 30,000 casks of spirits turpentine was made here yesterday. The price was 241/2 cents a gallon. The

The factors' combination held a meeting in the afternoon to consider a bid from two prominent buyers at the price stated above, and after some discussion agreed to accept the offer. There was a stock on hand of over 61,000 casks, of which about 35,000 casks were in first hands.

The sale of 80,000 casks left 5,000 in the hands of the factors. After the sale was made it was rumored that there was a strong inquiry for the product, and that 500 casks were sold at 24% cents a gallon. A bid for 1,-000 casks at the latter price was also reported. As nearly all of the stock at the ports is now in the exporters' hands it is expected that there will be a gradual advance in the price during the next few weeks. The price at which the stock was sold resterday is just 5 cents a gallon below the combine's highest figure, or a loss of $25,000 on the amount the factors exholding the spirits during the summe reduced the profits considerable.

Although the several sales made during the past four months have been at a better price than would probably have been realized had not the combination been formed, the transaction of yesterday shows that the supply and de-mand governs the trade, and that the exporters, backed by the consumers, hold the balance of power. The fight of the factors was strongly made, but they have been ultimately defeated. They will now start at the bottom again, and by inducing the operators to curtail the production, will endeavor to realize better prices in the future.

TOBACCO SALES.

Breaks at Rocky Mount-Prices High for All Grades-Farmers Pleased with the [Star Correspondence.] ROCKY MOUNT, Sept. 21, 1894.

"Hang the banners on the outer wall, the cry is, still they come." The tobacco sales this week have been unprecedented. tobacco coming in from Green, Pitt, Halifax, Franklin, Edgecombe and Nash counties, and the prices running high for all grades, has induced farmers from every direction to come with not only cart but wagon loads. To-day the break is unprecedented. More tobacco on the market than ever has been seen at one time, the expositions had heretofore not excepted. There is such a large quantity it will require two days to wind up to-day's sale. A large lot, a car-load, from Greenville, came in yesterday, and there being so much on the floor it was not offered to-day, but will be to-morrow.

The Governor thought of commuting their sentence to life imprisonment, but had he done so, a mob was ready to go to the jail and lynch them.
