WHAT IS AT STAKE?

We have heretofore asserted and we repeat it here that the people of North Carolina were never called upon to vote at an election on which more depended than will depend upon the election to be held on the 6th of November. Whichever party carries the election will have the appointment of the county magistrat: s, and through these the selection of the Boards of County Commissioners, Boards of Education and Boards is one reason why the Fusionists are making such strenuous efforts to capture the Legislature, for if they secure that they have all-these, and then county government, as we have it now, will be as dead as a salted mackerel. If the Democratic party, the bulwark of conservatism, goes down, county government goes down with it, and both will be, in the language of the distinguished fusion statesman of the county of Madison, "buried in the same grave." If the black-and tan combination wins, up goes the mongrel system of county government on the ruins of the present, and statesman Jeter and statesman Marion can join hands and for the fight they are making; if we dance with joy.

Through the Boards of Education | it will take to recover the loss.

take, for four out of the five Judges are to be elected, six Superior Court Judges and twelve Solicitors and a State Treasurer, a very important officer, for it is he who has the handling and keeping of the people's money, which has been paid in for taxes, licenses, &c.

Isn't all this worth making a determined fight for?

The possession of the Legislature alone, as the law-making power, is of vital importance to the conservative people of the State, even if there was nothing else involved, and there were no magistrates, no county commissioners, no boards of education, the recipe. It will be valuable to us or of finances, no railroad commissioners, no educational or charitable institutions to be considered.

With a rattle-brain, revolutionary Legislature more harm could be done in one session of sixty days than six years of level-headed, conservative legislation could undo, for it would take many years to restore the confidence which would be shattered by the election of such a legislature. We can judge of the effect in this State by what the effect has been in other States where this revolutionary element have been in the ascendency and held power. They have blighted the prospects of every State where they have made their power felt, and so would they blight the prospects of this State if they got into a position to put their revolutionary, progressdestroying policies into effect. Give this revolutionary combination control of the law making, law-interpreting and law enforcing departments of the Government and it would be worse for North Carolina than if a cyclone or a conflagration swept over it from the seashore to the mountaincrest, for these would sweep over and leave desolation behind them, Twelfth District-H B Carter, of Bun- but the people would re-build their levelled or burned homes, and find peace and content under their roofs, but with the hell this combine

Look back a couple decades, and by what has been judge what may be when power passes into the hands of men as reckless, daring and unscrupulous as were the men who in the midst of peace set the civil law aside, brought in hireling soldiery from another State and declared martial law, to intimidate citizens and hold the power which they had abused and felt slipping from their grip. Is there nothing in all this to excite alarm and arouse the patriotism of all true State-loving North Carolinians? Will we see imperilled, without a resolute attempt to save it, all that the men of twenty-four years ago, with heroic effort won in the face of hireling soldiery and martial despotism? The liberties of North Carolinians are really in more danger now than they were twentyfour years ago when the issue was made between a military despotism and the resolute courage and fearless ballots of men determined to rebuke the despotism and be free. They did. They saved North Carolina, crushed the conspirators who sought to crush them, and drove the gang from power, some of whom retired forever to the obscurity from which they sprang, others sought pastures

in more congenial surroundings and others, loaded with plunder, refugeed to keep out of the penitentiary. But the next Legislature will elect | gramme as annotuced: two United States Senators. If the combination wins there will be one Republican and one Populist, for that is the bargain entered into between the bargainers. Through these boards lation of a Democratic character. they will practically have control of There would be no more tariff legisall the counties in the State. The combine is playing for big stakes, not only for the Legislature, but for the judiciary, for the control of the counties, for Congressmen and for two Senators, and they are playing their game for all it is worth. If they win they will be well repaid to hold the House two successive terms, and in that time they have only held the popular branch of Congress twice, and they were the Forty-seventh Congress, when Warren B. Six months ago the Sunday issue was enlarged, and the promise was made then that with a moderate increase of business every issue would be made as large as that of Sunday. The increase of business has come and the proprietor of that excellent paper has redeemed his promise. The STAR has always been a firstclass newspaper and deserves the encouragement and support that is being given to it. Long may it continue to shine for the good of the old North State.

USEFUL RECIPES. CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS' HOME.

Various Kinds of Puddings-Nice White Puffs-Some Recipes Worth Trying. BOILED LEMON PUDDING.

Two cups of dry bread crumbo, one cup powdered beef suet, four tablespoonfuls flour-prepared, one half cup sugar, one large lemon. All the juice and half the peel, four eggs, whipped ight; one cup of milk-a large one. Soak the bread crumbs in the milk, add the suet, beat eggs and sugar together and these well into the soaked bread. To these put the lemon, lastly the flour, beaten in with as few strokes as will uffice to mix up all into a thick batter. Boil three hours in a buttered mould Eat hot with wine sauce. PLAIN BOILED PUDDING.

One cup loppered milk or cream, onehalf cup molasses, one-half cup butter, melted; two and one-halt cups flour, two even teaspoonfuls of soda, dissolved in not water; a little salt. Mix molasses and butter together and beat until very light. Stir in the cream or milk, and salt; make a hole in the flour, pour in the mixture. Stir down the flour gradually until it is a smooth batter. Beat in the soda-water thoroughly, and boll at once in a buttered mould, leaving room to swell. It should be done in an hour and a half. Eat hot with a good sauce.

JELLY PUDDINGS. Two cups of very fine stale biscuit or bread crumbs; one cup rich milk--halt cream, if you can get it; five eggs, beaten very light; one-half teaspoonful soda, stirred in boiling water; one cup sweet jelly, jam or marmelade. Scald the milk and pour over the crumbs. Beat until half cold, and stir in the beaten yolks, then whites, finally the soda. Fill large cups half full with the batter; set in a quick oven and bake half an hour. When done, turn out quickly and dexterously; with a sharp knife make an incision in the side of each; pull partly open, and put a liberal spoonful of the conserve vithin. Close in slit by pinching the edges with your fingers. Eat warm with weetened cream.

THE C. F. AND Y. V. MAIL. If the Patrons of the Several Postoffices

Want Sunday Mail Service They Can Get It. Mr. S. W. Vickery, Superintendent of Railway Mail Service, reports to the Department that all but seven of Fear and Yadkin Valley Railway have informed him that the patrons of their offices do not desire a Sunday mail ser There are about fifty post-offices on the C. F. and Y. V. road, and it would appear that only the patrons of about one-seventh of these offices desire Sunday mail service. Is this the result of religious scruples? If so, there has been a marvel ous improvement in the people referred to. But, as a matter of fact, are the postmasters correct in this matter? Have a majority of the patrons of each office said they did not want this increased service, which will not cost them a nickel? The STAR asks for a recount. It suggests that a sort of primary be held at each office at which each patron be permitted to vote yea or nay. If they want the mail let them have it. The Government will give the additional service, and the people can get their news eyery day in the week, and thus keep abreast of the times. It should not be overlooked that the postmasters have nothing to do with this matter further than to ascertain the wishes of their patrons. If a majority of these at each office desire the additional service, it is the duty of the postmaster to so inform the department.

These be stirring times; and when it costs the people nothing to have their news seven times a week instead of six they should have it-that is, if they want it.

Republican Local Politics. There is much talk and there are many rumors concerning the outcome of Republican plans in this county. The most reasonable conclusion is that no definite plan has yet been formulated. There are conflicting interests, apparently, that have not yet been fully reconciled; but many of the Republicans say they will "do something," which means that they will bring out some sort

There seems to be a growing impression now that our revered neighbor-inlaw, Gee Zee, late of the county of Pender, will not be a candidate for Sheriff but will continue to sit "under his own vine and fig tree" and cultivate the "paternal acres" near Rocky Point in strawberries, lime and other vegetables. This reported change in the programme has revived the rumor that Elijah Zachariah Hewlett will be the candidate for Sheriff, while Stacey Shakespeare Van Amringe will aspire to the guardianship of the money bags of New Hanover

STEAM PILOT BOATS

To be Used by the Pilots' Association o Southport.

The Pilots' Association of Southport, having resolved to discard sailing boats, have purchased from Capt. T. J. Harper the steamers Alexander Jones and Blanche for use in their service. The price paid for the two tugs, with the good will, is said to be twenty-six thousand dollars. Capt. Harper went down to Southport vesterday to make the transfer. On Monday the new owners will take charge things. The Jones, under command of Capt. J. . Adkins, will be used as the pilot boat for sea work, and the Blanche for towing. The Jones will begin the work at once.

An Appeal to the Citizens of Wilmington in Behalf of the Inmates of the Soldiers' Home of North Carolins, at Raleigh,

The number of inmates and the applications for admission are much larger than was anticipated when the Legislature made its appropriation to sustain it, and now it has to rely upon the charity of the people in the different parts of the State to carry out the idea of comfort and sustenance of the old Confederate soldiers. As Winter is now approaching and clothing is essential to their comfort, I, as lady manager of this Congressional district, appeal to its citizens to come to their assistance. Particularly the citizens of our city to sustain its reputation, which, for charity and generosity stands well. Those who can spare any ready made clothing will please send the same to my place of residence, No. 116 South Fifth street, to be forwarded. And to all who desire to help in any other way, send the donations to me, and they will be sent to the Home. Gifts of any kind that will add to their comfort will be thankfully received, especially the means to purchase

THE BLIGHT OF POPULISM

What Populism Has Done For Colorado Immense Depreciation of Values. The Young Men's Business League of Denver, Col,, presents a striking lesson illustrating the effect of populism upon values-not prices, but values. Four years ago Colorado ranked next to New York in the borrowing power of her property. Now it is practically impossible to borrow anything upon the resources of the State.

"Populist rule in Colorado," says the league, "has been like a devastating forest fire." By destroying credit, which is the life of commerce, it has consumed for the time being not less than $300,-000,000 of values in the State. The State's borrowing power, this mainspring of her splendid progress, has been temporarily paralyzed by the accidental ascendency of a party which stands for repudiation and fiatism and is not a true friend to hard silver money Now, as to values, in the single city the postmasters on the line of the Cape of Denver: The property of Denver was assessed for $100,000,000, and was worth three times that sum when the Populist got into power. Notwithstanding the city's mevitably brilliant future, the av erage selling price of this property pending the overthrow of Waiteism, has shrunk two-thirds. "Silver has declined only 25 per cent., or less than the average products of the other States, while the increase value and output of gold, together with our beautiful crops, have more than made up the shortage. Therefore, not over one-half of our shrinkage of values can be charged to the panic and the universal depreciation resulting from the gold standard.

These facts should appeal to the Dem ocrats of Georgia to strike Populism a blow wherever they find it. What has urred in Colorado is liable to occur wnerever the foes of Democracy-Poplists or Republicans-win the ascen-

A dispatch from Phillips, W. Va., says: This place was taken by storm on Wednesday by the constituents of W. I.. Wilson from Barbour, Taylor, Tucker, and Randolph counties, the attendance numbering 5,000. Delegations paraded the town, cheering each other in the exuberance of their enthusiasm, and when the train bearing Mr. Wilson and his party arrived, the station was surrounded by a crowd which blocked all the approaches. In the column which escorted Mr. Wilson to his hotel were twenty-five young ladies, attired in white, on horseback, followed by about five hundred horsemen, and those by 3,000 voters. No such demonstration has been seen here for thirty years.

POSTOFFICE ROBBED. Safe Blown Open With Dynamite and All the Money and Stamps Taken.

[Special Star Telegram.] BENNETTSVILLE, S. C., Oct. 20.-The

Bennettsville postoffice was entered last night and robbed. The safe was blown open with dynamite, completely wrecked, and all the money and stamps were taken. A portion of the postoffice funds were deposited in the Bank of Marlboro. Postmaster Emanuel has not posted his books and cannot tell the exact loss. Strange persons have been loafing in town for several days. Shop tools which had been taken from Ingram's blacksmith shop were found this morning under the postoffice building. The postmaster telegraphed the Department this morning. The robbers are evidently a band of experts going through this section.

ABOUT COTTON.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Report of the Situation-Enormous Crop Movement-Prices Lower Than Ever Known-Must Bring a Loss to Nearly Every One Who Produces the Staple.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 .- Notwithstand ing an improved demand for cotton from the American spinners, the decline in the market has continued until prices have touched a lower level than known to anyone in the trade. In Liverpool prices have touched a lower level than ever before recorded, but without the markets showing any signs of recovery either at home or abroad. This situation is largely due to the demoralization in trade circles, which is a result of the continued decline in the price of wheat, and naturally causes those not directly connected with the cotton trade to look for cotton to follow in the same manner to an extremely low level of prices. The situation is simply an ideal market, as looked forward to by those who have in the past supported the Anti-Option bill, namely, that the speculative interest, which in ordinary times holds from one to two million bales of cotton is not interested at all in cotton, while the consumer, believing that the producer will supply him with his requirements without any anxiety upon his part, is quietly awaiting the time when he can accumulate a surplus stock at extremely low prices. How long such a situation of this character will continue is naturally interesting to the man who raises cotton, and it is difficult at the moment to find an answer to this question, as there are as yet no indications that the world is prepared to buy a surplus crop of cotton at present prices. At some point probably in this decline the market will turn and turn sharply, and those who are fortunate enough own cotton at that time will undoubtedly reap a substantial profit, as it is incredible that cotton should continue to be sold at prices which are now ruling, that un doubtedly bring a loss to every one who produces the staple, excepting in the most favored localities and under the most favored circumstances. When this point will be reached no one at present can foresee; that it will come is almost as certain as a mathematical proposition, as the low price of American cotton must naturally tend to drive the In-cotton next season materially. time depends entirely upon speculative support, and as speculation has been driven away from cotton as from other articles by the severe losses which have been incurred by those who considered the staple cheap at higher values than those now ruling, it will require a decided change regarding the prospects either of this crop or the next to attract those who in ordinary years are apt to be large holders of cotton at higher prices than those now current.

strict the area which will be devoted to

The movement of the crop in the Southwest continues an an enormous scale, though in the Atlantic Slope the demands of the mills in that section have absorbed the large offerings of the crop and prevented any great pressure upon the Atlantic markets. We believe that the consumption of American cotton this year will exceed that of any year on record, and that at some price it be found that the surhas entirely disappeared. plus At the moment, however, that price does not appear to be in sight, We must therefore look frankly at the situation as it presents itself to the mercantile mind, namely, that so long as the producer is forcing his-product upon the consumer at a rate greater than the consumer is willing to add to his surplus stock, the market is naturally depressed. As soon as that pressure is either through stormy relieved. weather or by the low price, or by a conviction that the crop is not as large as our friends in the Southwest have led us to believe, then the situation will change immediately and at once for the better; but until that period arrives, t is difficult to predicate any favorable opinion upon the market unless it be biased upon some climatic conditions which at this moment are not to be

There is one thing the Express Company officials do not explain, however, and that is how Searcey and Morganfield came into posses sion of so much silver money, in view of the statement of the Express Company that there was no silver in the looted

CINCINNATI, October 20 .- A morning paper publishes an elaborate statenent holding that Morganfield was not in the Aquia Creek, Virginia, robbery, but that he and his pals, who are be lieved to be hiding about this city, recently did another job equally atrocious that will soon be developed. It is con ceded that Morganfield and Sear cey are partners, and were to gether at Washington, Cumberland and other places, but that Morganfield's gang was doing one job while Searcey's gang was doing another. t was claimed that this is the reason the city authorities contested the action of Manager Fogg yesterday in trying to attach the $1,200 for the Adams Express Company. All the authorities and detectives refuse to disclose the other job.

UNITED DEMOCRACY.

Harmony to be Restored in New York by Hugh J. Grant.

[Special to the Baltimore Sun] WASHINGTON, Octeber 19,-Advices have been received here that Mr. Straus will accord Mr. Grant his cordial support. The two men have always been the best of friends. In fact, it was Mr. Grant who appointed Mr. Straus, although not a member of Tammany Hall, ber of the park commiss which capacity he displayed commendable ability. Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, when asked to day what eftect the withdrawal of Mr. Straus would have upon the State ticket, replied that it would have none at all. He believed that Mr. Grant would be as strong a candidate as Mr. Straus. The general impression here is that Mr. Grant's nomination will place the city and State tickets in thorough accord and that it will be plain sailing hereafter for the party.

Secretary Gardner, of the Congres sional Campaign Committee, who returned to-day from a brief trip to New York and the New England States, says the outlook for Mr. Hill is improving. He believes he will receive the full Democratic vote and be elected by a good majority. - Raleigh News and Observer: The late Judge Reade's estate is worth not less than $200,000.

FOOT BALL.

The Johns Hopkins Beaten by the University of Virginia Team.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. RICHMOND, October 20.-A Charlottesville special to the Dispatch says: The game of foot ball between Johns Hopkins and the University of Virginia teams played here this afternoon was interesting and was witnessed by a large crowd. There was an entire absence of slugging. The score stood 76 to 0 in favor of the Virginians. Several substitutes played on the home team.

Boston, October 20 .- Harvard beat Williams to-day in a game replete with interest. The final score was 32 to 0. There was a crowd of 4,000 people present and it had several occasions to give vent to its enthusiasm. The playing on both sides was far better than any game seen this year or any other year. Harvard played better than any enthusiastic supporter had supposed was possible. NEW YORK, October 20 .- Cornell's foot ball eleven made a splendid showing against the champion Princetons at Manhattan field this afternoon. The score was 12 to 4, while all the critics thought that Princeton would roll up at least 30 points and whitewash her rival. It was a perfect day, and about 4,000 persons, including a big delegation from Cornell, witnessed the game. The Yale and Pennsylvania teams had representatives on hand to watch the champlons, and they went away filled with encouragement.

BLIND POOLS.

Exciting Scenes at the "Bucket Shops" in Pittsburg.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star PITTSBURG, October 20.—Owing to the public exposure by the newspapers of the plans and methods of the "discretionary pools" operating in Pittsburg, panic has seized on the people who have invested their money in them. Exciting scenes have been enacted all day at these places. The biggest run of the day was made on the public Grain and Stock Exchange, Wood street, where from the time the shop opened there has been a surprising rush of terrified people intent on withdrawing their deposits, or giving notice of withdrawal. The managers of these "blind pools" have begun to realize that they are standidg on the brink of a volcano. One of them quit

the business to-day and others are preparing to follow his example. Runs are on at all of the big establishments and the prospects are that before night-fall several of them will have gone to the The American
