

Keep your blood clean as you keep your body clean. You don't wait until your body is foul before you cleanse it. It is a matter of surprise that many peo-ple who are so careful to have clean bodies make no effort to keep the blood clean. make no effort to keep the blood clean. Everyone knows that uncleanness breeds disease; that those who do not keep their bodies in a wholesome condition and who dwell in filthy surroundings are the first to fall when some epidemic of disease sweeps the country. But foul blood is more dangerous to the individual than a foul body. An unclean body is rather a passive than an active hindrance to health. But unclean blood is an active threat against the very life—it makes the body a prepared breeding place for disease.

It is part of Nature's plan for human safety that in many cases where the blood is impure or corrupt she sets a sign on the body in proof of the corrupt current that is flowing through the veins. Scrofula with its disfiguring sores and scars, eczema with its irritation, salt-rheum, tetter, erysipelas, bells involve and other cruntions are only ils, pimples and other eruptions are only boils, pimples and other cruptions are only the outward signs of the impurity of the blood. But often in the earlier or simpler stages of the blood's impurity there are no outward signs of this condition; only dull, languid, sluggish feelings, which are com-monly attributed solely to the sluggishness

Judge Parker Will Go to a Mountain Club in the Catskills for a Couple of Days.

President Hawes, of the Jefferson Slob. One of Judge Parker's Visitors Yesterday - Urges a Speaking Campaign in the West,__

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 13.-Judge Parker has determined to take a rest from politics for a couple of days, and to that end will go to a mountain club in the Catskills to spend to-morrow and Monday. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Parker. Judge and Mrs. Parker expect this

It is Judge iParker's purpose to eliminate politics upon that occasion, but plans have already been laid to hold a public reception there so that Western Democrats will be able to make his acquaintance.

Harry B. Hawes, president of the Jefferson Club, of St. Louis, and a leader in the Missouri Democracy, called at Rosemount to-day and endeavored to get a promise from Judge Parker that he would visit St. Louis during the campaign. He said Judge Parker had not named a date to go to St. Louis, but the outcome of the visit was perfectly satisfactory. Mr. Hawes attended the notification ceremonies at Rosemount on Wednesday, and after the meeting Judge Parker

After returning to New York, Mr Hawes talked with National Chairman Taggart and other members of the national committee concerning the campaign in the West. He said here to-day that if he had an influence he would use it to make this a "Speaking Campaigh." He believes the party is in a good position to go before the country.

Accompanying your letter was a copy of the Life of Thomas Jefferson, which you advise me was sent as a further mark of respect.

I accept with pleasure the Life of Jefferson which you present in their behalf, and am glad to know that your league believes in the prin ciples of government as enunciated by him. INTELLIGENCE OF ANIMALS Remarkable Results Reached by a German Scientist in Educating an Orloff who has for a long time made investigations of the intelligence of animals, has reached results in educating an Orloff stallion that cause amszemen among scientific men and psycholo gisis. The horse, besides adding, sub-tracting, multiplying and dividing sums, does examples involving seve ral of those operations and finds square numbers, and not only repeats what is taught but solves fresh problems put to him by examiners in the absence of his master, showing a grasp of the principles of arithmetic. The stallion also forms little sentences, remembers them next day, and discriminates twelve colors and shades, giving their corresponding names. The animal distinguishes musical tones, indicating where they are situated on the chromatic scale, and picks out discords, designating which to omit in order to restore harmony. The horse communicates by a system of hoof beats, representing the alphabet. Prof. Von Osten affirms that the horse is as well educated as a boy who has gone to school for the same number of years, and the professor desires that a commission of specialists be selected to take the horse under observation for four weeks.

This probably will be done with the view of determining whether the conventional idea is true, that animal in-stinct and human intelligence are esentially different.

DITCH DIGGING MACHINE

A Labor Saving Device of Especially Valuable Character. A New Orleans engineer has applied for patents covering an excavating machine designed especially for digging ditches for pipe and main laying for sewerage and drainage work. It has been submitted to several of the leading local engineers, who have declared it to be practical and mechanically sound in principle.

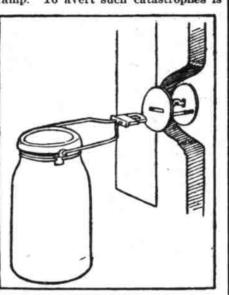

The engine and digging and excavating machinery are all on one car, which runs on a track over the line of the ditch to be dug. Sliding stanchions, which can be fixed at the depth reoutred, run down the inside of the side framework of an extension at the rear of the motor section of the vehicle. There are two of these stanchions on each side. Between the two nearest the body of the vehicle extends an end-Yess chain of chill point steel picks, with slanting knives among the picks, which work in channel bearings. This cutting appliance operates perpendicularly down. The other pair of stan-chions carry an endless chain of fourteen inch scoop buckets, which pick up the earth or other material cut, the buckets rising between the two systems of stanchions and dumping the ma terial behind. There it is caught by a carrier of adjustable length.

At the bottom the stanchions are braced by a sheet steel hopper, the edge of which is on a perpendicular line with the descending picks, so that the picks work continually against a straight wall of earth. The material as it is cut is carried by the picks into the body of the hopper and forced into power end of the rear stanchions. The excavation at the starting point may be made either by hand or by the machine itself cutting directly down. When the cut is at the right depth the stanchions are pinned and the automatic propelling connections made When this is done the steel hopper is fixed under the stanchion ends so that a smooth, clean bottom as well as smooth sides of the cut is guaranteed. With the propelling connections on the car may be made to travel at greater or less speed, according to the hardness of the material cut. A part of the propulsion apparatus consists of drum and cable, and in the event of the picks striking any unusually hard material, such as rocks or stumps there is an automatic release for the drum and cable, so that the pull against the wall of the cut is instantly relieved.

the business of the device we have here presented, the inventor's idea being that the bottle shall be securely attached to the door in such a manner that it can be easily removed by a person inside the house, but cannot be taken by a passerby.

The lock consists of two slotted plates for opposite faces of the door, with a spring hook between the plates. When the loop formed at the end of the bale on the bottle is inserted in the outer plate the hook rises and then falls into the opening, where it remains, securely locking the bottle until the householder lifts the hook from the inside, removing the bale from the slotted plate, and carries the bottle of milk into the

When a man has met with bad luck it helps him very much to bear the misfortune to have a kind word of sympathy even if it is not coupled with substantial financial help. About the meanest man in the world is he who will take advantage of his neighbor's trouble to say that he has got just what he deserves.

Taken as a whole, the native American hates to milk a cow, and the principal thing which operates to keep the dairy business within its present limitations is the difficulty of employing men to do this work. As for American girls and women, nine out of ten of them would never for a moment think of such a thing.

If your small boy shows a natural aptitude for any particular line of honorable employment you just encourage and educate him along that line, no matter what it may be. The attempt of parents to make their boys take up lines of occupation for which they have no native liking is the primary cause of no end of misfits in business

We should not go to law with a neighbor if it could possibly be avoided. It is far better to adjust differences without recourse to law, even if the neighbor does think he has got the best of the deal. It is very rare that any sort of satisfaction is obtained as the result of going to law aside from that of feeling if you win that you have beaten your opponent.

The use of commercial fertilizers, like the center of population, is constantly moving westward. The western boundary of the territory where the use of such fertilizers is common is now on the line between Ohio and Indiana. From this line the westward growth will be more slow, for the reason that the soils of the Mississippi alley are naturally more fortile those of the east.

A DRAMATIC INCIDENT.

The Climax of Banks' Night at a Mas querade Ball.

When Banks, who had been married only a few months, went home and told his wife he had accepted an invitation to a bachelor dinner he expected her to object. Instead she wrged him to go.

The dinner over, one of the party remembered that the Arion ball was being given and proposed that they all go. The proposition was accepted, but not without hesitation on the part of Banks. Once at the ball, however, Banks became as gay as the gayest. His scruples were forgotten, and he enjoyed himself to the limit until he saw in the gay crowd a woman who seemed strange ly familiar. She was masked, but she wore the costume his wife lately had purchased for an approaching private masquerade ball. He could swear to the costume. It suddenly dawned on Banks that this really was his wife, whom he had supposed to be home asleep. The woman was leaning on the arm of a tall stranger, who appeared to be devoted to her. To make certain of his suspicions Banks passed the domino and placed himself so that the couple must pass close to him. On they came, arm in arm, chatting, but when the woman caught sight of Banks she started like a guilty thing and, dropping the man arm, fled.

Banks hurried after her, and when he finally cornered her she cowered down on a seat and, unable to utter a word, extended her hand as if begging for mercy.

"Forgive me," she pleaded, "and promise you"— Before she had completed the sentence Banks tore the mask off her face. Then he gasped. The woman was his wife's maid. She had purloined the costume of her mistress and worn it to the ball.

Banks did not tell his wife, be-cause she might inquire why he was at the ball.—New York Press. Her Identification Mark. A charmingly dressed young lady with a certain knowing air about her was seen to enter a Chestnut street bank the other day. The writer was just behind and, having bustness at the same financial institution, followed this attractive daughter of Eve. She hurried to the first window, only to be told to take her place in line. As she had entered the building first, the writer allowed her to take his position. The lady showed a certain amount of impatience owing to the delay in getting to the head of the line, but once she had the paying teller's attention she offered him a check.

"But," said the officer, "you must get some one to identify you."
The lady looked at him a moment, but a solution soon presented itself to her, and she replied: "Oh, certainly; you can identify me by this mole under my lip."

And when she left that window after five minutes of useless argument her face had lost that charining smile which it originally wore. -Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Pastor and the People. Take the whole range of activity and amusement which has within generation swept into the various denominations under the name of "the institutional church." In response to whose initiative did that present itself? Pastors were, as a rule, averse to it or dreaded it-often opposed it openly. But it en-tered church life resistlessly. Imagine a clergyman now trying to put a veto upon the manifold social and secular work that shelters itself today in the churches. He would find that there is a power not him-selfthat makes for it. That is only an instance of the tides that rise and fall about him without his vo-lition.—Rollo Ogden in Century.

He Was Warned. "They say," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Mr. Faddlethwaite, who used to belong to our church, has become an agnostic." "Is that so? Josiah used to take his lunch at the same place he did downtown, and he says he often warned him that he'd get it if he didn't give up eatin' so fast."—Chicago Record-

- Raleigh Post, Aug. 12th: A notable resolution regarding the disposition of the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad was passed by the North Carolina State Farmers' Alliance, in session at Hillsboro the past three days. It is to the effect that whereas it seems that the railroad systems of the State will at no distant date be in the hands of foreign corporations working together for a practical monopoly, the Governor should neither sell or lease the A. & N. C. road, but it should be extended to Henderson or Norlina by the use of convict labor, thereby making connection with the North and Northwest and assuring the development of Beaufort as a sea port. The resolution declares also that the alliance would not shut its eyes to any abuses that exist in the present management, but would urge stricter supervision of its affairs on the part of the peo-ple and the State officials.

A PERTINENT QUERY.

Dne Question That a Certain Man Will Ask His Wife No More.

There is a young wife in Baltimore who naturally enough prides herself upon the trim daintiness of her shoes, and in order to live up to her reputation for small hands and feet she very properly refuses to purchase footwear that would warrant the phrase "as casy as an old shoe" on first wearing. There is a period of what is termed "breaking in" her shoes, and her husband's unfeeling habit on such occasions has been to cheerfully inquire, "Why don't you get shoes to fit you?"

A happened that last week the husband bought a pair of new shoes and, as he expressed it, "got fooled on the number." Of course his wife never "got fooled on the number:' she made mistakes with malice aforethought, but, anyway, there were days of woo in that flat and nights of profanity and calls for old slippers and hot foot baths, all of which that woman bore with heavenly meekness and silence.

The other day, however, her liege lord announced that he was going to break those shoes in or die; he was going to wear them to his office and trust to the excitement of business duties to divert his mind from any possible discomfort he might experience. The wife humbly suggested that he take an old pair of shoes along in case of emergency, but he scorned her remarks and de-

Three hours later an office boy appeared at her home with a laconic message to send down the oldest, biggest and easiest masculine footgear the house afforded. The request was complied with promptly, but accompanying the parcel was a delicately perfumed note containing the tenderly solicitous query, "Why don't you get shoes to fit you?"-Baltimore Sun.
