WE refer our readers to the advertisement o. Messrs. CHURCH & DUPONT, No. 409 Broadway, New York. The 'Blood Food,' is one of the greatest medicines of the age, and is rapidly driving out of the market all the quack nostrums of modern times. Its efficacy is so great, and its superiority so justly acknow-ledged, that it is found difficult to supply the immense and increasing demand for the article. Dr. Eaton's celebrated 'Infantile Cordial,' is a medicine prepared by a regular physician of eminence in his profession, and which commends itself to those only who can appreciate it."-Apalachicola, Flor. Vicissitudes of Fumilies .- Among other in teresting facts mentioned in a review in the London Quarterly, of Sir Bernard Burke's work on this subject, it is stated that the heir of the ancient and illustrious house of De Courcey was discovered in a hardy seaman, sailing near a cen-tury ago out of the harbor of Newport, Rhode Island; and at a later period the legitimate owner of the immense estates of the Grosvenors was claimed to have been found in a poor farmer of

New York, who, however, never inherited. We have no doubt that in our own country, as in England, many instances of family changes could be found quite as striking. One of these, which has been mentioned to us, is remarkable and suggestive in a high degree. The Rev. John Points, the late gifted Rector of the St. John's Episcopal Church, in Richmond, Virginia, was a direct descendant of Oliver Cromwell, and mouldering in the same Richmond soil, in Hollyhood Cemetery, are the remains of an aged lady, Miss to this country to escape the vengeance of the Protector. Here was a decendant of the inde-pendent Cromwell, an able and respected member of the Episcopal Church, whilst, on the other hand, the descendants of the Old Cavalier became so thoroughly republicanized that not less than thirteen of them bore military and naval commissions in the war of the Revolution. And in the Virginia soil, so remote from the theatre or that furious strife which once rocked England to its centre, the ashes of those who sprang from the chief contestants, from the Protector and the Guardsman, the pursuer and the pursued, sleep in fraternal neighborhood and peace.

Shakespeare on the Pennsylvania Election -It is said that you can find a quotation in Shakes-peare to suit any event, and Mr. Hosmer, of Toledo, cites the following to show that he had the late Pennsylvania election in his eye:

We have the heart's blood of the House of Lancaster! Who else than Buchanan was intended by the James of Lancaster, resign thy crown! Thou hast deceived me-Here behold the pale ashes of the House of demand.

And then inimitable Sir John Falstaff, in the fullness of his heart, exclaims-Buck! Buck! I would I could wash myself of the Buck! And of the Douglas, what, than this moment, did the great bard point to, when he exclaimed, Douglas is discomfited? -Or when he made Douglas say, I am the Douglas fatal to all those

We shall see how she proceeds: "Now Patrick, my honey, will you come back?"

"No, Margaret, I won't come back." "And won't you come back for the love of the children?" "Not for the love of the children, Margaret."

"Will you come back for the love of myself?" "Niver at all. 'Way wid ye." Margaret thought she would try another in-ducement. Taking a pint bottle of whiskey from her pocket, and holding it up to her truant husband she said:

"Will you come for the drop of Whiskey?" "Ah, me darlint," said Patrick, unable to withstand such temptation. "It's yerself that'll always bring me home agin—ye has such a winning way wid ye, I'll come, Magaret."

Margaret declares that "Patrick was reclaimed by moral suasion!" A Dog Story .- The Akron Beacon tells the following "dog tale:" In the pleasant town of F-, in New Engand, lived a family who being of a different religious persuasion, usually attended the sole village "meeting house" indeed, but with no very strict punctuality. They had a pet dog who much more regularly heeded "the sound of the church going bell," and with or without the family, every Sunday seated himself in the family pew.

Among the preachers whose relation to the pastor were such as to entitle him to an occasional exchange of pulpits, was the Rev. Mr. C., an exceedingly heavy, prosy, dull preacher.

On one occasion the family preferred to remain refusing to follow. On arriving at the church the lady discovered the reason why the dog staid at home. The Rev. Mr. C. preached, and one sermon from him was as much as the dog could endure in one day.
