[NO. 974.]

THE CONSEQUENCES OF DISUNION. In a speech delivered during the late campaign by Robert E. Scott of Virginia, the results of secession or disunion were concisely, and we have no doubt correctly, stated as follows:--

"If this Union be dissolved, I believe in no human power capable of re-forming it. I believe in no practicability of establishing upon its ruins an enduring Southern Confederacy; between our border States, and the gulf States, there exist South American republics, we may read in advance our own. A state of revolution will become our normal condition; we shall have wars, we shall have anarchy. The peaceful citizen will be converted into the soldier, his house into a barrack, his harvest field into a battle field, and his substance will be consumed by taxes. We shall exchange the ballot box for the cartridge box." "We may be asked, what the southern states ought to do in the event of the election of Lincoln? With more courage than Mr. Breckinridge, who that becomes every one who addresses the public or affects to represent a party, I answer that they ought not to think of secession. That will afford no remedy for the wrong complained of, but prove an aggravation. We claim a just participation in the common territories, and because that is temporarily denied to us, the plan proposes an abandonment altogether. If we are ready for the abandonment why not make it in the union of Law and Equity for Cumberland County, be held on the First Monday in February A. D. 1861, and that published in the Town of Faratteville. section and to be made, in time, the seats of free states, will it not be better to have them confederated, rather than foreign states, friendly instead of hostile? Will it not be better to have them bound to us by the strong bonds of a common constitution and a common union?" "If secession be discarded as inadmissable, still the question recurs what ought the southern states to do in the event of Lincoln's election? I answer, unhesitatingly, abide by the government compact, claim its fulfilment and make the overthrow of the government the condition of refusal.

Any substanial aggression upon Southern rights will, most certainly, unite in resistance the them into revolution for the causes now existing If Lincoln be elected it will prove a great shock This arrangement, it is believed, will greatly advance the neefulness of the Institution.

M. C. McNAIR.

M. C. McNAIR. the issue and trust to the returning sense of a sober second thought."

"At Cincinnati, in 1856, the platform of the party, touching the territorial question, was purposely couched in ambiguous phrase to admit of a double interpretation, with the agreement that it should be referred to the Supreme Court, when a case might arise, to settle the difficulty. If the court should be of opinion that the power over slavery was a proper function of a territorial legislature, the Southern wing of the party was to give its adhesion to the doctrine of Squatter Sovereignty, which they tell us now is equivalent to the surrender of Southern rights. That was confessed to last winter in the Senate by the leading men of the party. To secure party integrity and party success, they were willing, in 1856, to bargain and extending from the River into the Sand-hills. This tract is about equally divided into River-ridge, Swamp and Sand-hill Land. About 80 acres adjoining the River are cleared and produce well. There are good whether it is denied by the one department of the Government or the other? Why dissolve the Union if the legislative department of the Government prescribes the exclusion, and submit quietly if the exclusion be prescribed by the judicial department? When did the democracy, especially its Southern wing, come to venerate so strongly the judgments of the federal courts? In times past they discarded altogether the claim of the judicial department to settle disputed questions of political law; when the Supreme Court was adorned by the virtues of Marshal and its adjoining the land belonging to the estate of George judgments illustrated by his wisdom, they repu-wilcox, dec'd, and lying three miles South from Car-diated its authority. It is not opposition to the dogma of squatter sovereignty, for country, pleasant neighborhood, and within a half a that they bargained to submit to; it is not veneration to the authority of the court, for that they have too often despised; the motive lies deeper and is to be searched for in other channels. For twelve years the XPECTING to be absent from the State until the Federal party held sway and the principal offices I middle of next Summer, say till July, 1860, I have were filled by federalists. That party suffered defeat in the election of Mr. Jefferson and official incumbents gave place to others of the opposite politics, until in time the judicial department felt the influence of the change. The contest was brave, the struggle severe, but there escaped not from the lips of the defeated party, any wing of it, one sentiment of disloyalty to the 6500 ACRES OF PINE LAND FOR SALE, lying in one body on the Ohoopie River, in Tatt-nall County, Ga., price moderate, terms easy.
