

FAYETTEVILLE.

THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 30, 1861.

THE NEWS.—We have still no mails from Virginia. But last night and this morning the Telegraph has brought us very interesting information...

THE YANKEE TRUTH-TELLER.—Column after column of boasted successes in Virginia and Georgia fills the Yankee papers...

STATE AND COUNTY DEBTS.—Of all men, Mr. Holden should be the last to discourage our people by exaggerated statements of the debts of the State and counties...

IN THE STANDARD MR. HOLDEN SAYS:—The debt of North Carolina is by this time nearly thirty millions of dollars.

strengthen the arms of the really true-hearted and brave.

"What then have we gained?" asks the Standard. The inquiry comes too late. It was a very proper one when Mr. Holden was preaching secession, and was worthy of consideration even on the 20th of May 1861...

"There can be no peace without a treaty, and there can be no treaty without commissioners appointed to make it," says the Raleigh Standard. So there can be no treaty without yankee commissioners as well as Confederate commissioners...

The Standard knows that President Davis desires peace, and that there is but one way in which a treaty can be made, viz by a negotiation between commissioners regularly appointed by the two governments...

Virginia Raiders via Wilmington, Goldsboro and Raleigh. While the Southern gentlemen who, in pursuit of orders, tried to reach Richmond by the Danville route, we learn the following particulars...

A sergeant of Jackson's Brigade seized a shell when the fuse was lighted, and threw it from the pit in which it fell. He was promoted on the field by Jacob to a Lieutenant, but modestly declined to accept it...

From the Virginia Campaign.—WILMINGTON, June 29.—The Journal here received the following private source, the Richmond Enquirer of Monday, June 27...

While the attention of the country is attracted to the ravages of Gen. Grant and Sherman, there has been very quietly organizing one or more powerful naval expeditions against certain Southern ports, which will be heard from before the summer is over...

Eight near Salem.—Information, believed to be reliable, was received on Friday evening that Gen. Early had defeated Hunter and his raiding party, near Salem, on the 20th, capturing two pieces of artillery and taking several hundred prisoners...

The Yankee question in the yankee Congress.—The yankee congress (says the Goldsboro State Journal) has rejected the bill authorizing an amendment to the Constitution for the total abolition of slavery in the United States...

BONDS TO THE SOLDIERS.—A letter from a gentleman of high position and intelligence says:—"I am very much pleased with your suggestion in Monday's Observer about issuing Bonds to the soldiers—with no other object, to effect insurance against repudiation. The premium would be high, but we can well afford to pay it to secure us against the loss of all."

More of the Georgia Battle.—Great Slaughter of the Rebels.—MARIETTA, June 28.—The severe punishment inflicted upon the enemy yesterday by Gen. Hardee and Loring has rendered them very quiet to-day.

Walker's Division skirmished with great heroism. 9 of his men were bayoneted in their rifle pits, while his officers actually cut down the enemy with bayonet wounds, while their clothes were thoroughly perforated.

A severe cavalry fight occurred near Nuttowsky C. H., on Tuesday, between Wilson's and Deane's regiments, and continued from 2 o'clock till dark. The enemy retreated under cover of darkness. Three prisoners were captured and brought in. Enemy's loss many in killed and wounded; ours small.

Headquarters of the Army, June 29.—The Secretary of War, Gen. W. H. F. Lee, received the following report from the South Sea Cavalry which advanced along the South Sea Railroad. He had a skirmish on the 22d near Danville, C. H., and the next day struck their camp near Lee's front at Danville, Whites, cutting into and getting possession of the road by which they were moving towards Nuttowsky C. H.

Gen. Hampton reports that the enemy's cavalry advanced against the 1st and 2nd Cavalry and severely defeated them. He attacked and drove them from their works pursuing them until 9 p. m., to within two miles of Lynch City C. H. They left their dead on the field and along their route. Great credit is due to Gen. Hampton and his command for their heroic conduct.
