

OBSERVER.

FAYETTEVILLE.

MONDAY EVENING, AUGUST 8, 1864.

A GLORIOUS VICTORY.—The election that has just occurred in this State is in all its aspects the most remarkable political incident of the age. Mr. Holden, who had undoubtedly exercised great influence in the State, and who profanely claimed to have the power "to kill and make alive,"—a sort of North Carolina Warwick, the "setter up and puller down of kings,"—having traded for two years on Gov. Vance's political capital, concluded that he was strong enough to kill Vance and make alive Holden. At a period of deep depression in our national condition, when reverse after reverse had shaken the faith and made cowards of many and traitors of some, Holden availed himself of the universal desire for peace to make the attempt at self-elevation on which his heart had long been set. Vance standing firm as a rock, Holden virtually abandoned the cause of his country, and openly arrayed himself against its National and State Administrations. But he miscalculated his own influence, and utterly misunderstood the feeling of the people of North Carolina. Their desire for peace was unmingled with any slightest thought of "the constitution as it is and the Union as it was." Their determination was and is to have independence and an eternal separation from the yankees. They had no idea of encouraging the enemy to invade the interior of the State in search of a Union sentiment, and utterly condemned the publication in the Standard of the various Editorials and other articles which denounced their own authorities rather than those of the yankees, and the withholding of the accounts of our triumphs. Behold the result! The imaginary Samson, who had laid his head in the lap of the Delilah, Ambition, finds himself shorn of all his strength, abandoned by even his friends, and so prostrated that he can never hope to attain that "Position" which has been the cherished aim of his later years. The moral should be laid to heart by ambitious men. To a calm observer, it would seem that Mr. Holden had enough to satisfy any reasonable man's desires. A few years ago he had become unquestionably the most influential man in the State. His central position, and the skill with which he managed his Press, combined with an unwearied assiduity in intrigue, enabled him to mould public opinion so far as to reduce the old Whig party to a minority and to elevate the Democratic to a majority. Then stepped forward self-determined to clutch the highest honors in the gift of the party he had built up, and then crossed his path the many others whose eyes covered the same prizes, or whom he had offended. They defeated him. He turned upon his party and pursued its leaders with a venom even surpassing that which he had so long exhibited against the Whigs. The latter were of course delighted—they encouraged the mutual assaults of their old opponents, taking the side, naturally enough, of the renegade. This led to so much of association and assimilation, that Mr. Holden appears to have fancied that the old Whigs whom he had so deeply injured and so bitterly abused would do more to feed his ambition than his late party. It was an unreasonable miscalculation, not justified by the lights of either sacred or profane history, or a proper understanding of human nature. The results of all these blunders and the rewards of all this insatiable ambition, may be seen in the votes of the Army and the people. Nothing like it was ever known. The public have for months been pledged with bold assurances that everybody was going for Holden, and he would certainly be elected. Individuals were mentioned by name as his supporters, but they almost invariably repelled the imputation. Counties were then claimed by the score, and these have all spoken their emphatic contradiction, not excepting Wake. Even down to the morning of the election, Holden assured his readers that if the people would but vote they would reverse the array majority for Vance and elect him (Holden). Did he really believe that? If so, let him no longer boast of his facilities for ascertaining public sentiment. If he did not believe it—we need say no more. We need only point to the results. What will be Mr. Holden's next position? Time will tell. We incline to the opinion that he will deny that he was a candidate at all; and shouldn't wonder if some of his friends contend that there is no such person as Holden. The yankees are the people disappointed and mortified at the result. They have flattered themselves that there was a Union party at the South, have considered Mr. Holden as its leader, and looked to this election for fully establishing its predominance in North Carolina, to be followed by other similar exhibitions in other States. They will now see that, according to Lincoln's own admission, "the war is not an error but a crime." Such a victory over Holden is worth several victories in the field. To the character of North Carolina it is of incalculable value. Let us all thank Providence and take new heart for the glorious work before us.

THE ELECTION.—We have already the returns from 35 out of 85 counties, in which Gov. Vance's majority is 20,994. It will be between forty and fifty thousand, against 33,775 two years ago. Holden's entire vote will probably be between ten and fifteen thousand, out of an aggregate vote materially larger than in 1862. Holden has majorities in two counties only—Johnston and Randolph—and a few Holdentites, perhaps 10 or 15, are elected to the Legislature.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE WOUNDED.—Mr. Dawson, of Kentucky, who has been lecturing extensively for the benefit of the wounded Confederate soldiers from Kentucky, will deliver an Address this evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Hospital Association. We have only room to say that the object is one that will commend itself to all, since the Kentucky soldiers are cut off from all relief from home; and that we have seen in our exchange papers the most complimentary notices of the Address itself as a literary treat. Let him have a full audience.

ANOTHER RESURRECTION.—Wiley Beaver of Rowan has come out from the H. O. A. Association, into which he was seduced by Dr. Pink of Concord. He had never acted with it after initiation. Capt John N. Prior, of this place, chief Enrolling officer at Salisbury, was severely injured on the 3d inst. by a violent blow on the head with a stick by a conscript named Cain, who had been arrested and sent to the army. He struck before Capt. Prior was aware of his intention, and then jumped on the cars and was off, but it was felt certainly be arrested. B. Taylor, Co. C. Camp Guard at Salisbury, was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of a comrade. He was from Johnston county, a good soldier and respectable man.

BY TELEGRAPH.

From Petersburg.—Richmond, Aug. 6.—The Evening Whig has the following special dispatch: Petersburg, August 6.—It having been ascertained that the enemy were mining extensively in front of Gen. Grant's Brigade on our centre, it was determined to stop their operations by countermining. Our culverts having been completed the mine was exploded between 6 and 7 o'clock last night, blowing up the enemy's main line and demolishing his mines. The affair was a great success, completely frustrating the objects of the enemy at that point and throwing the troops along his lines into great confusion. No infantry attack was intended or made. Artillery firing along the whole line was very rapid for an hour. A number of the enemy working on their mines and occupying picket stations are believed to have been killed. A few shells were thrown into the city after the explosion. Matters have resumed their usual quiet this morning.

From Georgia.—Atlanta, Aug. 6.—Brisak skirmishing continued throughout yesterday. Last night there was a lively affair near our left. The enemy continues to concentrate forces on our left. About 70 prisoners, including a Captain and Lieutenant, were brought in yesterday. All quiet to day except some sharpshooting. Richmond, Aug. 7.—The following dispatch was received this morning: Atlanta, Aug. 7.—Hon. Jas. A. Seddon: The enemy made two assaults on Finley's and Lewis' Brigades of Bates' Division, Lee's Corps, both of which were handsomely repulsed with loss to them. J. B. Hood, General.

Yankee News.—We had a pleasant interview last evening with a gentleman just arrived from the United States. He gave a most gratifying account of the change in public sentiment with regard to prosecution of the war. In Pennsylvania the reaction in favor of peace is very great; and it is confident, without some unforeseen occurrence arises, that the peace candidate will be triumphantly elected next fall. We are satisfied from data exhibited to us, but which it would not be prudent to publish, that the call of Lincoln for troops will furnish two white men from Maryland to the Confederate armies for use to the Federal.

The Losses of the Enemy.—It was ascertained yesterday, from a letter written by one of the Yankee's commanders, and which reached us, that the loss of the enemy's loss in the fights of Saturday will aggregate between 6,500 and 7,000. As this letter was intended only for the private eye of a friend at the North, it is no doubt correct.—Pet. Express.

B. and O. Railroad.—A private letter to the editors of the Lynchburg Republican, says that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has been effectually destroyed. For a distance of fifteen miles the ties have been burnt and the iron cut in two so as to render it totally unfit for any future use. Fat Maryland Cattle.—Not a few of the well fed, fat cattle of Maryland, captured by General Early's forces, have reached Petersburg, and our troops are now enjoying the luxury of a good beef. Petersburg Express.

We had yesterday the pleasure of seeing in our Office Major W. T. Bennett, of the 3d regiment N. C. T., one of the officers sent on by the Yankees to be placed under the fire of our forts in Charleston, in retaliation for our having quartered a certain number of their officers in the city. Our officers and the Yankee officers were exchanged for each other. Among our exchanged officers are five generals, Col. Stovall, Lieutenants Colonel Farber and Davidson, and Major Ennett were the North Carolina officers selected to be exposed. They were sent from Fort Delaware to Hilton Head and were kept there on board the prison ship Dragoon, and badly treated.—Wilmington Journal.

FOR THE OBSERVER. Messrs. Editors: I cannot resist the temptation of telling you with what enthusiasm Gov. Vance was received in Lumberton on the 30th of July by near 2000 people. I do think every one of that vast assembly cheered him either by a quiet smile of approval, a joyous halloo, or a spontaneous shout and clapping of hands. It was certainly a gala day for us all. The various exclamations of "what a treat was it never append! It is the best of us all," and "the world," &c. surely had Holden been present he would never again send an Extra Standard to good old Robeson. Even non-residents of the State were cheering Gov. Vance. The enthusiasm manifested was certainly sufficient to satisfy the most exacting. It was much ado to control my feelings. I thought several times I should have to give vent in a very un lady-like scream, but as luck would have it I was unable to keep within the prescribed limits. But then let me tell you how the Governor did do us after his announcement: he arose and spoke for a short while (long enough to excite our feelings) very deliberately, and should we fall in love with him we would have it to settle with Mrs. Vance. Pity us poor mortals who had been building such pleasant air castles and had them so ruthlessly blown to the four winds by such a word of spoken with such perfect nonchalance. Pity us, dear friends, could tell you all he said; you would appreciate it with your great patriotism, but I hope some one else will write you a lengthy account of our gifted Governor's speech. I am afraid I will have to subscribe myself as one who has something to settle with Mrs. Vance.

DIED. In this town, Aug. 5th, MARY LANGDON, wife of Lieut. C. B. Cook, and daughter of the late Doyle and Margaret O'Hanlon. (From papers and Wilmington Journal please copy.) On July 30th, yesterday, Miss MARY JOHNS SANDFORD, only child of the late Mr. Thomas Sandford and Mrs. Agnes Sandford, in the 21st year of her age. One of the loveliest and most beloved of our community was thus snatched away from earth and all its attractions. She was generally, indeed, for all we will believe that she had that "reasonable, religious and holy" which consoles the dying moments of those who early unite themselves to the Church of Christ and adorn their profession by a blameless life. The funeral will take place this afternoon, at 5 o'clock, from St. John's Church. At his residence in this County, on the 13th June, after a long and painful illness, Mr. GEORGE MCKINNON, in the 72d year of his age. He was for many years a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. At the residence of Richard H. Cain, in Bladen County, on Sunday evening the 31st July, Mrs. P. DUNDON CAIN, in the 82d year of her age. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." On the 18th April, 1864, in the 35th year of her age, Mrs. CATHARINE A. PATTERSON, wife of William Patterson, of Robeson county. Another of earth's angels has departed her earthly robes, struck by the golden harp and is now rejoicing in the sunlight and smiles of our dear Saviour. Mrs. Patterson was a devoted and affectionate wife, a kind and obedient daughter; as a friend she was obliging and generous; her unassuming social disposition joined with a frank and generous heart made her a welcome visitor at every house; she was a sincere follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, and a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church of Smyrna; such was her meekness and fortitude during her illness which was short but painful, that those who witnessed her christian resignation and the happy frame of mind with which she met her fate—which she knew was coming—that they were constrained to say if they could meet death thus they would not do it. Willing to meet death thus they would not do it. Willing to meet death thus they would not do it. Willing to meet death thus they would not do it. Willing to meet death thus they would not do it.
