L O N D O N, June io.
Extraft of a letter from an Officer of diftinction
Camp, near Valenciennes, Juie 2, 1793.

FROM the Village of St. Sanveur we can approach within 300 yards of Va-lenciennes.-The Enemy feem bufy in repairing the Works, &cc. Oa that fide I believe the principal autack will be made, as the ground is very favourable. On thelett is a Height, which in a great meafure commands the Horaweck, nhich is Hhewifecont manded aud cutiladed from the Eaft hide of Mount Anfin.
We break ground to-night, and I have juft feen the firlt Working party, under the command of Lord Charles Fitzroy, march off.-The Duke of York conimands the Siege. Ferraris, the celebrated Auftrian Engineer, contats it. Moncrieff will, I hope, bave a goond deal to fay, as he has that buitle and activity which is too often wanting in the Germans. From the fituation of the place, which is commanded on every fide, and from every appearance, 1 do not think it will be a tedious bufinefs.
Conde holds out, and will dofo while it has provifions, being totally unattackable. from the exterfive ina $x$ ations and is befides one of the beft and moft regular fortifications in France.

The garrifon of Valenciennes is fuppofed to be about 4 or 5000 , and is faid to be very badly fupplied with munition de guerre. They have killed a great number of horfes, the carcales of which we can perceive round the glacis; a proof they do not ahourd in forage.

If, like uncle Toby, you have mind to carry on the fiege along with us, you will probably find a plan of the town in the nemories of Turcmise or Luxemheurg, hy
 I do, not believe the works have been much adided to fince:
The enemy have juft begun to fire on the working party. They are alio cannonading the Auftrians on mount Anfin, who are likewife at work. Us they have not yet difcovered, and I hope will not till the men are under cover.

Tuefday, June 4 .
We have had two parties oat, but without any lofs. Since writing my with laft, I have examined the heights of Aufin, and the wood on the left of the French, through which Clairiayt attacked them. They had fortified themfelves foftrongly, and thrown fo many obftacles, in the way, that on his firft attack he was beat back, and at laft ficceeded no farther than in getting poffeflion of the wood. The entrenchments on the hill were abandoned by the enemy, on the morning of the 24 th , after the other part of the army had made the ir retreat throtigh Valenciennes. Had he fucceeded at firt, it appears' highly probable, that the whole army would have been fhut up in that town; and doubtlefs that was the grear object of the day. At prefent, they are ${ }^{5 / 5 r e p o r t e d}$ to be day. At prenent, Bouchcain and Civinbray.

Cobourg has crofled tha Scheldt, and his Camp is already placed. The Hanoveriaps occupy the Camp of Famars whtinhegreatef partofilioir troops? One fide the Rupente are three hattalions of Hanoverian Getnadiers, with their left at. Prettwo Regiment their Cavalry, and ment of H Britifh B on the left of Aren ; Auftrian Battafions, extending nearly to Onaing. In front of them the Efterhazi Huffars, and then in the village of St. Sauveur, which covers the right of the whole pofition, two Companies of Croats, and two Free Britalions (viz. O'Dopnel and Melech owfki) whoie out-pofts extend almoft to the glacis of the horn-work. Clairfait invefts all the other fide of the town, each wing extending to the Scheld, and Mowne nearly in the centre.

The utmoft harmony prevails betwes and the Aultrian troops; they feem to 10 upon us with much partiality, and confider us as their old and natural friends. When you confider what has been done before the feafon in which a campaign generally opens, I do not think you can accute them of delay at the fame time it is evident that the rapidity of their fuccefs has put it out of their power to reap every polfible advantage from it. Great reinforcements of wien, artillery and horfes, are on the road, and part of them near at hand.

PETERSBURG, 人pril 23 .

The departure of Count d'Artois is' fixed for Friday next, the 26th. He will proseed to Revel, in order to embark in a finall divifion of frigates, which will conduct him to England. The Emprefs has prefented this Prince with a gold-hilted fword, having on it this infcription-With God, for my King ; a diamond folitaire, fit for being worn as a button to the hat; antsa fmall bafket, containing various artioles of jewellery, deftined to be diftributed as prefents to the perfons of hiscourt, and others who have been in the fervice of h's Royal Highnefs. The Emprefs being defirous of defraying his expenfes in every relpe $\mathfrak{t}$, has made him a prefent alfo of a confiderable fum of moncy. The Emprefs has extended her munificence even to thofe perfons of diftinction who accompanied the Prince, all of whom have received prefents. The object which induces his Royal Highnefs to vifit England is not well known, and perhaps it is not yet fixed : It is probable that the fituation in which he finds affairs in London will direct his future deftination. It appears only that a negotiation is now ort the carpet between the Britifh Court and ours, refpecting a body of land forces to be fuynifhed by Ruffia, for the purpofe of carrying on the common operations againt France. Some days ago Mr. Whitworth, the Englifh Minitter, had a conference on this fubject with the mema conference on this fubject with the members of our cabinet : To-morrow he will have another ; in which it is fuppofed that every thing will be definitively fettled refpeciing the number of men, their deftination, and tranfporsation by-fea, sic.
