"Our Old Rebel Forefathers." In this city a public journal published carefully prepared article on the anniversary of our nation's birth, and in the State of North Carolina, in the year one thousand e ght hundred and sixty nine the people of a part of the United States of America are informed that "we are glad that our people have not welcomed the Fourth of July."

By "we" is meant the editors of the Journal, and "our people" means the small faction of disappointed office-seekers who have had their hopes defered for four more weary years of lazy repining over defeated aspirations for support at the expense of their fellow citizens. All "our people" un derstand fully all the editors of the Journal meant and more. They understand the animus of all the bitter distribes against the government and the land that has been dis graced by giving birth to such vipers. The understand completely how base, how distantiable, and how ignoble it is to revile and insult the government that permitted men to live who had forfeited their right to draw the breath of life on any spot of earth protected by the American ensign. They also understand that no brave man; no bonorable man; no "man" worthy to bear the name will take the oath of amnesty and accept pardon only to curse and injuice the magnanimous victor who withdraws his sword from the throat of a prostrate foe. We pass all the abuse, and much more that is mean and base in the spirit animating the editorial referred to, and only propose to examine the ground pro-slavery traitors have for claiming that any parallel exists between themselves and "our old rebel forefathers."

Tim Journal writer certainly never read the "declaration of independence" made by | ical party lively and makes it grow. Noth- | ber when Messrs. THE main stock in trade of Democratic editors, is what they term dishonest and inefficient management of Radicals. There is a fact which we would commend to their attention. For two years from the close of the war the o'd Democratic leaders had for the most part tue political and financial management of the State. They went out leaving the bonds of the State worth twen- cessity. ty-eight cents on the dollar.
