chical oppessions, and who told the people the contents of the garbage carts of the great cities, we really can't see the point of the joke. On the contrary, we think the inventor of garbage whiskey is doing a good thing for mankind. It takes just about so much whiskey to run the human family any how, and if part of this can be extracted from stuff that was heretofore wasted, it follows as a matter of course that there will be just so much more corn, and rye, and wheat left from which to make bread. "My dear sir," said an enquiring seeker after information of an honest Illinois sucker, "how much corn have you raised?" "Oh, a thouing. sand bushels made into whiskey, besides a right smart sprinkling wasted in bread." Now it is said by the economist, that he is a public benefactor who makes one blade of grass grow where none gew before. If this instances fearful inroads upon the cotton be true, how much more of a benefactor is he who in part at least, supplies an artificial the planters held until recently. The abatewant from material heretofore deemed worthless and saves for the necessaries of man an prevailed in middle Florida for some weeks, article ef consumption heretofore wasted in and hot suns which have followed are resupplying that artificial want, or pernicious viving the hopes of cotton growers. Let us habit. We repeat, therefore, that there is have hot suns and dry weather, and a fair neither point, nor truth in the jokes attempt- orop may yet be realized in that State. ed at the expense of the Chicago inventor of "garbage whiskey." Besides, in any case, THERE 15 much cloquence wasted out what is to become of the "refuse matter" West over the proposition to remove the which he now gathers up and manufactures national capital. It has been estimated into one part whiskey, and the other part that it would cost up ward of $30,000,000 to soap grease-for be it known the process take down, transport and re-erect the magwhich this " refuse matter " is put through, nificent building on Capitol Hill.
