WILMINGTON, N. C., AUGUST 29, 1869.

No BLUNDER was ever more generally condemned, says the Albany Journal, than that made by Mrs. Stowe, in reopening the shameful scandal concerning Lord Byron and his wife. The world does not believe her story. Byron had no sister. His halfsister, Mrs. Leigh, has always enjoyed a good reputation until now. Is it possible that she could have been so infamously that has been fighting Radicalism for the guilty as is now charged, and that Lady Byron, who knew the fact, never whispered it, when she was conniving at every sort of means to punish or degrade her wayward husband, and when the opposing parties were incensed almost to the point of personal collision? The assumption is ridiculous. Yet Mrs. Stowe asks us to believe it upon the unsupported assertion of a maundering old woman, who has nursed her jealousy during nearly half a century. Her story is full of blunders, of historical misstatements, of inaccuracy as to dates. It conflicts in important particulars with known and well established facts. It is nothing better than a romance-a very silly, disgusting and prurient one, at that.

Mrs. Stowe professes that her intention was to vindicate the memory of Lady Byron. Her narrative will have quite the opposite effect. No one can read it without believing that the charge of incest was the hallucination of an insane mind, or the invention of a very wicked one. She says she wanted to estop the circulation of Countess Guiccioli's memoirs. Instead of this, she has advertised the book, before hardly no-There is no conceivable good to be accomplished by Mrs. Stowe's injudicious effortbut vast evil.

The author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Oldtown Folks" might have been engaged in better business than this, of entering the graves of persons who long since passed away, and revamping all the scan dals connected with their lives. Her comments upon the character of Mrs. Leigh, and Lord Byron's daughter, Ada, are in the worst possible taste. It will take her long to recover from the injury she has inflicted upon her own reputation.

THE County Agricultural Society had meeting Wednesday night in this city, and transacted considerable business. Nothing of great public importance however, but we are glad to chronicle the meeting. The only regret we have in the matter is, that so little interest appears to be taken by the farmers. The future welfare of this country depends upon the farmers, and we are all interested therefore in their success. We wish every farmer in the county would become a member of his home Society, and build up one that would not only be a pride to them, but of great and substantial benefit. It is of vital importance, and as we said above, we heartily regret that so little interest is taken in it. In November we will have the District Fair, in which we hope every farmer in New Hanover county will participate. Let it be an occasion long to be remembered.

It is of small importance who is Governor of this State, compared to the absolute necessity of improvement in our agriculture. We cannot afford to cultivate land upon the loose principle of long ago, we must, to compete with other markets, adopt all their labor saving machinery. If we could make cotton before the war and sell for small figures at a profit, we must be able to do it now, and our only way is to cultivate more acres with the same number | houses a moment is now hoarded as a miser of hands. If the farmers will come together this fall, compare notes and see what machinery has been used and the value of it, each man may be able to double his crop the coming year. If he does that, at the same outlay of this year, he will have the substantial aid he needs. We must bring money into the country. To do this, we must have something to sell, made or raised here. Will our farmers reflect?

Acting Secretary Richardson has issued an order declaring that "the Department having, for a series of years, had its attention called to the practice of officers, when corresponding with prominent citizens upon personal matters, of soliciting the exercise of their official influence with the Department to the accomplishment of private purposes of the officers, it has become necessary for it, in the maintenance of its own digdiscipline in the service, to put a check to these unbecoming and unwarranted acts on the part of the officers. The Department, that, from this time, all such interference with its prerogatives must cease; and if, at any further period, any officer shall be found guilty of an infraction of this order, it will be considered ample cause for dismissal from the service."

A LETTER has been received at the White House from Paris, says the National Republican, written by an enterprising French gambler, who evidently believes the President has authority equal to the Emperor He asks the President to issue a charter in her favor. Parties, too, whose mutual authorizing him to establish a gambling society is expected to form nine-tenths of house in New York eity, to be regularly licensed, and placed under the surveillance of the police, to contribute a portion of its profits to the Government, and to be managed in all respects similar to the great gambling houses of Baden-Baden and Weis-Baden. The name of this ambitious Frenchman is Botineau,

THE Western Sentinel published a few sensible remarks by mistake during the absence of the editor, from a speech of Vice-President Colfax. A correspondent is very much surprised to see such articles in the Sentinel and calls the editor to task. And now the editor comes down, apologises and shows his hand." He says:

* * * * It is true that negro suffrage is a present fact. We opposed it, but because it is a fact, we are not prepared to turn round and eat our own words and say we are glad of it, and huzzah for any man or party that proposes to make it perpetual.

We stick to the old Conservative party, past four years, and we will substitute in place of opposition to negro suffrage, a plank in our platform advocating the Repu-diation of the Public Debt, both State and National.

The people are unable to pay the taxes that are new imposed upon them, and it is either Repudiation or Ruin.

We are aware that the Copperheads of the North, calling themselves " Democrats" preach Repudiation, but now that it is being openly declared to be the "Conservative" policy we want Republicans to know it. Repudiation! That's their new dodge now, Repudiation both State and National. Ruination to the people because the men who forced the State out of the Union cannot again rule it.

We believe in paying our just debts, and Rufus Garriss, paying them too as we agreed. When we said gold, let us pay in gold. The only Repudiation we favor is the repudiation of such men as the editor of the Sentinel got at the late elections.

Gettysburg.

Our readers are aware of the meeting at the above battlefield during the past week to mark the various positions of the differticed. It will now sell by tens of thousands. ent corps of both armies. All the leading Confederate officers were invited to be present to assist, and to meet the officers of the Federal army on the old ground. Most of the Confederate officers declined under various pretexts to be present, but the work went on of course.

We cannot say that we blame the Southern officers in declining to be present, though the invitation was made in good faith and the positions they held and the movements made, if properly recorded would have made General Lee's reputation greater than it is, if that were possible, but Gen. Lee's ideas that it is better to cover up the wounds and not perpetuate them in granite monuments, Harriss & Howell, is not to our taste. We want the monument Joseph C. Hill. D. P. The Water Famine in New Jersey. It seems that several points in New Jersey are just now severely suffering from a scarcity of water, and in some places, it is not only water that has given out, but food also. At Englishtown, in Monmouth county, the absence of any rain for four or five weeks has resulted very seriously. All the wells are dry or nearly so, and the water that ordinarily would not be kept in the would his money bags. Mr. Smock, the hotel keeper, states that if the present drought continues the farmers are in danger of losing not only their cattle, but the greater portion of the corn and cereals. At Jamesbury and Roadhall, in the same county, a similar state of affairs exists. Yesterday at Morristown the good people were greatly alarmed in consequence of its having gone abroad that the reservoir which mostly supplies the town had run dry. In this case however, it is not altogether the prevailing drought that caused the stoppage of supplies, but the alleged reckless waste of water by the employees of the Morris and Essex ments are reduced, as well as Pain and Inflama-Important to Revenue Marine Officers. by the employees of the Morris and Essex railroad. The locomotives have always procured water from the reservoir. The people have begun to hunt up all the old wells that had been disused for years past.

nity and the promotion of good order and selling reserved seats at theatres was intro member the going early, and pushing and crowding which used to be necessary to secure a good place when a favorite play was therefore, informs the officers of the service performing. Every one sees and admits the that, from this time, all such interference superiority of the present over the former custom, and all attempt to go back to the old fashion would be exceedingly unpopular. The question now suggests itself why the same improvement should not be to railway travel. Why should not the purchase of a ticket entitle the purchaser to a specified seat in a specified car, instead of being merely a permission to join a general scramble with a thousand rivals? In the case of a lady traveling alone such a measure would be an immense relief. Now, she may enter a car and pass from one end to the other, looking in vain for the accommo dation to which her ticket entitles her, unless some chivalrous man gives up his place the pleasure of a trip, are frequently separated, and their comfort entirely destroyed. All this would be avoided by numbering
