Application of Potash.

It is commonly urged against mixing ashes or other alkaline tertilizers with barnyard manures, that such mixture liberates and wastes the ammonia. This is a sufficient objection against composting in the barnyard. where the amenonia, if liberated, is pretty sure to be wasted. But in applying manures directly to the seil. Weeds on Walks.

Where garden walks have been properly made, and the weeds never allowed to seed, harol-weeding after a shower of rain, and rolling directly the surface will bear the roller, are in many places practiced with success. But in gardens where gravel walks are extensive, and, as sometimes happens, the gravel is of a coarse, shingly character, which, if disturbed or broken up, involves some difficulty in getting a firm, smooth surface again, a destructive agent of some kind becomes desirable. Almost everything that destroys the weeds takes the bright red color out of the gravel; but apart from such drawbacks, walks may be kept clean cheaply by the use either of salt or sulphuric or muriatic acid (marine acid or spirits of salt).

These little creatures have good memories and never forget their friends. If an ant be taken out of an ant-hill, kept for two months and then put back into the same hill, it will be received; but if it be placed in another, it will be killed.

In Texas there is found the "agricultural" ant. These clear a place from weeds and grass for about two feet around their house. They then drop the seed of a kind of grass, whose gran they like very much. The ants take care of the young blades, protecting them from insects, and when the grain is ripe carry it to their homes. But what is more peculiar, if the store of food-hould become damp during a rain, it will all be carried out on the first surmy day and dried, and then brought back.
