STORY OF SILENT JOE

In the year 1807 a young man named Charles Miller left Hartford, Conn., for the west. At Buffalo he fell in with a man calling himself Henry Davison, and the two traveled to Chicago together, Miller had about $300 in each with him, while Davison had only a few shillings former intended going to Colorado, while the latter, who said he was a butcher, decided to remain in Chicago and work at his trade for a time. They took quarters together in a cheap hotel, and, to further reduce expenses, they occupied one bed:

been together only a few days."

While Miller was rolling up his money

Davison got up and passed behind him. All of a sudden Miller lost consciousness. In the summer of 1869 the writer was one of the inhabitants of a mining camp Colorado. Ose day a tenderfoot reached our camp. However a veritable scarcerow u general appearance. He hadn't a shilling in money nor an ounce of outlit, and when we came to anestion him it baked." He gave his many as Joe, but he had nothing else to teil. When asked what his other name was, where he came from, how he reached us, &c., he booked of men to turn a chap like that loose to of stavation. We made him wash up, put on the garments we contributed, and fter he had got a square meal he looked
