Senator Quay has been making things as lively as possible for President Harrison this week. He is understood to have reminded the President of many sins, both of omission and commission, that he would have much preferred forgetting.

Malone's friends here are quietly hedging. Now they say that he has had no idea of being elected but only went into the campaign in order to get absolute control of the party machinery so that he could fix up the delegation to the next national republican nominating convention.

The International Maritime Conference met here Wednesday and organized by electing Admiral Franklin President. Delegates are present from every maritime country in the world except Portugal.

The freed return by Senator Maclinson of the money drawn on an illegal reciting of his pension has created a commotion in the Pension Office. There are forty or more of the employees in that office that have received quite large sums of money as arrears on their retired pensions, and all these are anxiously inquiring whether there is any law to make them disgorge and whether in the event of their refusal their pensioned salaries can be held by the government.
