THE ANNUAL meeting of the North Carolina Press Association was held last week at Durham, and it was an occasion that will never be forgotten by those who were so fortunate as to be present. Every member of the association who attended this meeting anticipated a most enjoyable visit to Durham, but all admitted that their most sanguine anticipations were more than realized. They had heard much, of the vast business enterprises, of the indomitable energy and the wonderful prosperity of that world renowned town, but when those editors went there and saw for themselves they all exclaimed, as did the Queen of Sheba, "the half was not been told."

But it was not only the material prosperity of Durham that the editors admired, and were highly gratified at beholding, but they were fairly captured by the moral and social environments that surrounded that magical city. They were the delighted recipients of a hospitality that was as cultured as it was cordial, as it was open hearted and princely in its magnificence. Certainly those of the craftsmen of the writing who enjoyed the great pleasure of being the guests of North Carolina's great commonwealth will ever delight to chronicle Durham's fame.

On the first night of the meeting a banquet was given the editors by the Commonwealth Club, an organization of which Durham has just cause to be proud. This banquet was notable not only for the rich viands there spread but especially for the absence of any intoxicating beverage which was highly creditable to both hosts and guests and a good precedent which the association by a resolution commended for all banquets. The responses to the toasts proved that no liquor was necessary to inspire post prandial orators, for it was generally conceded that the speeches then made were of an unusually high order of excellence and eloquence.

On the second night a public entertainment was given the editors that they will never forget. It was conducted by Mrs. Lucile Southgate, which itself guaranteed its success. This most highly accomplished lady on this occasion fairly eclipsed herself. As an elocutionist, vocalist and pianist she stands quite pre-eminent among the ladies of North Carolina, and it is no wonder that the refined and cultured citizens of Durham are so proud of her. At this entertainment she was assisted and assisted by quite a number of Durham's fair ladies and gallant gentlemen, all of whom acquitted themselves in most creditable manner and where so many reflected such credit on the culture and taste of their town it would be invidious to make comparisons.

Durham's wonderful growth has been concisely known by an array of facts and figures compiled by the Commonwealth Club. In 1870 the census showed a population of 256, in 1880 2,100, and in 1890 nearly 5,000. The amount of capital invested in tobacco factories was $25,000 in 1870, $2,170,000 in 1880, and $4,000,000 in 1890. The number of operatives employed in 1870 was 50, in 1880 500, and in 1890 2,541. The sum paid this year for wages is $368,206. The number of cigarettes manufactured only four years ago (in 1886) was 22,000,000, while last year (1889) the number was 800,000,000. The internal revenue sum of $827,269.54 was paid in one year for revenue stamps. These statistics prove that Durham's prosperity is rapidly increasing, instead of waning, as some persons have pretended to believe. We have not space now to describe, or even to enumerate, the many important industrial institutions of Durham. The two most important are the factories of the Blackwell Tobacco Company and of W. Duke, Sons & Co., both of which have a world wide reputation, the former being the largest smoking tobacco factory in the world, and the latter being the largest cigarette factory. A notice of Durham enterprises would be incomplete without mention of the three excellent papers now published there, and which have done so much to promote the town's prosperity. The Globe dispenses great enterprise in its local laws unjust and oppressive to the special edition issued in compliment to the meeting of the Association.

The proceedings of the Association would not be of any special interest to our readers, and are therefore omitted. They were very harmonious in their character. Not one word was said, or anything done, to hurt the feelings of anyone. The members of the North Carolina Press Association proved themselves to be courteous gentlemen and set an example that we would commend for imitation by other organizations when they hold their meetings. This was the first meeting of the Association that it had been our pleasure to attend in four years and it was certainly a very great pleasure to meet again, and exchange cordial greetings with so many whom we so highly esteemed. This occasion will ever be remembered with the liveliest emotions of pleasure. North Carolina cannot boast of a more patriotic or public spirited body of citizens than are her hard working and self sacrificing editors.

The officers of the Association elected for the next year are as follows: J. P. Caldwell, president; S. A. Ashe, W. W. Jones, Jr., and Robert Haywood, vice presidents; J. B. Sherrill, secretary and treasurer; V. W. Long, H. A. London, T. F. Hildebrand, Josephus Daniels and R. S. Beal, executive committee; E. F. Hilliard, orator; R. T. Wall, poet; and W. E. Murchison, historian. Messrs. H. A. London, Josephus Daniels, A. W. Long and E. C. Beddingfield were elected delegates to the National Editorial Association, which convenes next July at St. Paul, Minnesota.

After the self-congratulations of the convention were over, its members on Saturday went to Morehead City, where they were the guests of Hon. Julian S. Carr, who owns and controls the Atlantic Hotel. At that place of course such an entertainment was greatly enjoyed by the Atlantic Hotel, with its delightful location and unsurpassable resources as a seaside resort, is the favorite resort of North Carolinians. We and visitors from every section of the State, and from several Northern cities, are always enjoying themselves before the ocean. An immensely successful season we have been having this summer, and we have been doing the largest business in the history of the hotel, but we are determined not to be satisfied, but to make it larger and better than ever. We intend to make the Atlantic Hotel more popular than ever before, and to this end we have been doing some work which will be of great benefit to the hotel and its guests.
