—A spelling match will be had at the court house tonight beginning at 8 o'clock. Admission 10 cents. The proceeds will be used for buying furniture for the Methodist parsonage. Many of our townsmen have consented to join in the match, and an enjoyable occasion is anticipated. The principal of the Pittsboro Academy and the editor of the Record have been selected to lead the two competing sides.

THE CROPS.—The present prospect is gloomy for the wheat and oats crops. From all parts of the county we hear discouraging reports as to both wheat and oats, but particularly the latter, and this means a serious loss to Chatham, for this is usually one of the greatest grain producing counties in the State. Before the war Chatham produced more wheat than any other county in North Carolina, and every farmer had flour to sell. At certain seasons of the year the road to Fayetteville, which was then our chief market, used to be lined with Chatham wagons loaded with barrels of flour. But all that is now changed, and now too many of our farmers have to buy their flour.

In view of the poor prospect for the wheat and oats we would earnestly urge our farmer friends to plant a big corn crop this spring, and go right at it without delay. And in this connection we would call their careful attention to the timely and practical communication in another column from Mr. Wolff on the subject of planting corn and sowing clover.

CHATHAM'S DEAD SOLDIERS.—The Record has heretofore published the names of 322 of Chatham's Confederate soldiers, who were killed or died during the late war. Since they were published we have been able to obtain 96 additional names, which makes the total number thus far ascertained at 418, and still no doubt there are many more names that we have not yet been able to obtain. But this number (418) is large enough to prove the patriotism and valor of Chatham's gallant sons during those terrible days that so sorely tried men's souls.

The additional names that we have obtained are the following:

Company E, 26th N. C. regiment, Randall Cheek, John Cabe, Sanford J. Dorsett, W. P. Ellington, Joseph C. Ellis, Nelson Ellis, James Ellis, Alfred H. Foster, William Gee, Jr., J. Oran Gilliland, Wesley W. Gilliland, Albert Hackney, George W. Hardon, Alfred B. Howard, Robert Lambert, W. B. Lambert, J. W. McDaniel, Nathaniel Page, John H. Phelps, Willis R. Phelps, Atlas J. Stanley, Wiley Tally, A. B. Vestal.

Fox, Moses Fox, Jos Gilbert, John Manly Halstead, Daniel Hickman, Quinsby Hicks, Thomas Hinshaw, Jno. Hobson, Jno. D. Holmes, J. F. Jones, Isaac Jordan, R. F. Jordan, W. P. M. Kirkman, Geo. B. Kirkman, Geo. Moran, J. W. Nelson, Geo. W. Norwood, Jr., Jno. Pike, Milon Reitzel, John J. Record, Riley Reeve, William Ramsley, James F. Rosson, W. M. Siler, M. A. Smith, Sol. D. Smith, Garret Tilman, Riley Vestal, Thomas Vestal, John Vinson, Jack Watters.

Company A, 5th N. C. regiment, Malphus Adcock, William Albright, John Marion Andrews, John Apple, J. L. Bryant, Enoch Brady, Nathan Boone, T. L. Burroughs, Luther Bowan, Daniel Campbell, Robert Fitts, J. N. Gee, Joseph Gee, Samuel Gee, Samuel C. Hackney, Thomas Henry, Elbert P. Holliday, H. Ivey, James Kidd, Manly Pattishall, Marshal Phillips, Maston Sizemore, Andrew Stanley, Henry Webster, James F. Womble.

Company G, 40th Artillery N. C. regiment, Cyrus D. Brooks, Thos. D. Brooks, Thomas P. Ellis, Isaiah Fox.

Company D, 14th N. C. regiment, Thos. J. Clegg, Stokes B. Edwards.

Company H, 70th N. C. regiment Junior Reserves, John A. Brooks, Richard W. Brooks.

In addition to the above John J. Womble and Zack Marks were in the Marine corps, stationed at Charleston, and died in service.

No doubt there are many more names which we have not yet been able to obtain, but which we hope and yet be furnished us for publication. We desire to publish, and thus preserve, the names of all of Chatham's sons who sacrificed their lives in their country's cause, which though lost is still dear to us all.

Siler City Budget.

SILER CITY, N. C., March 11, '93.

The weather is real warm and balmy and indicates the rapid approach of spring.

The indications are for a good fruit year, though I notice in the reports from some sections that they think the peaches have been killed in the bud.

The Institute school is on a boom this term, some much larger than any of the preceding terms, with new additions daily.

Business, which was impeded to a great extent by the bad weather, is supporting and numbers of wagons visit our town daily.

The Farmers' Alliance, who are stockholders in the roller mill to be erected here, are now actively engaged in erecting same, and if the weather is favorable it will be completed at an early date and be ready for this year's wheat.

State Lecturer Hatcher, of the Masonic Fraternity, will commence a series of lectures on Masonry at the Lodge this week, which will be of great benefit to the Masons here and in the surrounding country. He will also deliver a public lecture in the M. E. church on Thursday night, to which the public is cordially invited to attend.

Rev. J. A. Newlin, of M. E. Church, will commence a series of meetings in his church during the first part of April.

Dr. Ambrose Mann, of Bynum's, N. C., passed through this city on Saturday enroute for home, on his way from Greensboro, where he has been for the past month.

Mr. Jane Peoples, of Hadley, Peoples & Co., has purchased a lot and will build at an early date.

Prof. J. A. W. Thompson attended the inauguration, and whilst in Washington saw one of his former students who are now occupying prominent positions in the Capitol City.

There are several aspirants for the post office at this place, and as the four years expires next month it will not be long before our people will know who will be their post master, as Bissell is going to appoint as the terms expire.

Those of us here that did not go to Washington certainly enjoyed reading the account of our editor's trip there.

ROBIN ADAIR.

Richmond Dots.

RICHMOND, N. C., March 13, '93.

Welcome spring has opened again with our streets crowded each day with wagon trains loaded with cross ties, lumber and fertilizers.

The roads are almost impossible to travel in some places. We heard of a man that had to make two loads of one cross tie.

We have given up the idea of ever getting our new county (Burgwyn) and have set the determined resolution that we will whip out the third party in old Chatham in '94.

We are highly pleased with the Legislature in making the wise selection of appointing J. M. Edwards for magistrate, knowing that he is one of the best qualified men in Gulf township.

We think from the way that Mr C. B. F., of Siler City, is visiting in our town that he has a kind of heart-disease. Keep coming, kind friend, we will try to get another Express Agent, though we very much regret to give up one of our lawyers.

We very much regret to report the sad news of the death of our highly esteemed neighbor and friend, Mrs Sallie Staley, who departed this life on the 8th inst., of that most dreaded disease, consumption. Her remains were carried to the Presbyterian church in Pittsboro for burial. The bereaved husband and relatives have our tenderest sympathies.

A Pleasant Occasion.

MR. EDITOR: We had the pleasure of being at the close of Mr. W. C. League's school at Pleasant Hill, in the northwestern part of old Chatham, on the 9th day of March, 1893. The exercises were opened by a beautiful song by the school, which was listened to by the audience with pleasure, then the speaking began. The speaking was continued for some three hours and music by the Cane Creek String Band which was very sweet to the ear. Then Mr. League dismissed the crowd for dinner. As it was a most pleasant day, quite a large number was present. At about one o'clock the school began to sing and the audience promptly came together again and speeches were continued and dialogues acted with the greatest of skill, and listened to with much pleasure.

The last of all was grand, which was an address by Prof. E. L. Fox, of Friendship Academy. After which the audience dispersed to their respective homes.

The patrons of the school liked their teacher very much and well they might, for such a teacher is a blessing to any neighborhood, and should be honored by the community.

With best wishes to the teacher and all his pupils, I close.

A Pleasant Marriage.

MR. EDITOR: There was a beautiful wedding in the Presbyterian church in Gulf, Tuesday morning, March 7th. Rev. C. L. Morrell, of Fredericksville, was married to Miss Mamie Murchison, daughter of Rev. D. C. Murchison, of Gulf. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. R. Dixon of Goldston, assisted by Rev. W. F. Thom of Gulf. The church was beautifully decorated with arches of evergreens and flowers, and a large number of relatives and friends were present to witness the ceremony, after which the couple repaired to the depot and boarded the train for Franklinville, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

The attendants were: Rev. W. F. Fry, of Wake Forest College, as best man, and Miss Ellie Murchison, of Gulf, maid of honor. Then came Dr. R. W. Palmer, of Gulf, with Miss Mary Lee Seawell, of Asheboro, Mr. H. A. Russell, of Gulf, with Miss Alma McDonald, of Greensboro, Mr. G. C. Smith, of Greensboro, with Miss Lillie Murchison, of Gulf, Mr. R. D. Redburn, of Egypt, with Miss Edna Russell, of Gulf.

On Monday evening a reception had been given at the home of the bride, at which all the attendants and many of the relatives and friends were present and partook of an elegant supper. A number of useful and beautiful presents were received.

Rev. Mr. Merrell is a strong young minister of the Baptist church and the bride is one of the most charming and popular young ladies of Chatham county.

Corn and Clover.

The corn crop is the most important of all to the farmer, really it is the great staff of life, and to secure a good crop of this we need not have any fears. The failure of other crops may effect our comfort and convenience, but not to our hurt like a failure in the corn crop. This being the case it seems very important that the farmer should use every means to increase the crop without increasing expense or with but little more labor.

Every farmer of any experience agrees that to attain to the highest degree of success in stock raising we must breed from the best blood, and not only this, but the points must be carefully watched to keep it up to this high standard and to improve it if possible. Now, it is equally as important to select the best seed and to watch every point and make the same effort to improve seed corn and to hold it as our stock, for the seed is the starting point of a successful corn crop.

In former years it was the common practice, and it is too much the practice now, to select the seed in the crib in the spring. Get a good strain of seed and from this always select, in the field or at gathering time, an ear of medium size, of good length, straight, of symmetrical beauty, grains deep and reaching quite to the end of the cob, cob small and the grains easy to shell, and you will have what is called an ideal corn.

Plow deep and thorough, breaking always in the fall, when it can be done, as it not only puts the trash out of the way, but saves considerable time in the spring. Here, it is an item to get corn planted early, and it is quite an advantage to have the ground plowed ahead. In the spring it can be thoroughly stirred either with the cultivator or in a row. It always pays to take time to get the soil into a good tilth before planting the seed, even to the extent of delaying the planting a few days.

One point I am very particular about is good seed. In our culture of corn it is quite a rule that it pays better to improve our method of culture, we can get more to the acre than to adopt careless ways which may seem less expensive in outlay, but which are really the most costly in the end.

A poor corn crop is a poor thing indeed, besides being a less number of bushels to the acre the quality of grain, as a rule, is inferior. We have the secret in this corn culture in the way that corn and clover are grown together. Large corn crops in the North means corresponding clover crops. We have found that clover sod is the best for corn, and such a field requires only a small amount of manure for two successive years, or even longer. But without the clover the land requires heavy manuring and in the course of time the soil deteriorates even in spite of heavy manuring. So that only inferior crops of corn can be cultivated. Both crops are good for feeding. The hay is valuable for the stock, and doubly valuable as manure made by the animals than any other feed. Clover supplies nitrogen in large quantities and corn is especially lacking in this quality. The clover consequently supplies what corn can never do, both to the animals and to the soil. Clover is thus never a waste, nor will the farmer lose by planting his fields with it every few years. It is not without some promises of success that the attention of Southern farmers is called to these methods of Northern farmers. The former may grow more corn than the latter, but they do not produce more than one half to the acre. More attention spent to less land would cost less, and would undoubtedly produce better results. In the Southern lands where soil is surely degenerating, and where land is cheap, it would certainly pay to divide the present large farms up into clover and corn fields. Let both be growing side by side and when one has grown on the field for two years then reverse the order. Plant the corn on the clover sod and sow the corn stubble to clover. It would not be surprising if the farm would yield more and better corn on half the land than formerly on the whole, and the clover crop will be left over as clear gain, besides the improvement of the land.

From the state chronicle.

The North Carolina exhibit at the World's Fair will be very handsome ly and effectively "installed" as the phrase is. The exhibition will occupy 7,500 feet of floor space and it will cost $15,000 to install it. The show cases and all the wood work will be of the most beautiful kind of quarter sawed oak, hand carved and polished to the highest degree. This wood work is now being done at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Death from a Rattler's Bite.

DUBLIN, Ga., March 12.—Lyde, the twelve year old daughter of Mr John Eskew, residing near Mount Vernon in Montgomery county, was horribly bitten by a huge rattlesnake yesterday while playing upon in the woods. She managed to walk home, where surgical aid was summoned, but in three hours, after suffering the excruciating pain, she died in great agony.

Fatal Kerosene Explosion.

OCALA, N. Fla., March 10.—Mrs. A. D. Risher started her kitchen fire yesterday morning by aid of kerosene, which exploded, severely, perhaps fatally burning herself, husband and three children and destroying the house and all its contents.

The Governor of California has signed the bill recently passed by the Legislature prohibiting prize fights in that State.

Mr. J. C. Ellington has been appointed State librarian in place of Mr. J. C. Badger, who has so efficiently discharged the duties of that office for the past eight years.

Planters and farmers, whose interests are so largely bound up in keeping their horses and mules in condition for the plow, the harrow, and the wagon, and whose teams are so frequently "thrown out of gear" by colds and hide-bounds, and by scratches, and cracks, &c., will surely stand in their own light if they do not keep at their stables a supply of Salvation Oil.
