GOOD ROADS NOTES.
Good Roads and State Aid.
The following is an abstract of an article by Otto Dörner in the Forum for February, 1909.

It has been said that before we could thoroughly realize the difficulty of hauling on our common country roads, one of two things had to happen: either the horse must learn to talk, or else we must take his place on the wagon, and that the latter occurred when we learned to ride the bicycle. The League of American Wheelmen, with a membership which has grown beyond the hundred thousand mark, is generally acknowledged as the most potent factor in the promotion of good roads sentiment. Since 1892 the League has maintained the Good Roads magazine, which has been merged more recently into the L. A. W. Bulletin and Good Roads, its weekly official organ. The L. A. W. sends its energies to good roads campaigns and to the more important laws of our common country roads, one of two things had to happen: either the horse must learn to talk, or else we must take his place on the wagon, and that the latter occurred when we learned to ride the bicycle.
