

The new election law has been bitterly denounced because it authorizes the registrars to ask every applicant for registration...

The election law is denounced because the registrar may not shall require the applicant to prove his identity or age and residence by the oath of two voters...

ANY man who is liable to pay tax and willfully fails to list his name on the poll may be held liable for the jury of his county...

There has been some difficulty in obtaining the names of men, but this is in a measure now obviated by a clause in the new election law...

Thus, when a man failed last year to list his poll for taxation, that fact will be discovered if he applies to register for the next election and his name will be handed to the solicitor...

The registration of voters was introduced into North Carolina and was first required by the Republican party after the negroes were allowed to vote.

This is an historical fact that should be remembered by all those who may complain about being required to register before voting.

Yes, under Democratic rule before the war, and immediately thereafter, until the Republicans came into power, no man in North Carolina was required to register before voting, and in those days no election frauds were ever alleged by anybody...
