Learn the Government way to poison

For years the experts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have been seeking a dependable and profitable way for the farmer to poison the boll weevil. After innumerable experiments and demonstrations, the Government announced the discovery of a method of poisoning with calcium arsenate, which, if properly done, will control the weevil and make cotton growing profitable in badly infested sections.

To help give the farmers first hand knowledge of the Government method of poisoning the weevil, we have employed one of the most experienced field demonstrators attached to the Government Laboratory at Tallulah, La., in which this method of poisoning was discovered. He will devote his whole time to demonstration work in North Carolina, and will conduct his work in conjunction with the county agents.

The Government work has been carried on in the far South where the weevil first appeared and where the infestation is worst. But the weevil is in North Carolina now, and our farmers can save their cotton if they use the knowledge gained in Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi.

This expert, Mr. J. O. Taylor will demonstrate this method in 12 or 15 infested counties of North Carolina.

Like everyone else whose prosperity is wrapped up in the growing of profitable crops, we are most anxious that Carolina farmers should be shown this Government method of poisoning before the weevil destroys our cotton.

Mr. Taylor's services are offered as a lecturer on poisoning at any farmers meeting in any part of the State, at no expense. He will, in addition, gladly advise any farmer who wishes to poison his own crop this season. All requests for his services should be made to the Farm Service Department, F. S. Royster Guano Company.

1809-65— Abraham Lincoln FEBRUARY 12

SPEECH IN INDEPENDENCE HALL, PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 22, 1861.

Mr. CUYLER: I am filled with deep emotion at finding myself standing in this place, where were collected together the wisdom, the patriotism, the devotion to principle, from which sprang the institutions under which we live.

It was that which gave promise that in due time the weights would be lifted from the shoulders of all men, and that all should have an equal chance. This is the sentiment embodied in the Declaration of Independence.

You have kindly suggested to me that in my hands is the task of restoring peace to our distracted country. I can say in return, sir, that all the political sentiments I entertain have been drawn, so far as I have been able to draw them, from the sentiments which originated in and were given to the world from this hall. I have never had a feeling, politically, that did not spring from the sentiments embodied in the Declaration of Independence.

Now, my friends, can this country be saved on that basis? If it can, I will consider myself one of the happiest men in the world if I can help to save it. If it cannot be saved upon that principle, it will be truly awful. But if this country cannot be saved without giving up that principle, I was about to say I would rather be assassinated on this spot than surrender it.

I have often pondered over the dangers which were incurred by the men who assembled here and framed and adopted that Declaration. I have pondered over the toils that were endured by the officers and soldiers of the army who achieved that independence.

Now, in view of the present aspect of affairs, there is no need of bloodshed and war. There is no necessity for it. I am not in favor of such a course; and I may say in advance that there will be no bloodshed unless it is forced upon the government. The government will not use force, unless force is used against it.

I have often inquired of myself what great principle or idea it was that kept this Confederacy so long together. It was not the mere matter of separation of the colonies from the motherland, but that sentiment in the Declaration of Independence which gave liberty not alone to the people of this country, but hope to all the world, for all future time.

My friends, this is wholly an unprepared speech. I did not expect to be called on to say a word when I came here. I supposed I was merely to do something toward raising a flag. I may, therefore, have said something indiscreet. (Cries of "No, no.") But I have said nothing but what I am willing to live by, and, if it be the pleasure of the mighty God, to die by.
