Benefits From Tanlac in Ending His Stomach and Rheumatic Troubles, Priceless, States Tucker.

"I wouldn't take $10,000 for the good Tanlac has done me," declared W. E. Tucker, 1120 North 28th St., Richmond, Va., a boxmaker for the Allegheny Box Co., recently.

"I thought I would have to give up the job I had been on seventeen years, but Tanlac has built me up eighteen pounds, and I never felt better in my life.

"I was so weak and run down and had lost so much weight and strength I just felt broken down all the time. I got up mornings awfully nervous, with no appetite, feeling like I hadn't slept a wink, and while on the job my nerves were so unstrung that the noise in the factory just tortured me. My liver wasn't acting right, and I suffered so much from rheumatism I could hardly use my arms.

"But Tanlac has made a clean sweep of my troubles, and now, with plenty of strength and energy, I am working and feeling fine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

IDEAS NOT ALIKE

Mother Love Has Been Found to Have Many Angles.

Unlimited in Its Intensity, It Rises Above the Climate or Civilization of the World.

Which child is the happier—that brought up among cannibals and other savages or the "pampered darling" of a wealthy household?

Looking over the records of child life among savages in all parts of the world, the question is as much of a puzzle as that of the sphinx. Perhaps it is a mother's place to answer it, if it must be answered. Maybe it is as well to leave it unanswered.

Duke's son, cook's son, or son of an African native, each seems to attain happiness in its own particular way, only the ways differ. Yet mother love is as deeply felt and as radiant in the wilds of Africa as in the gilded boulevards of London and New York, or as in the tent of the Asiatic nomad snatching a precarious living from the jungle or desert.

Even as our own wives and mothers try their utmost to make baby strong and healthy, so do fur-covered or naked aborigines exercise their rude ingenuity to attain this universally desired end.

The first thing the Eskimo mothers do with their babies is to take the little ones outside and roll them naked in the clean snow. The more the newborn kicks against the procedure the better. The motion and commotion will develop their arms, legs and lungs.

The native North Siberian woman follows out a similar idea. The baby is ducked in an ice-cold stream as soon as it utters its first cry, and the process is repeated every morning during the first two weeks of its earthly existence. Eskimo and North Siberian children are subject to few infantile diseases, and colds and the like are unknown.

Yet there are also plenty of anti-cold-water fanatics among the uncivilized Paraguay Indians, who take all kinds of precautions to keep from the baby every draught of cold air or wind. They wrap it up closely, put it to bed under cover and allow it hardly enough air to breathe.

Both the natives of the Fiji Islands and the Andaman Islands carry their anti-cold ideas to such a length that they refuse to touch the baby unless they have previously warmed their hands before the fire. The children get only well-heated food, and the mother, while nursing a baby, dons a big fur coat to make sure of being warm enough.

Love and desire to harden their little ones drive Andaman parents to another extremity. As their islands are covered with primeval forests, in which thorn-bushes abound, most cruel wounds are inflicted upon the naked body by the bush. Hence it becomes desirable to harden the skin. With that idea in mind, the natives score the bodies of their children from neck to toes with thorns, placing one long narrow wound next to the other, the result being a succession of scars which later in life offer considerable resistance to the dangerous bushes.

City of Memel in History.

Lithuania will probably hold on to Memel, if it can, for the city which it has seized is its chief trading point. Memel owes its prosperity to Lithuania as a distributing point for the grain and timber and fish of the former Russian province.

Once the most northerly city of the German empire, it has been a battle ground for a thousand years. About a hundred years ago the downfall of Napoleon was planned there.

Napoleon had made Prussia a French province in less than a week of fighting. Friederich William II of Prussia fled to Memel and it was there the treaty for the overthrow of the French emperor was negotiated between England and Prussia. As a result of that treaty Napoleon was driven out of Germany.

Memel has been seized and held by the Poles and Lithuanians by turn and in the Seventeenth century it was owned by Sweden.

Whistles for Pedestrians.

Chief Magistrate McAdoe of New York has been noticing there what observers have remarked in most other large cities, remarks the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Traffic officers, after giving the "stop" or "go" signal to vehicles, "look up at the clouds," leaving pedestrians to look out for themselves. He suggests that traffic policemen be equipped with whistles and instructed to blow one blast to warn pedestrians to get ready to cross, two blasts to start over and three to hurry. Something of that sort would seem to be required to keep the safety of the pedestrian in the official mind. Signs and whistles for vehicles are zealously used, but the people on foot have nothing to guide them but instinct and speed.

At Least They Weren't Labeled.

The ten-year-old son of William James, the psychologist, was on his way home from the zoological museum in Cambridge.

"Where have you been, dear?" said a friend, meeting him.

"Oh, I have been to the Ag-ass-iz Museum," he replied in a slow, drawling voice, "and I did see some monk-eyes there and some big bones and butterflies, but I didn't see any specimens of self-conscious personality."—Youth's Companion.

Florida Lady Says She Suffered Greatly, but Found That Cardui Helped Her, and She Got "Stout and Well."

Dady, Fla.—"For a long time I had trouble each month, and suffered a great deal, evidently some womanly weakness," says Mrs. E. E. Pagett, who resides here on Route 1. "I would have very severe pains down on each side and across my back, and feel so weak I would have to lie down, and then have a bad headache.

"I knew there was trouble somewhere, and with all the doctoring I had done, I didn't get relief. Teas and such didn't reach my trouble, so I decided to take Cardui.

"I found as the time came around, the pain was less, but I kept on till I took six bottles. I am stout and well... and give Cardui all the praise."

Thousands of other women praise Cardui for beneficial results.
