THE LEGISLATURE ADJOURNS.

The law in the state giving the Audubon Society the privilege of collecting a tax of $10 on all hunters from outside the state was changed by the legislature at the instigation of senator Jas. L. Griffin, so far as Chatham county is concerned. Hunters outside the state will go before the county commissioners to take out license. The tax is $10. Those inside the state and out of the county will have to pay a tax of $5.00. This tax will aggregate at least $1,000 a year and it will now go into the general tax fund for the benefit of the county.

A bill to pay members of the legislature more than $4.00 a day was tabled, one member saying that the legislators were not worth more than $4.00 a day.

The legislature adjourned sine die at 12 o'clock Tuesday, after two days without pay.

The senate amended the solicitors bill by adding $750.00 to their salary and $750.00 as expense, making the salary $5,500.00 and sent the bill to the house. The house refused to agree to the increased pay. The bill was finally passed. The salary begins Oct. 1, 1924.

The bill to "stop, look and listen" at railroad crossings, requiring automobile drivers to stop, is now a law.

Automobile trucks are now required to carry mirrors to see approaching vehicles from the rear.

The legislature appropriated large sums for different purposes.

Fifteen millions went for roads, ten million for educational and charitable institutions, Ten millions for a railroad in the "lost provinces," a half million for the rehabilitation of the fish and oyster industry.

In addition it authorized the governor's water transportation commission and gave it $25,000 to investigate and determine the feasibility of state owned shipping lines and the construction of terminal facilities. It also provided increased appropriations for the schools.
