

THE CHATHAM RECORD

ESTABLISHED SEPTEMBER 19, 1878.

PITTSBORO, N. C., CHATHAM COUNTY, THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1923.

NUMBER 43.

COMMISSIONERS IN SESSION.

Will Pay Old Veterans' Fare to Reunion and Return.

The county commissioners were in session at their rooms in the courthouse Monday and transacted mostly routine business. Among other things they decided not to make any new assessment of property this year. They also passed a resolution paying the railroad fare of the old Confederate veterans to the reunion at New Orleans and return. There will hardly be half a dozen of the old soldiers who will take advantage of this free trip to the reunion as most of them now are too feeble to take the long ride there and back.

Tax lists were appointed as follows for the different townships: Albright—M. W. Duncan. Baldwin—J. G. Hamlet. Bear Creek—B. A. Phillips. Cape Fear—J. M. Craven. Center—Mrs. E. A. Farrell. Gulf—D. W. Talley. Haw River—Waverly H. Lassiter. Hadley—A. F. Whitaker. Hickory Mt.—Alston Brooks. Matthews—J. A. Dark. New Hope—C. D. Moore. Oakland—C. M. Pattishall. Williams—E. J. Riggsbee.

LAW ENFORCEMENT.

By Judge John D. Humphries, Atlanta (Ga.) Circuit.

That our State and Nation have suffered from an abnormal amount of crime during the last two and a half years is too well established by the records of our courts to admit of doubt. A restless and unsettled state of mind on the part of those possessing criminal tendencies, incident to a recent state of war, and causing them not to be satisfied with the honest returns of useful employment, has had a large part in this unfortunate state of affairs.

The remedy lies in a firm and consistent enforcement of our criminal laws. No man can remain a good citizen and be a conscious, constant violator of the law. The psychology of it is bad, to say nothing of good citizenship or spiritual mindedness. Whether a particular law should be repealed or not may admit of discussion, but whether it should be enforced, never, so long as it remains upon the statute books.

A wholesome respect for law and order should be so deeply rooted in the heart and mind that a willful criminal act would not be expected to go without some degree of punishment. There are cases that demand the severest penalty, unfortunately, it is true, and when demanded, courts and jurors should not hesitate to impose it; but as a general rule, certainty of punishment is more effective in deterring crime than the severity of it—certainty of that character and degree of punishment that will deter, including changing sentences where fines will not deter.

Judges and juries are sworn to uphold the law. All good citizens should expect support, and, if need be, demand it of them. This is essential to that high regard for law and order that a wholesome state of society demands.

Go to Pittsboro's new cafe opening tonight and see what a nice place the Messrs. Farrell have. Ladies are especially invited.

DEFICIT MAY RUN HIGHER.

Accountants Have Rummaged State's Business for Leak.

Special Correspondence Greensboro News. Raleigh, March 30.—Without a word from any auditor engaged in the vast enterprise of digging up deficits or surpluses, expert accountants innocently by-standing about Raleigh are willing to bet their last dollar that the State is worse behind than even Maxwell has calculated it. These accountants have rummaged about the State's business not a little and watched how the commonwealth has sought to daub the spigot while the bung hole was sawed wider open. Symptoms of State business are easily diagnosed by a man who never saw the capitol except at Legislature time. And without exact numbers on which to hang a perfect story in detail, some of the results of a running audit are found.

The best anybody has been able to get from the railroad tax case and the penny which the State pays for winning it, is that special lawyers cost North Carolina $55,000, if the State pays the bill. And nobody can give a very good reason for not paying it. When it comes to paying for extra help, the State is right there. It kicks and snorts and curses terribly when it is asked to pay legislative members ordinary mule feed, and it won't pay it. It lets out a roar of righteousness when anybody undertakes to pay a school teacher, a State official, a judge, a governor, or a what-not a living wage, but when it comes to handing the dough out to political favorites, the State is right there.

Nobody believes it was necessary to hire a single, or a married lawyer, to win that tax case. Frank Nash or Jim Manning, assistant and regular attorney general, could have beaten the whole posse comitatus hands down. Governor Morrison often has said Manning is the best attorney general in the South. Nash is an uncommonly fine lawyer. Then there is Judge George H. Brown who wanted to do some work to earn his judicial pension and Judge Ferguson or any other retired jurist could have been pulled in. But the State long before Governor Morrison took off red-shirts or any other kind of shirts, was wedded to the policy of handing special fees out. Thousands for public defender, but not a cent for the payment of a decent salary. Governor Morrison's attachment of a brigade of attorneys to the State is exactly in line with a long list of distinguished precedents and it was wholly proper in the program of progress that lawyers employed by this administration should draw vastly greater fees than any others ever did.

And there's practical Tom Warren, intensely practical. He went down the line and came back. He certainly shared the enthusiasm of his friends over a progressive appointment on the supreme court bench. In his wisdom Governor Morrison made another choice, but that did not mean irretrievable loss, whatever the Warren fee is. This is exactly the way North Carolina does business—politically, unintelligently, wastefully, unnecessarily. But Governor Morrison didn't invent the system. He has merely set the program of progress to political music. He has applied super-progressive principles to it.

MUST NOT SUPPRESS NEWS.

Washington Post. There are more varying views as to what a newspaper should be and should not be, but we presume everybody will agree that the chief function of a newspaper is to print the news. It would not be a true newspaper if it suppressed legitimate news, or colored news to misrepresent the truth or distorted it in order to injure private persons or public welfare. A newspaper to be worthy of public respect and confidence, must be fair to all, impartial and devoted to the public interest. Necessarily it must be without fear or intimidation when it publishes the day's news. It cannot take the dictum of any one who wishes to suppress news, or distort it or misuse it for private advantage.

A request to a newspaper to suppress legitimate news is similar to a request to a merchant to quit selling a certain legitimate kind of goods. In order to succeed, a merchant must carry all kinds of goods within the scope of his service to the public. He can not accept dictation from outsiders, because he must exercise his own judgment or fail. A newspaper, if worthy of the name, caters to the entire public, and therefore it must carry all the news that is fit to print. It is a department store of news, and it must maintain its lines full and without adulteration.

Whenever a newspaper begins to grind a private ax the public becomes aware of the imposition. Whenever a newspaper of general circulation favors a certain individual, group, class or section it risks its reputation and is immediately indicted for bad faith. Unless it mends its ways it loses prestige and finally disappears. Its only means of existence is the confidence of the public; hence, if managed properly, it refuses to abuse the public confidence by suppressing true news, by distorting it or by misusing it for private advantage.

The Daughters of the Confederacy, we are informed, requested that the commissioners pay the fare of the old soldiers to New Orleans and return. The request was granted.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

The Sad Ending of a Well-Known Citizen Saturday.

People in Pittsboro were thrown into a little excitement Saturday morning when word went from mouth to mouth that Mr. J. N. Purgason, a commission merchant in Pittsboro, had dropped dead.

Mr. Purgason for the past two years had his place of business in the office of Dr. W. B. Chapin and up to Tuesday morning was in his usual health, although for some months he had complained of a throat affection, which, it was thought, was not serious.

BEWARE OF FAKE REMEDIES.

Department Warns Cotton Planters Against Fake Weevil "Remedies."

The present great interest in the boll weevil problem in the Southeastern States has resulted in a large number of patented preparations and machines that are being vigorously exploited, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

The claims for these preparations are not based on scientific tests although in many cases the persons exploiting them are undoubtedly sincere in their belief that they will yield good results. Generally speaking they are based on misinterpretations of what occurs in the field. To determine whether a remedy is effective it is necessary to have control areas and to consider the effects of numerous cultural practices. It is very easy for an untrained observer to attribute the beneficial results of some variation in climatic or cultural factors.

The Department of Agriculture and many of the State experiment stations have tested the new boll weevil remedies which have been proposed from year to year and many of those now being offered the public are not essentially different from the kind that have been tested and discarded.

The Association of Southern Agricultural Workers, at its recent convention at Memphis, heartily endorsed the use of the dusting method in areas where the yield of cotton was high enough to warrant the expense. It also endorsed the Florida method for the region in which it has been proven to be applicable, and further recommends extensive tests of this method in other regions of light yields.

In another paragraph it called attention to the fact that the molasses arsenate treatment, although not yet subjected to sufficiently detailed experimental tests to warrant its endorsement, had apparently given results over a wide area that warranted further consideration, and it, therefore recommended thorough and immediate tests of this method by State and Federal agencies.

If anything of value is discovered by the State experiment stations or by the Federal Department, prompt and widespread notice of the fact will be given the public.

THE LOCKVILLE COPPER MINES.

Work to be Resumed at An Early Date.

In a letter to the News and Observer, D. C. Stainbakk, of Moncure, says:

Please allow a few lines about the copper mines located in Lee county, nine miles north of Sanford on the Raleigh highway. The large ledge carrying the copper crosses the highway on the apex of the hill between the residence of J. M. Womble and Mrs. Maggie Bridges. The ledge is one mile long on the company's property, then it can be traced several miles, crossing Deep river, and running through Chatham county. The large ledge was prospected and mined first in the years of 1850 to 1860. The shaft was sunk 230 feet showing the vein to be from two to three feet wide, and carrying a large amount of high grade ore, assaying $18.64 in copper. It also carries gold and silver, and other by-products, which have not been assayed.

Along in 1900 to 1902 the mine was again worked by the company from Richmond, Va., with J. N. Godman as president. He is now the owner of the property. There being a slump in the copper market, the work at the mine had to be suspended, as it was not a paying proposition.

The old shaft where the Richmond company worked, is still intact. This shaft is located a half mile south of the highway, where the company will start up working. The mine will be five miles from Moncure, a thriving village on the Seaboard, thirty miles from Raleigh.

The property contains 392 acres. It has many advantages for economical operation seldom found: water and wood to furnish the required energy to operate the machinery of the plant, a super abundance of lumber and timber for mining and building purposes, rich agricultural land adapted to the cultivation of grain, vegetables and fruit to supply the needs of man and beast, good climate and open winters, comparatively cheap and efficient labor, and last but not least, a quantity of exceedingly high grade ore carrying values seldom equalled.

Assays made by Ledoux & Co., New York, the Colorado Assaying Co., Denver, Colo., show the by-products will more than take care of the cost of operation, leaving the copper clear profit.

Heretofore all work has been done in the crudest fashion imaginable. With proper machinery necessary to develop the property the company proposes practically to demonstrate that with judicious management the same results can be obtained as copper mines in the west have had.

LONG TONGUE IS MISFORTUNE.

Minister Says Some Women Can Lick Neighbors Four Blocks Away.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 31.—"A long tongue is an unfortunate possession when there is a vacant spot just behind the eyeballs," declared Evangelist F. Lincicome, addressing a local audience. "Some women have tongues as long as a cow," he continued. "A cow can stand on one side of a fence and lick her calf on the other side. Some women can sit in their parlors and lick their neighbors four squares away."

"It is up to the young ladies to give us a better brand of young men by raising the standard for them. One of the perils of young manhood in America today is that there is not any standard being raised for them on the part of young women," Evangelist Lincicome said.

"When our young women put the standard up where it belongs we can combat with the social evils that are running our cities."
