STATE NEWS— wehifecjDL ESES

Monroe.—Right on the heels of reports that calcium arsenate is causing honey bees that partake of the molasses poison treatment to die, that danger lurks in blackberries near fields where the poison has been used, etc., comes the statement from H. A. Sell, of North Monroe township, that five of his fine milk cows a few days ago devoured a whole gallon of calcium arsenate and suffered no ill effects at all.

NORTH CAROLINA EVENTS.
News in Concise Form For The Busy Reader.

Statesville.—The Iredell farmers' picnic which was held at the Piedmont Experiment station was attended by from 10,000 to 12,000 people.

Raleigh.—For the first time in five years all Superior court judges are now in their home districts holding court or will be when the fall terms start.

Salisbury.—Judge Stable Linn in county court has issued an order closing the Terminal hotel for a period of 12 months, declaring the hotel to have become a nuisance.

Greensboro.—The high mark in typhoid cases was reached here the past week, with 20 new cases reported, an increase of six over the preceding week.

Monroe.—Six cats, all developing rabies at the same time a few days ago hounded their owner, Rev. K. W. Hogan, of Buford township, that one cat is a plenty for any family.

Greensboro.—The best session of the North Carolina College for Women summer school—so characterized by Dr. J. H. Cook, director, came to a close Tuesday. Enrollment reached 1,020.

Raleigh.—Sanitary conditions in the prison camps maintained in various sections of the State by the State Prison are excellent, according to the findings of the inspectors of the State Board of Health.

Greensboro.—The second theft of an automobile in two successive days took place Thursday when the five passenger Ford touring car of J. H. Martin, member of the local police force, was stolen.

Henderson.—A movement has been started by the Henderson Ministerial association to have organized a State-wide ministerial association and plans are already being worked out for the accomplishment of this object.

Burlington.—A deed of trust wherein $511,545 is to be invested and the income to be apportioned among a list of churches and charitable institutions of Burlington, Alamance county and the State has been made by Lawrence S. Holt, Sr.

Charlotte.—A writ enjoining the State collector of revenue from collecting the $500 annual sales tax on each make of automobile offered for sale in this State was issued here by Judge W. F. Harding, of Superior court, who heard a plea for such a writ from automobile dealers.

Winston-Salem.—As a result of the work of the federal county and prohibition officers G. B. Flynn, a former deputy sheriff of the county, is in the Forsyth county jail, Paul Mecum is on his way to Lynchburg to face trial, and warrants are out for others.

Newton.—The office of the register of deeds Thursday was a veritable Gretna Green parlor. Mrs. Josephine Taylor and her two assistants, Misses Alice Wesley and Mary Woodward, suspended all other business to write out marriage licenses for five couples.

Wilson.—While on a "still" hunt in Cross Roads township two white men, Carl Renfrow and B. F. Stewart, and a white married woman were engaged in playing poker with a 20-gallon whiskey still running full blast in an outhouse on the land of Bob Drew. All were arrested.

Greensboro.—Much land in Guilford county is untilled. There is a shortage of farm labor. Many of the farmers are turning their eyes towards the cities. As a result of the valuation of farm lands in Guilford county will show a decrease after present re-valuation of county property is completed.

Norlina.—When 12,000 farm folks get together for a picnic as they did here there is something more vital behind it than a desire to eat Brunswick stew or listen to speeches. This vital thing is that much talked of, too seldom realized, spirit of co-operation between town and country. It was a "co-op" picnic.

Raleigh.—Ed Cotton, Apex negro who forfeited a $500 bond and dodged trial on a charge of illicit distilling at the last term of Wake county Superior court, has been brought back from Norfolk, Va., by his bondsmen and placed in the county jail in default of the $1,000 bond required by Judge T. H. Calvert.

Salisbury.—P. V. Neese, district manager of the Business Insurance Company, of Greensboro, with headquarters in this city, fell from his office window on the second floor of the Wallace building to the cement pavement on Innis street. He was severely injured about the head and the Salisbury hospital reports him as being in a serious condition.

Wilson.—Between 1 and 2 o'clock Herbert Johnson was shot from ambush while curing tobacco three miles west of this city and was instantly killed.

Moss Holt, a horse jockey and neighbor of the deceased, was arrested suspected of the crime. He is now in jail to await the verdict of the coroner's inquest.

Lumberton.—Attorney W. S. Britt, who made the closing speech for the defense, was the target of serious threats less than 30 minutes after he closed his argument, Mrs. Hattie Purvis, the star prosecuting witness in the flogging case, shaking her finger at him and saying, "I'm going to get you." Just as she had uttered the threat, Lawson Purvis, her brother-in-law, who was standing beside her, said: "Yes she's going to get you and I'm going to help her."

OBSERVATIONS.

By Rambler.

"Watermelons have made their appearance," remarked a citizen. "New look out for chills and doctor bills. I don't know how she does it, or where she puts them, but my wife can eat more melons in one day and I am not stopping at one, than any nigger in North Carolina." She'll take the half of a 40-pound melon and a little salt and in five minutes it's gone. Fifteen minutes later the other half has disappeared. Half an hour later she is ready for another. If there's as many as a half dozen around the house they all disappear before night. She beats all."

"I don't know which is the happiest, a woman with a baby learning to walk, or a nigger boy with half a watermelon," remarked a citizen Sunday. "It is amusing to watch both, the mother in particular. You'll hear her talk something like this to the tot: 'Tum to yer mudder. Yes, sweetest man in town, and a whole lot more baby talk like this, only worse. And you'd enjoy watching the little nigger eating his melon. With nothing to see but the whites of his eyes as he sends his mouth downward into the meat, he is the very essence of happiness, and there's nothing on earth that would please him any better. Watch another little nigger standing by, water dripping from his mouth. 'Gimme piece dat rine,' he asks. 'Go 'way, nigger, dar ain't gwine be no rine.' It's certainly amusing to listen to the mother and the baby and watch the negro with the melon."

"I was over in Durham the other day," remarked a Pittsboro man, "and I saw a friend, Jim Wrenn, across the street. He was gazing up at one of those tall buildings like some Chatham county citizens do when they go to a large city. While Mr. Wrenn was standing there I noticed a dazzling dressed young lady coming down the street. She was leading some thing that had four legs and not much body and looked like a dog. The lady stopped near Mr. Wrenn and began to gaze in a window as women will do. The dog went up to Mr. Wrenn and looked up into his face as much as to say: 'Who are you.' Just then Mr. Mr. Wrenn looked down and saw the dog with one of his hind legs hoisted. Mr. Wrenn moved away. 'Oh, he will not kick you,' said the lady. 'I know it,' said Mr. Wrenn, 'I thought the dog might break his leg, the way he had it crooked and I did not wish to see him do it.'"

"The biggest liar in Pittsboro," said a gentleman from Bynum Saturday, "is that fellow Rambler who writes for the Record." "You are mistaken" remarked a friend of Rambler. "We have a long whiskered man here that can discount him. He told a tale or story the other day that beats Rambler all to pieces. He said when he drew all the water from his well that a well across town went dry. And that if that well was drawn off his well went dry. He said further that when he was a young man he met a bear in the road in Center township. Bears were plentiful around here then, he said. He could find no rock to throw at the bear, had no gun nor knife and as the bear went to hug him, the bear's mouth wide open, looking like he was laughing, this great prevaricator said he ran his hand into the bear's mouth and grabbed him by the tail and actually turned him wrong side outwards. The bear went one way and he went the other. You know that's a lie, because there are enough rocks in Center township to build a wall ten feet high around Chatham county." "Well," said the Bynum man, "You are somewhat of a liar yourself, ain't you?"

TRAP WEEVILS WITH KEROSENE

Forest City, Ark., July 21.—Working on the theory that the cotton boll weevil is a "little" kin to the moth, Phil Hickey, manager of a cotton oil mill, is trapping the pests in the company's fields.

At intervals in the cotton field, Mr. Hickey places each night a burning torch close by a pan of kerosene. Unable to resist the lure of the flame Mr. Hickey asserts, the weevil flies to the light, is blinded and falls into the lethal fluid.

The experimenter declares he finds this method inexpensive and hopes that time will prove its efficiency in ridding the country of the insect plague. In the field each morning he finds a numerous "catch" although employing only one torch and trap in each three to five acre tracts.
