He apparently suffered no serious effects.

THE BUZZARD PATROL.

"A good newspaper helps to make a good community, but the editor needs the co-operation of the community to build a good newspaper. Those who help least, however, are as a rule the hardest knockers."

The foregoing is what the Harnett County News has to say in "Observations."

We rather suspect some Chathamite has moved over into our neighborhood. As a general rule we have whole-hearted support over here, but there are a few that are so rotten that the buzzards even shadow them in broad daylight.

BOYS HEAD CUT.

Master Frank Gunter, son of Mr. A. B. Gunter, suffered a bad laceration of the skin on his forehead and an abrasion of the skull last Friday while at the home of Mr. Tom Griffin in Oakland township. A number of boys were there and during a frolic, a rock thrown by Master Bruce Griffin, son of Mr. Cull Griffin, of Pittsboro, accidentally hit the young fellow. It was first thought that he was critically injured, but the young man is able to return from the hospital and is improving rapidly.

Raleigh Pulls a Novel Stunt on Urban Day Last Week.

Last Thursday was Ford Urban Day in Raleigh. It had been arranged by the Merchants Association and from accounts it proved to be quite a success, both from the novelty of the affair and a monetary consideration to the merchants who had reduced their stocks for the special event.

Prizes were allotted to the oldest Ford making the trip to the capital, the Ford being driven by the oldest man, the oldest woman, the prettiest girl, the ugliest man, and the Ford bringing the greater number of people on a single trip.

They had 'em there with the brass radiators, the oil lamps and the rusted chassis, and the broken bodies. They were there in every degree, both mongrel, pup, whelp and hound, and the noise that was produced on Fayetteville street continues to echo the welcome that was given the country visitors.

One man took his family of fourteen children in a 1911 model, while another included his mother-in-law and her sister's grand-children and drove up to the judges' stand with twenty-two aboard a touring flivver. The one of most interest to our Chatham County people was that of Mr. U. S. Blair, of Siler City.

Early Thursday morning Mr. Blair went to the garage, whispered to his late model, "Turn over, Lizzie, it's me," and away he went to town, making the entire distance of 75 miles on only four gallons of gasoline, making the cost of transportation per passenger to the Rodeo event only 16 cents.

The old models, with curious tanks, antique ignition, oil lamps and peculiar design excited a great deal of curiosity and all who were there thoroughly enjoyed the occasion.

DIARY OF THE PRESIDENT

A diary of the president's doing is generally kept by some one who is close in with the big bugs about Washington. Here is one kept one day by a young lady who lives near the White House in Washington and was sent to friend in Pittsboro.

Monday—5 A. M. The president opened his eyes and saw a fly in his room. He had it killed. He arose a few minutes later and put on his pants. He then put on his shoes and washed his face. In walking around the yard he stubbed his toe. He made an awful face over it but the toe did not hurt long.

9:30—The president took a drink of water with a little soda in it. That swells him up when he is talking to the ladies.

11:10—Breakfast is served. He ate fourteen biscuits besides two loaves of bread. Drank two cups of coffee. He ate other things in proportion and when he arose from the table he said he believed he had enough.

2 P. M.—The president is getting hungry. He does not eat between meals so he will have to wait for dinner, which is served at 9 o'clock. He smokes a cigarette and reads a love story in the Congressional Record. He drinks more water.

9 P. M.—Dinner is served. Corned beef and cabbage was the ruling dish. He had company for dinner in the person of Mr. Jiggs. Mr. Jiggs is very fond of corned beef and cabbage.

12 M.—The president retires. He is trying to do without sleep like Edison.

1 A. M.—The president is snoring so loud that no one in the house can sleep for the noise.

2 A. M.—The president has turned over on his left side and quit snoring.

I am wondering when the president will eat supper. I guess it will be next day. That's all MARY KANT.

A NEAR TRAGEDY.

It Is the Same Here

When a fond parent asked his little son why he was always at the foot of the class the boy replied that it did not make any difference that the teacher taught all the pupils the same things anyway.

Same here. We treat 'em all alike. We give first class service and you will always find us on the job. You are next. Give us a call.
