PRINCETON, N. J .- That the chances of a college educated man's surviving the stress and strain of the modern world are nearly twice as great if he marries than if he remains single is the conclusion reachthe half-century class of Princeton University in its fiftieth anniversary year book, edited by Dr. Henry Fair-field Osborn, president of the Amer-ican Museum of Natural History of New York.

Forty-two percent of the married men have survived the fiftieth anniversary of their graduation from Princeton, while only 25 per cent of the bachelors are living today. The average age of the class is 72 years, and fifty-eight of the 152 men who matriculated at Princeton with the class are still alive. Journalists and physicians have had the highest mortality rate, while bankers, farmers, manufacturers and engineers had the lowest. In commenting on the statistics, the year book says:

Once married, the men each profession not only live, on the average, twelve years longer than the bachelors, but 45 per cent of them still survive, as opposed to 25 per cent of the single men. Some credit for this record must be given to the good house keeping and ceaseless vigilance over rubbers and overcoats of the wives of '77, and probably, if the truth be known, of their daughters as well.

"It is not surprising," the book continues, "that the uncertain hours and high pressure work of the journalist and physician made both groups short lived. Perhaps the type of temperament essential to distinctiton in either of these lines burns up a man's physique quickly. Calm-ness and financial stability on the other hand survive long usage."

WHAT IS CANCER

According to Prof. James Ewing. one of the best known authorities on the subject, cancer is characterized by an unrestrained and unrestrainable local lump or sore which becomes larger and larger and in many instances sends to other parts of the body minute particles of its own tissues which starts cancer else-

Cancer is local at first, trifling in appearance and in many instances painless. Something goes wrog with the mechanism of the body and an unwholesome, persistent growth begins which growth when once begun cannot stop itself but must be destroyed or removed by scientific procedure.

Cancer may occur anywhere on the outside or inside of the body. It is very small and trifling to begin with. When it occurs on the outside it is, of course, easily discovered in its early stage and it is at this time that effective treatment brings about a cure. After particles of the cancer have found their way to other parts of the body and given rise to new growths the situation is much more serious.

To cure cancer it is necessary to find out where it is and it is necessary that it be removed either by surgical or other therapeutic means. The most maligant cancer was a simple and apparently harmless thing when it began; therefore, all suspicious growth should receive the careful attention at an early stage.

ROTATE GARDEN CROPS FOR BEST YIELDS

One of the best methods of securing freedom from plant diseases in the garden is to rotate the crops.

"While we are pondering over the seed catalogue and planning our gardens for this season, let's give some attention to how the garden is to be planned and take steps to rotate the crops this year," says Robert Schmidt, vegetable specialist at the N. C. state college. "When we speak of rotation of crops, we hardly ever think of the garden but of field crops like cotton and corn. However rotation of vegetable crops is also of great importance although not for the same reason possibly as for the field crops. Since vegetables are usually highly fertilized, crop rotation from the fertility standpoint is of little importance. Its chief importance lies in the control of dis-

Mr. Schmidt explains that many vegetables belong to the same family. These groups are attacked by the same diseases and insects. For instance, cabbage, collards, kale, radish, turnips, and mustard are closely related as are potatoes, to-matoes, egg plant and pepper.

In rotating crops, therefore, care must be taken to work on a family pepper, nor should turnips follow cabbage, and so on through the list.

Most vegetable diseases are carried in the soil for three or four years and if a rotation is to be of value, it must extend through a four ed by examination of the record of year period. If land is scarce and rotation is not practicable, disease control must then be accomplished by planting the resistant varieties.
