New Hope congregation gave their lives in the War between the states, most of whom were descendants of this man. Quite a number of Gilbert Strayhorn's descendants were in the World War, both officers and enlisted men, among them being Lieut. Henry Johnson, who lies at Chateau Thierry. Gilbert Strayhorn is buried at New Hope, near the church, in the old graveyard, where many heroes lie sleeping. Should it be necessary to ask: "Where is New Hope?"

Washington Letter (Continued from Page One) tions committee, demanded a report on the extent to which the government had become embroiled in Nicaragua. A Senate committee was unable to get answers to two questions put to Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Mr. Stewart was testifying in the Teapot Dome mess. So the Senate was about to send him to the calaboose for contempt when the courts stepped in and released him on $1,000 bond. George W. Wickersham, one-time attorney general, left his comfortable New York office to come down and fight the Senate's fight in the courts. And John D. Rockefeller, Jr., wrote a letter saying Mr. Stewart had been asked to tell the truth in full. In a way, John D., the younger, is Stewart's boss. With a woman sitting in the Speaker's chair, the House heard a story, almost unbelievable, of conditions in the Pennsylvania soft-coal fields where the union still battles. As this was going on, Mr. Lowden, the big boss of the prohibition squad announced that he was going to see to it that Houston and Kansas City were dry when the conventions met. And "Uncle Andy" Mellon told the press that those little dollar bills the government is working on would be issued about the first of next October. They are to be smaller, by almost an inch in length and three-quarters of an inch in width, than the present bills, but will buy just as much. Later on all bills will be of the same abbreviated dimensions and the government will retire the larger ones.

WHERE IS NEW HOPE? (A Bit of Orange County History) By MRS. MARY E. BERRY Quoting from O. J. Peterson of the Chatham Record: "History tells us that Tryon's army marching to Hillsboro, before the Battle of Alamance, camped at New Hope one night and we have been wondering if the folk over there know at what point, the site, then called New Hope, was located?" The settlement called New Hope is midway between Chapel Hill and Hillsboro, with New Hope church as a center. In the early days there was no Presbyterian church in Chapel Hill. People of this faith worshipped at New Hope. Dr. James Phillips, professor of mathematics in the University, preached there 30 years ago. His son, Dr. Charles Phillips and the Hon. David L. Swain were members of this congregation. In describing this church, it will be interesting to give the record of one of its founders, Gilbert Strayhorn. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1715; came to the Hawfields in 1740 and was one of the founders of that church. Dissatisfied with the titles to his land in the Hawfields, he moved down into Orange county where he purchased a large tract of land from the Earl of Granville, which he called "a New Hope." Later he deeded "to the subscribers of New Hope church two hundred acres of land." Around one of the trees, near the church, it was the custom of the members of the congregation to stack their guns during the service while a sentinel kept watch to give the alarm in case Indians approached. Gilbert Strayhorn, his four sons and his sons-in-law served in the Revolutionary War. His brother-in-law, James Hunter, "King of the Regulators," lived at University station. His home was burned by the British, the family fleeing in the night to the home of Gilbert Strayhorn, where they remained until the end of the war. A price had been placed on the head of James Hunter. Gilbert Strayhorn's grand-son, His great-grandson, Lieut. Thomas Strayhorn, of the Orange Guards, was mortally wounded at Reams Station in 1863. Be An Optimist
An optimist, you know, is a fellow who doesn't kick because there is a hole in the doughnut.
The farmer was an optimist when declaring that crops had nearly all failed but rejoiced that broomcorn was selling at $180 a ton. Asked how much broomcorn he had out, he said: "Not a blamed hill—but I am going to put out 60 acres next year." That is the way to act. Never admit defeat.
