

W. A. PAGE BUCKS ATLANTA LAWYER

"Marse" Henry Makes a Capital Witness Before Corporation Commission.

Marse Henry Page, manager of the Aberdeen Sand Company, was in Raleigh Tuesday, arguing before the Corporation Commission in the interests of his company. Here is what the News and Observer had about it:

Appearing in his several capacities as lawyer, witness, capitalist and ruminator, Marse Henry A. Page, of Aberdeen, today charmed the corporation commission in a controversy over the sand freights from West End, in Moore County, to the uttermost parts of the earth. Marse Henry was here on behalf of the Aberdeen Sand Company. The controversy with the High Point, Randleman, Asheboro and Southern railroad raged about Randleman. The mileage between High Point and Asheboro as the crow flies is about 24 miles. But in Randleman there is a loop which the trains make, adding three and a fraction miles to the run between High Point and Asheboro. Mr. Page contends that there should be no charge for this extra mileage, but figures show that it costs Marse Henry about 10 cents a ton to carry sand over that circle.

The tariff is troublesome and Marse Henry seeks to revise it. At times today he told the commission that he was appearing as attorney for his sand company. When he was representing the corporation as lawyer he would be arguing. When he was giving the facts of the controversy he was a witness and no mistake about it. The commission had absolutely no doubt about the whereabouts of Marse Henry, no matter how he appeared. He was a bully witness when he was arguing the case, and when he was giving testimony he was an able attorney. When he was "just ruminating" he ceased to be ordinary witness or just plain lawyer; he then became the attorney general for the people of North Carolina, and anti-corporation from away back.

He had barristers to back, Charles Clark, of Atlanta, did most of the prodding, but he had not heard all about Marse Henry before the lawyer hopped into the discussion. Had Mr. Clark perused more of Marse Henry's writings there would have been more care in the cross examining.

A good time was had by all, but the corporation commission could not make up its mind right on the spot and took the case under advisement.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

We cannot emphasize too much or too often the importance of a lawn and foundation plantings in improving the home grounds. Try to look at your home with the eyes of a stranger, as though seeing it for the first time and probably you will notice or think of some improvement that has not occurred to you before. If your own home is all that is desired perhaps you can encourage, and help some friend or neighbor to make improvements.

Why should we use plantings of shrubs at the base of buildings?

A building of any kind is an artificial creation with straight, formal lines out of harmony with nature and the surrounding landscape. It is a conspicuous object and standing alone does not form an attractive or prepossessing picture.

What we want to do is to make buildings harmonize with the surrounding landscape, fit in their surroundings and make a part of an attractive picture. Foundation plantings of shrubs will tie the building into the surrounding landscape, make the building less conspicuous, softening the hard, straight lines and thus make a more pleasing impression on the eye.

An attractive sweep of lawn with carefully chosen foundation plantings will present a pleasing picture, every part in harmony and essential to the whole, an effect impossible with a bare building on bare ground or even with trees and shrubs planted hit or miss without a definite plan of effect desired. The ultimate effect should be visualized in the beginning and improvements made with this complete picture in mind. The simplest cottage may be made attractive and picturesque, an essential part of its surroundings with a little thought and labor, planting the right thing in the right place to get harmony of line and color. Begin now to study your own dwelling place and make it a place of beauty.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All parents cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what every experienced nurse would do—what every physician would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No matter how young Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have treated your child without use of a single medicinal drug; Castoria is vegetable. It is safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot get away with. It is always ready for the crueler attacks of colic, or constipation, or diarrhoea; effective, too, for older children. Over a million bottles were bought last year.
