

New Air-Mail Service Between United States and Chile Boosts Friendship of Two Countries

South's Cotton and Other Goods Find Market There While Chilean Nitrate, Copper and Iron Increasingly in Demand Here

THE air-mail service soon to be inaugurated by the United States Post Office Department, through a recent contract with the Pan-American Grace Airways, Inc., between the United States and Chile will, in the opinion of the Chilean Minister of Finance, Don Pablo Ramirez, bring about a more friendly feeling between the two nations and further extend trade relations.

factured goods, valued at approximately $50,000,000 annually. I predict there will be an increasing amount of raw material furnished the United States manufacturers from Chile, while Chile will continue to take increasing amounts of finished products, chiefly in the form of cotton goods, mining equipment, electrical equipment, agricultural implements, railway equipment and other machinery.

General view Chilean Nitrate of Soda mining and extracting plant, located in nitrate plains of Northern Chile, said to be the driest spot on earth. In the foreground, caliche (the nitrate of soda ore) is being sorted from other rock and loaded onto cars for transporting to the extraction plant.

At the plant (center) the caliche is crushed and dissolved in hot water to separate the insoluble substances from the nitrate. The solution is placed in large vats, where precipitation and crystallization of the nitrate of soda take place. Trains carrying the finished product to the Coast are observed in the right background. Workers' quarters are shown at the extreme right.

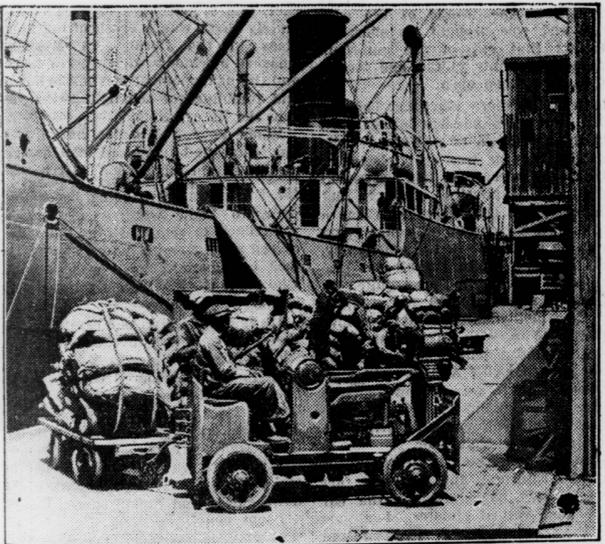

(Insert) Don Pablo Ramirez, Chilean Minister of Finance, a recent visitor to the United States.

Senor Ramirez is the first cabinet official of the Chilean Government to visit a foreign country during term of office. He came to pay Chile's respects to President Hoover and to confer with American importers relative to extending the sales of nitrate of soda, one of the most valuable natural resources of his country.

"Cutting the time from twenty to seven days in mail and perhaps pasery for the installation of domestic industrial plants. Already Chilean industries have employed more than $650,000,000 of United States capital, mainly in her nitrate, copper and iron mines, and at the present rate of development we must look to the United States or Europe for additional assistance," Senor Ramirez said.

He advised the American importers that the mining of nitrate of soda has Boatload of Chilean nitrate at Wilmington, N. C., on its way from the mines of Chile to cotton and corn fields of North and South Carolina. Each spring boats find their way into the ports along the Atlantic Coast, laden with Chilean nitrate to supply the farmers of the United States with their nitrogen plant food.

senger service between New York and Santiago, Chile, will be a great step forward in bringing us closer to the United States, as well as in establishing a friendlier feeling and in adding to the rapidly-growing developments," he said.

"At present more than one-fourth of all the foreign or imported goods used in Chile come from the United States, largely in the form of manu-recently surpassed all previous records. "Your farmers," he said, "are now the greatest consumers of nitrate of soda, using approximately a million tons annually. With unlimited beds from which to supply United States farmers with their nitrate fertilizer, my Government proposes to do all within its power to mine and deliver it in the best mechanical condition and at the lowest possible price."

BUSINESS COURAGE

One of the most successful business men I ever knew showed rare courage at the very time the enterprises he directed were reaching their first peak. One day I met this man in Chicago, and on the same evening dined with him and his general manager. To my amazement these gentlemen informed me that on the following week they would start West and on reaching the Pacific Coast would embark for the Orient, their first objective being Japan. For the most part that sounded to me as if they were about to neglect a business which had depended so largely upon them for its growth and general direction. Then the older of the two men volunteered to tell me the reason for a journey which would reach around the globe.

He told me that when he and his general manager embarked for the trip across the Pacific, they would be days and days ahead of any mail and would very quickly be entirely out of touch with their business, and then, "When we return home we will know where our organization is weak."—John Fletcher, in Forbes Magazine.

GOOD OLD-TIMER

Every time someone starts talking about the Republican victory in North Carolina, we are reminded of the story that went the rounds when Harvard several years ago: "Boys," pleaded the Carolina coach just before his team trotted on the field, "you've got to get in there and fight for old North Carolina—and don't forget that every man on that Harvard team is a Republican." —Detroit News.

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pain—or other suffering.—Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.
