THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1930

Mr. W. P. Horton, for eight years chairman of the county Democratic executive committee, is succeeded by Mr. Wade Barber. Mr. Horton has functioned well as chairman. He was not a candidate, we understand, to succeed himself, as he is the nominee for the senate. Mr. Barber is a capable man for the job and will doubtless serve with equal acceptability.

We were surprised ourselves at having a full-size paper last week, but at this writing Monday, the week of the Fourth, it is very apparent that this week's paper will be cut short. Really, the printers will not regret having less work this week, we presume, and it is certain that the editor would like to take it easy.

LABEL 'EM, BOB

A good friend brought the editorial section of the Raleigh Times ten miles to show the editor of The Record the article chaffing him about "Cheeping on Bailey" as a Greek scholar. A little encouragement, we suspect, would have induced him to accompany the editor to Raleigh to see him whip the writer of the article. And as that friend is a man of much adventure, being equally familiar with the bogs of Ireland, the gold diggings of the Klondike, and the hills of Chatham, and accounts Clarence Darrow among his old-time cronies, he would be a great backer, and might be depended upon to call in Clarence in case of any need for a court defense. The trouble was, Bob Gray didn't label his article as a joke. Label 'em, Bob, for some of our Chatham friends would fight, for us, and that one, or some tougher one, misapprehending, might get upon a rampage, and then you would have to play the "Red Buck" Bryant stunt. After the notable Fayetteville convention in which Patterson was first nominated for Congress, "Red Buck" came to Lumberton and when some of us told him that Zach Prevatt was there and was inquiring for him to have him give an accounting for his Charlotte Observer article in which Friend Zach was caricatured, "Red Buck" played the vanishing act.

But, seriously, Will Bailey must be a "superman," according to your pronouncement; for we will guarantee that he can read Greek after all these years, and we know he was reading it twelve years ago. The only secret about being able to read Greek and Latin thirty or forty years after one has studied them in the first place, and, given the mind of a Bailey or a Will Vass and a teacher like Dr. Wm. B. Royall, the trick is done, though, dollars to doughnuts, Vass, who made his 99 regularly in Greek to the 97 and 98 of Bailey and another one or two of the class, and has taken life easily, his only care, as stated to this writer a year or two ago, being to have "plenty of sunshine and chawing terbacker," has more nearly let his Greek and Latin slip.

As was his father, E. K. Proctor, Jr., James D. Proctor has been cut off in his prime. James had just been nominated for the senate by Robeson Democrats. Besides his own capabilities, he inherited much of the goodwill so manifest toward his good father, who died, as has James, in the midst of a career of great usefulness. The Proctor side of the family seemed not to lack longevity, as the grandfather of James, E. K. Proctor, Sr., was a hard old nut when his distinguished son, E. K., Jr., died.

BAD POLICY AS WELL AS BAD MORALS

This eve of the Fourth would seem to be a good time to say something that some one, it seems, should say.

As a starter, we clip a paragraph from a letter published in the Afro-American over the name of R. L. Gillispie. Whether the writer is a negro or a white man is not indicated, but our guess is that it is a negro who is seeking to curry favor with the whites. He sends the clipping to the Greensboro News for reproduction, where we saw it. Here it is:

"Having read in your paper on Friday, June 20th, that at present there are several states denying the negro right to vote, and enforcing segregation in schools and public conveyances of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and having had my being and birth in North Carolina, I challenge the clause of voting rights of negroes of this state, and brand it as an infamous lie."

Whether Gillispie is black or white, it seems to the writer that it is he who is lying. For anybody, with any observation at all, should know that negroes are denied the privilege of voting in North Carolina on the ground that they are negroes, and one who does not know that to be the case might have been convinced if he had heard the statement by a registrar in the Chatham county convention Saturday. That registrar has already decreed all negro applicants of the past and the future ineligible to registration, the constitution and his oath to the contrary.

President Moton, if a resident of his township, might appear for registration and be denied under the sweeping practice of this registrar. And such a policy, we believe, will inevitably make trouble. On the other hand, if the qualified negroes are permitted

As this is written Tuesday afternoon it appears that Mrs. Bettie London, Pittsboro's beloved woman, is in extremis. She lies unconscious from an attack of angina pectoris, from which affliction she has suffered at intervals for several years. Her death seems imminent and the children are being summoned to her bedside. H. M. London is already here. It has been only two weeks since The Record carried a beautiful story of Mrs. London's career, from the pen of Congressman Hammer's daughter; consequently, our readers already have a knowledge of the esteem in which she is held, not only at home but abroad. Her name is a household word in many parts of the state, and there is scarcely a Confederate veteran in the state who does not know of her devoted service to the cause of the veterans. Her death will be greatly deplored in her native town, but it will be a satisfaction to consider how long she has been spared as an inspiration to the community.

A BRUTAL MURDER

The news of no more brutal or dastardly murder has gone abroad in many days than that of our friend Fred Newton, postmaster at Kerr, Sampson county. We have known him nearly fifty years and knew no more gentle or harmless man. At the age of seventy he was beaten down on the path from the post office to his home and dragged unconscious into the woods, where he lay till found several hours later.

He was the brother of three Baptist preachers, Rev. C. C. Newton, former pastor at Chapel Hill and later missionary to Africa and buried in the sea on his way home; Rev. J. B. Newton, dead several years, and Rev. J. D. Newton, of Thomasville, who married the brilliant daughter of Jack Mills of orphanage fame. Carey Newton, a son of Rev. C. C., is a missionary in China, connected with a Baptist college. Fred's own son probably had the record for the second largest personal capture of Germans during the World War, and was honored by the people of his county by the presentation of a fine watch at the fair in 1919 or 1920, the same day that the "Flying Parson," who had recently won fame by making the cross continent flight and return quicker than any competitor, though he was forced down in the Rockies and lost a day before he could resume his journey. Mr. Newton only recently lost a son in an automobile accident.

Robbery seemed to be the motive of the unknown slayer, though little could have been found on the postmaster of the village in the pine woods. Nor would one have thought that the woods path through that barren country could be waylaid by an assassin.

Just Like An Ostrich
A medical authority says that a person who tries to cover up skin blemishes and pimples with toilet creams and powders is just as foolish as an ostrich that buries its head in the sand to avoid danger. Skin eruptions are nature's warning that constipation is throwing poisons into your blood stream and weakening your whole constitution. Remove the constipated condition and you will strengthen your system against disease and clear up your disfigured skin. The best way to do this is with a course of Herbine, the vegetable medicine that acts naturally and easily, which you can get at Pittsboro Drug Co. Adv.

ONE ROOF IS ALL YOU SHOULD EVER BUY

Home-owners should never have to buy but one roof. It's too expensive to buy a cheap roof at first and then begin the continual re-roofing process that is the natural order with inferior grades of roofing. One good roof should last the lifetime of the home.

Budd-Piper Roofing Company sells good roofing and stands back of it. The next time you have a job to handle, call on us to supply you with the material you should have.
