*Brown's Chapel News*

If one half of what was said at the Sunday school convention at Brown's last Sunday should be put into practice, the day would prove a very profitable one. There were numerous visitors from Winston, Siler City, Graham, Raleigh, Carboro, Pittsboro, Durham, Bynum and other points. The sermon in the morning was fine, while four big speeches in the afternoon by Messrs. L. L. Wrenn, V. R. Johnson, W. T. Hurst, and especially young Gordon Marshall were very good.

Every member of the True Workers class is urged to be present next Sunday. Important business is to be attended to.

I am sorry anything was said in this correspondence about the fishing party. We didn't know there was any secret about it. However, if we do what we know to be strictly against the law, how can we expect to teach the younger generation to respect the laws? If I should be punished for such violation, I should accept the punishment as my due. I am not so old nor so nearly perfect that I do not need correction. If we go on hard-headed, we may expect some day to give an account of ourselves, in the courts below or above. God, even if our own courts should be, is no respecter of persons, white or black.

DUNCAN REUNION and BIG FAMILY DINNER

The Duncans and their relatives had a family reunion and dinner together last Sunday at John F. Duncan's, near Rocky River Baptist church.

They were there from Raleigh, Hertford county, Greensboro, Ramseur, Asheville and from the surrounding community where most of them live.

253 were present at the dinner hour.

Autos were parked all around the yard and lot and into the field. Baskets were taken from the cars and unloaded on a long table under the shade of trees in the lot. R. B. Lineberry, of Harrellsville, who said he was the oldest of the living Duncan family except Henry S. Duncan, made a few welcome remarks, and Rev. Oscar Lindley returned thanks. After dinner two Cooper brothers made good music. Rev. Oscar Lindley made some remarks on the pleasure and importance of reunions. He said Duncans were from Scotland. He had found that a prominent Duncan in Scotland was once Prime Minister and a great Navel Expert. R. B. Lineberry gave some history of the Duncan family, William Duncan, born in 1802, married Elizabeth Justice born in 1799. They had three children to die young but raised two sons and two daughters. They had in the family of their daughter Martha, who married W. A. Lineberry, 5 grand children, 11 great-grand children and 5 great-great-grand children; in the family of their son David, who married Jane Johnson, 12 grand children, 67 great-grand children, 94 great-great-grand children and 2 great-great-great-grand children; in the family of their son William A. who married Bethunia Bridges, 7 grand children, 30 great-grand children, 19 great-great-grand children, and in the family of their daughter Sarah who married Zeno Johnson one grand child and 4 great grand children.

In closing this sketch of history, being now 70 years old himself he read appropriate lines in recollection of his grand parents.

They organized by electing C. E. Duncan President and M. W. Duncan secretary. William Duncan died in 1883; his wife died in 1863. All their children and their wives and husbands are dead and seven of the grand children are dead.

News of the Week on Chatham County Farms

As the season progresses, we learn of more Chatham farmers who are using intelligent methods for control of boll weevil damage. Mr. DeWitt Smith of Pittsboro, RFD 3, has dusted his cotton twice thoroughly with a good duster and is prepared to continue dusting through the season as needed. Mr. Smith has an excellent type of hand gun, which can be used practically, as his acreage is not large. Mr. Smith states that two dustings of his cotton has made a great difference in the amount of boll weevil damage done, and he is hoping to make a bumper crop this year.

Mr. H. C. Johnson of Farmville is another farmer who is using intelligent methods in controlling boll weevil damage. Mr. Johnson has a traction drawn two-row duster which does the work thoroughly and efficiently. He also has applied several applications of dust to his cotton.

Good crops of lespedeza turned last fall or this winter are now beginning to show up under corn. Where corn on fallow land is beginning to turn yellow and look sickly, corn following lespedeza still holds a healthy, green color and is growing well.

Mr. W. H. Tyler near Gollston has a field of corn in front of his house that follows a crop of lespedeza turned under. This corn has a healthy color and shows that it is growing right. Mr. Tyler expects to make a good crop of corn here.

HOGS ARE NOT HEAT RESISTANT

The hog has the least resistant to heat of any of the classes of live stock. When the mercury rises to 100 degrees, it is not necessary to have electric fans, but hogs should have shade and fresh water, for if shade and water are not available, hogs will make slow gains, or no gains, and possibly die from heat prostration. Feed, water, and comfort are all necessary for economical gains.

The natural shades, such as trees and shrubs afford the most satisfactory shades. A temporary but satisfactory shade may be made by setting posts in a rectangle, connecting them by two-inch by four inch pieces to make a support with pine brushes. This pine brush does not turn the rain, but it does protect from the sun.

An ideal arrangement, and one that a number of farmers can have, is a running stream bordered by shade trees and adjacent to a field of alfalfa or soy beans. Ruring the heat of the day, the porkers can lie in the shade, or wallow in the running stream, while in the evening or early morning they may busy themselves by hogging down the forage.

CURING AND STORING HAY IMPORTANT IN DAIRYING

Hays that are allowed to bleach in the sunlight or are exposed to rainfall lose much of their feeding value. Because of the heavy rains, it takes considerably effort to cure hay properly for dairy purposes with a maximum of feeding value. This loss is true especially of the mineral and vitamin quality of the hay, another form of loss being the shedding of the leaves which contain much of the feed value of the hays.

Thirty to forty percent of the feed value of the hay may be saved by housing properly at the right time, and during the slack season before hay harvesting it is well to see that the hay rooms are properly roofed and large enough for the hay. Very serviceable buildings need not be expensive.

The cheapest place to store hay is in a building which can be filled with hay from the ground up. If the hay is spread out over a wide area, it will cure with its fresh green color and make hay of the highest quality.

As to the amount of hay needed, if there is not silage for the herd, it is advisable to save at least two tons of good hay per cow for the season and one ton each for yearling heifers.

TIMELY CHATHAM COUNTY FARM TOPICS

Those farmers who have been dusting cotton should not "Let Up" now. The recent rains and cool weather will serve to bring out boll weevils in larger crowds than ever, and at least two applications of poison, properly made, should be on cotton within the next three weeks, one week or ten days apart.

Clip the weeds off of those lespedeza fields now and give the lespedeza a chance to grow. Remember that lespedeza does not make its best growth until the hot weather during August and early September. Then too, lespedeza cannot make its proper growth when crowded with weeds, and seed saving is

Mrs. J. C. Andrews Died on July 18

Mr. J. C. Andrews died at his home in Pittsboro last Friday morning at the age of 73 years and 28 days. The burial took place Saturday afternoon at Edward Hill Friends church, near Bonlee. Revs. R. R. Gordon and A. H. Porter conducted the funeral service.

Mr. Andrews has lived in Pittsboro for the last three or four years, but has been comparatively unknown to the citizens in general, as he has been totally blind for five years and, in addition, has been in poor health. He came here when his son, Mr. E. H. Andrews, became supervisor of highway 90 after that road was taken over by the state. The family, or families, for Mr. S. L. Andrews, wife and child also live with the others, have occupied the Womble residence on Salisbury Street.

But while Mr. Andrews is not well known here, he was for many years a stalwart citizen of the Bonlee section and over there reared eleven sons and daughters who have reached maturity and still thrive, while one child died in infancy. He first married Miss Sallie Emerson, to whom were born nine children, eight of whom survive, namely, Mrs. C. F. Moon, of the Bonlee section, R. M. Andrews of Burlington, J. W. Andrews of Bonlee, C. J. Andrews of the Bonlee community, John B. of Burlington, C. M. of Burlington, H. C. of Fayetteville, and E. H. of Pittsboro. After the death of the first wife, Mr. Andrews married Miss Maggie Hart, who survives him. She is the mother of three children, Miss Lala Andrews, telephone operator here, Mrs. Robert Bowers of Siler City, Rt. 1, and S. L. Andrews, Pittsboro. In addition there are 21 grandchildren and one great-grandchild, the latter being a daughter of a daughter of Mr. C. J. Andrews. In fact, it would appear that the deceased's progeny will one day largely populate this section, nine young families already appearing.

Mr. Andrews was a farmer all during his active life, and it goes without saying that he was a good one if he made enough to rear the many stalwart sons and vigorous daughters of the family. Indeed, it is a most creditable group, and few citizens have done so much toward supplying a worthy citizenry to this section.

One brother, Mr. A. C. Andrews, survives. He and all the children and a number of grandchildren and nephews were at the burial.

MISS PEARL JOHNSON RETURNS FROM CHINA

Miss Pearl Johnson, whose voyage from China was announced several weeks ago, has arrived in North Carolina and has been with her sister, Mrs. Butis Benton at Apex. She arrived there last week. Her brother, Mr. Victor R. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson visited her there immediately after her arrival and the Bentons and Miss Johnson spent Sunday in Pittsboro.

Miss Johnson has been a missionary of the Southern Baptist Convention for 14 years. She was home in 1922.

Quite a coincident occurred on her return, in that there was another missionary by the very same name returning on the same ship. In fact, the two Pearl Johnsons did not separate till they reached Asheville, where the other left our Miss Pearl to go to her home in South Carolina.

Many friends are glad to know that Miss Johnson has returned safely and that she will be at home for a considerable period.

EPISCOPAL RECTORY

The rector and Mrs. Shannonhouse spent the midweek at Oracoke with Dr. E. A. Pearce and his daughter, Mrs. Harwood, last week. Also at Oracoke were R. G. Shannonhouse, Jr., and wife and baby, and Miss Norma Shannonhouse, from Charlotte. R. G. Shannonhouse, Jr., holds the position of assistant manager of the Ward store at New Bern. All the above named are in Pittsboro at the rectory for a week's vacation.

The annual picnic supper at the rectory will be held Saturday evening from 6 to 9. All the church members are invited, and a few out of town folks.

Regular service at Pittsboro again on first Sunday in August at 11 o'clock. Next Sunday morning at Sanford.

Juryman—I beg to be excused. Your Honor. I owe a man $10 and as he is leaving for a long trip abroad I want to catch him before he gets on the train, and pay him the $10. It may be my last chance.

Judge—You are excused, I don't want anybody on the jury who can lie like that.—The Pathfinder.

Ronald—And is $10 all you are offering for the return of your wife? Why, no one will bring her back for that small amount.

Edward—Don't I know it!—The Pathfinder.

Says Cost of Electric Current is Service

San Francisco, July 22.—Matthew S. Sloan, President of the National Electric Light Association, in a statement issued recently, from the San Francisco Convention of the Association, challenged the accuracy of statements reported to have been made by Ambassador Sackett in a speech to the World Power Conference at Berlin.

"Ambassador Sackett is mistaken in his fact. Electricity does not cost the great mass of consumers fifteen times what it costs to produce, as he said. On the average the country over the sales price to domestic consumers is not over four times the cost of energy at the power house.

"The Ambassador discloses a lack of understanding of the fundamental economics of business generally, and particularly of electric service.

"Business men know that cost of goods at the factory is a small part of the price paid by customers. Cost of advertising, transporting, distributing, selling, marketing, and servicing, taken together, are the largest element of sales price in most cases.

"Electric service is no exception. The cost of electric power at the power house is the smallest item. The large items of expense in serving our domestic consumers are costs of lines, facilities to deliver the electricity to their homes, losses in delivery, reading the meters, billing, collecting, and maintaining the service for instant use. These costs are incurred in large part regardless of how much electricity our household consumer uses. We do not sell a commodity. We sell a service. Our customers can not go to the power house and get their electricity, pay us cash, and carry it home. We can not store electricity and await future sales. Electric service must be constantly ready for immediate use in any quantity our customers demand. These conditions govern the sales price. It is a matter of pride with us that the average of prices to the great mass of consumers has steadily been reduced year by year."

Burglars visited the store of Hanover & Thomas again Monday night about 3 o'clock. They helped themselves bounteously to about $300 worth of the most valuable dry goods which they could carry away, consisting largely of silk stockings, shoes, suits of clothes, hats and the like. Entrance was obtained by breaking the glass in the rear door and prizing off the latch at the bottom of the door. Boxes and part of the goods were strewn along their route of travel to the highway in front of Mr. B. G. Utley's home. Sheriff Blair, together with Deputies Carl Debern and Lack Johnson, are following up certain clues which they hope to lead to the guilty parties.
