Funeral Held For Mrs. John B. Laws

Died in Greenville, S. C. On Sunday, February 12; Was Age 75

A most impressive funeral service was conducted from Oakwoods Baptist church Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock for Mrs. John B. Laws, who passed away Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Steelman, of Greenville, S. C. Rev. A. E. Watts and Rev. W. E. Linney were in charge of the service which was attended by a large concourse of people. Interment was made in the family cemetery near the church.

Mrs. Laws had gone to Greenville to spend the winter with her daughter and had been ill only a week.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Charles Steelman, of Greenville, S. C., and Miss Nora Laws, of Oakwoods, and one son, J. R. Laws, of Johnson City, Tenn. Her husband died on May 18, 1928.

Mrs. Laws was a charter member of Oakwoods Baptist church. She joined the church at the age of 12, uniting with Fishing Creek church and later moving her membership to Oakwoods.

Mrs. Laws spent her entire life in the Oakwoods community and was one of the most beloved women in that section. She was a lovable character and was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

A striking co-incidence was that Mrs. Laws, who was 75 years of age, died 28 1-2 hours after the death of her twin brother, J. T. Jones. Mrs. Laws and Mr. Jones had never been separated more than 90 days during their entire lives.

Winston-Salem Journal To Omit Monday Paper

(From Winston-Salem Journal)

Beginning next week and continuing until further notice, the Winston-Salem Journal will omit publication of the Monday morning issue.

In order that readers may be informed of the more important news which occurs Sunday after the publication of the Sunday Journal and Sentinel, Radio Station WSJS will broadcast news happenings at a special period every Monday morning. This will be in addition to the regular Sunday night "news flashes."

Publication of the Monday morning Journal was started about 15 years ago at a time when the country was at war and when the most important news events were happening daily, without regard to the intervention of Sunday. After a careful study of the Monday morning edition for the past year, its publication has not seemed to be warranted as a service either to readers or advertisers.

Furthermore, in order to publish a Monday morning newspaper, it is necessary for a large proportion of the newspaper staff to work Sunday afternoon and Sunday night and for a certain number of people, including all of the carriers, to work seven days a week. The elimination of the Monday morning edition will put workers on not more than a six-day basis without depriving readers or advertisers of an essential service.

The omission of the Monday morning edition was contemplated in the recent decision of the newspapers to serve all city subscribers with morning, evening and Sunday editions in combination at one low cost. It also enables us to continue the special low price on Journal mail subscriptions.

We believe that our readers will approve of this change. We will welcome an expression of opinion from readers either in commendation or criticism.

Submit Reports

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the committee, submitted these reports for the Record and questioned Samuel Insull, Jr., concerning them when the 32-year-old son of the founder of the utilities group, now living in exile in Greece, was recalled to a witness stand.

A few more wrinkles in his face, less active but still emphatic Dawes, faced the inquiring senators and outlined loans made by his Chicago bank to the Insull interests. On the day the Insull group collapsed, Dawes said, his bank records showed 41 loans aggregating $11,977,000 made to the Insull organizations or to officers or directors thereof.

He admitted the total of these loans would have been in violation of Illinois banking laws had they been made to one individual borrower but such was not the case since the money was advanced to several groups.

JIM CORBETT PUTS UP A GAME FIGHT

New York, Feb. 16.—Although James J. Corbett was "weaker" today, he amazed attendants at his home by getting out of bed and walking about the room and then smoking a cigar.

The former heavyweight champion, who is battling a serious heart ailment at his home, was described as having the "most amazing determination and physical stamina of any human being," by John Kelloher of Brookline, Mass., one of the watchers at his bedside.

John Kelloher, 56, and his brother, Dennis, 76, are constantly with "Gentleman Jim" during his critical illness. They moved into the Corbett home from a downtown hotel recently when his condition became grave, and watch over the former patient in shifts.

NOT BY BREAD ALONE

The Journal-Patriot has obtained permission from James Larkin Pearson, perhaps North Carolina's greatest poet today, to reprint his most recent poem, "Not by Bread Alone," which appeared in the Sunday edition of the New York Times on February 5. This poem has received much favorable comment and readers of The Journal-Patriot will no doubt be pleased to obtain it for their scrap books. It follows:

Not By Bread Alone
They wonder what I do for bread,
Because I am so poor;
But I go by with lifted head,
As proud as one but lately fed,
And faith that holds secure.
I do not live by bread alone—
I fill myself with peace;
And every ill that I have known
Has changed to certain good and grown
My magic's increase.

They wonder what I do for wine
In such an arid land;
But never once do I repine,
For all of Heaven's brew is mine,
And ready to my hand.
I do not thirst like other men,
I drink the flaming sun,
And quaff the foaming stars, and then
I shall not ever thirst again
Till age on age is done.

—JAMES LARKIN PEARSON

INVESTED FRANCHISES BY INSULLS ARE SHOWN

Washington, Feb. 16.—Frenzied financial operations that preceded the crash of the vast Insull utilities interests were outlined to the Senate stock market investigating committee today by two of the nation's most distinguished citizens.

These men, Owen D. Young, industrialist, and Charles G. Dawes, peppery banker-statesman, revealed the Insull interests had borrowed more than $75,000,000 to support the tottering utilities empire and that the subsequent collapse was felt by powerful eastern banks and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The work was apparently that of professionals, and was described by police as an exceptionally neat job.

KINDNESS REWARDED

The rector, going up the steps of his church to conduct service, was accosted by a stately old lady in difficulties with her breathing.

"Pardon me," she said, "but would you do me the favor of assisting me up the steps?"

"Certainly, madam," assented the rector, giving her his arm. They reached the door, when the old lady, pausing, asked: "Pardon me once more, but do you know who is preaching this morning?"

"The rector, madam."

"Oh! Then might I beg you to do me yet another favor?"

"Certainly," replied the rector. "What else can I do for you?"

"Would you be so good as to assist me down the steps again?"
