And here's congratulations to Trumen Hayes for showing the two holdup men where to get off. A few more tricks like that and there will be fewer robberies.

While North Carolina was not awarded a place in the Roosevelt cabinet, this state will play an important part in the new administration. Congressman Robert L. Doughton will be chairman of the powerful ways and means committee, following in the footsteps of the late Claude Kitchen who held that post for many years.

The final chapter in the Pritchard-Bailey contest was written a few days ago when Mr. Pritchard was allowed $4,000 to pay his lawyers and defray other expenses of the contest. Mr. Bailey was allowed $1,500 and the State of North Carolina was re-imburged to the extent of $500 for gathering up the ballot boxes. The senate showed no inclination to be over-generous in its expense allowance, which is as it should be.

Difference Only In Name

When the Legislature did away with the office of Executive Counsel, people rejoiced that a saving had been effected. However, it developed that a parole commissioner had been advocated by somebody and so that office was created.

The point that would be amusing, if the matter were not so serious, is that the amount saved by doing away with the office of Executive Counsel was $5,560 and the amount added by the creation of the office of parole commissioner is $5,560. There is a difference only in name and this, we submit, is not a saving to the taxpayers.

Here is how the Raleigh News and Observer tells the story:

"Governor Ehringhaus recommended it. The reorganization committee recommended it. The Legislature did it. The people applauded the abolishing of the office of Executive Counsel as evidence that the people at Raleigh were doing things to save taxpayers' money instead of just talking about it. The joint appropriations committee solemnly voted to strike out the appropriations for the abolished office. Members smiled. They had saved the taxpayers $5,560 a year. Then somebody remembered that the house had passed a bill creating the office of parole officer. Having just saved the taxpayers $5,560 a year there was little opposition to making a new appropriation. It was fixed at exactly $5,560 a year."

Education Is Way Out

The ease with which the public learns of crime sometimes makes it appear that the world is going, or has already gone, to the bow-wows. That is not the case. Crime is rampant, it is true, but a people that has undertaken the ambitious program of giving a high school education to every boy and girl will not fail in halting any crime wave which reaches alarming proportions.

A solution to the crime problem lies in education. That is the way out. Statistics show that a large percentage of the crimes committed in the country today are committed by the uneducated.

If anyone doubts the effect of education upon crime, let them check the actual facts. Here they are:

Eleven and six-tenths per cent of all prisoners in the country today are illiterate; that is, cannot read and write at all.

Seventy-one and two-tenths per cent have the scantiest elementary education. Eleven per cent have attended high school.

Three and one-tenth per cent have attended college.

Note that the eleven per cent were not high school graduates. They had merely attended high school at some time or another. It is our opinion that not more than 10 per cent of the criminals today have finished high school or attended college.

Education is the way out. Crime will be reduced to the minimum when we have as nearly as possible given a high school education or a college education to every boy and girl.

Senator Walsh

On his way to Washington to accept new responsibilities, with his bride of less than a week, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, upon whom the people banked heavily to do a big job as Attorney General in the Roosevelt cabinet, laid down all his cares and slipped quietly into the Great Beyond. The untimely death removes from the services of the nation one of the ablest men and one of the most honest and courageous.

It was fortunate that the Senate had Walsh who relentlessly prosecuted the inquiry into one of the worst scandals in the history of the Republic. Such was his career that the American people had unbounded confidence in his honesty and looked forward to his sojourn in the Attorney General's office with the belief that the department of justice would be in hands that could deal effectively with the problems which it faces.

Twice Senator Walsh presided over the national convention of his party. In 1924 when the long, drawn-out deadlock developed at Madison Square Garden, Senator Walsh exhibited an abundance of patience and won the utmost respect of both warring factions. Again last June, he sat in the chair during the Chicago convention when an effort was made to block the nomination of Roosevelt. While known to be a Roosevelt supporter, he was impartial in the truest sense and none could doubt his evident desire to save his party from another Madison Square Garden affair which would have assured defeat for the party's candidate.

He was a Democrat—one of the ablest—and an American of whom all the people were proud to have in public life.

BRUCE BARTON WRITES

STREET CARS AND MEN

Surely no one will consider us lacking in reverence if we say that every one of the "principles of modern salesmanship" on which business men so much pride themselves, are brilliantly exemplified in Jesus' talk and work. The first of these and perhaps the most important is the necessity for "putting yourself in step with your prospect." A great sales manager used to illustrate it in this way:

"When you want to get aboard a street car which is already in motion, you don't run at it from right angles and try to make the platform in one wild leap," he would say. "If you do, you are likely to find yourself on the floor. No, you run along beside the car, increasing your pace until you are moving just as rapidly as it is moving and in the same direction. Then you step aboard easily, without danger or jolt."

"The minds of busy men are in motion," he would continue. "They are engaged with something very different from the thought you have to present. You can't jump directly at them and expect to make an effective landing. You must put yourself in the other man's place; try to imagine what he is thinking; let your first remark be in line with his thought; follow it by another which you know he will easily agree."

"Thus, gradually, your two minds reach a point where they can join without conflict. You encourage him to say 'yes' and 'yes' and 'that's right' and 'I've noticed that myself,' until he says the final 'yes' which is your favorable decision."

Jesus taught all this without ever teaching it. Every one of His conversations, every contact between His mind and others, is worthy of attentive study of any sales manager. Passing along the shores of a lake one day, He saw two of the men whom He wanted as disciples. Their minds were in motion; their hands were busy with their nets; their conversation was about conditions in the fishing trade, and the prospects of a good market for the day's catch. To have broken in on such thinking with the offer of employment as preachers of a new religion would have been to confuse them and invite a certain rebuff. What was Jesus' approach?

"Come with me," He said, "and I will make you fishers of men."

Fishers . . . that was a word they could understand . . . fishers of men . . . that was a new idea . . . what was He driving at . . . fishers of men . . . it sounded interesting . . . well, what is it, anyway? They listened. They were convinced. They said yes—and they went with Him.

THE CYCLE OF TRAGEDY

(Charlotte Observer)

Verily, one is moved to wonder what new tragedy the day may bring forth. Readers of the morning paper were still shuddering over detail of the cremation of the Black Mountain young aviator and his sister, at North Wilkesboro, when there came another severe tug at the heart-strings in detail of the burning to death of a family of five young people in a mill village near Greenville, in the neighbor state. The latter incident brought reminders of the Cleveland school-house fire, of several years ago, with equally tragic incidents in the heroic. In the Greenville affair, there was the case of Mattie, the oldest of the children, who, safely out of danger, rushed back into the flaming up-stairs, intent on rescuing the other children—and did not return. From contemplation of scenes of the kind, one would instinctively turn—and yet one must read and grieve.

The federal prison at Atlanta is to have a radio in every cell. If that doesn't induce general reform, we might as well give up the country to the criminal element.—Kansas City Star.

Republican Leaders Meet To Plan For Party's Comeback

Washington.—Plans for an aggressive Republican comeback campaign were laid at a meeting of the Republican national executive committee today.

These party leaders decided against any political moratorium. They agreed to step up party publicity activities. Their aim is to bring about a return of the Republican party to power in the congressional elections next year.

"There is no reason why we should not exercise the functions a minority party serves in opposing unsound policies," said Republican National Chairman Everett Sanders.

He said no personnel had been decided upon. There have been reports that some national Republican figure would be asked to lead the party's publicity campaign. Senator George Moses (R), N. H., who is retiring from the Senate this week, and Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, have been mentioned frequently for such a rôle.

President Hoover today sent a farewell message to the committee meeting recommending that the party follow a policy of co-operation rather than partisanship but he stressed equally the necessity of constructive party debate and opposition to unsound measures.

The committee informed Mr. Hoover that the Republican party would continue to look to him for leadership and would rely on his counsel and co-operation.

There was no hint in this exchange as to Mr. Hoover's future plans or as to the attitude party leaders would take should the retiring President become interested in leading the 1936 presidential race.

Plans for paying off the party's deficit of $213,000 and raising money for an aggressive fight to recapture Congress were discussed. The executive committee voted to co-operate closely and actively with the House and Senate congressional campaign committees next year.

Leaders indicated in their discussions a belief that there will be a reaction back toward the Republican party and that by a fighting campaign they may recapture a number of House and Senate seats which fell into Democratic hands last November. "In these times co-operation and not partisanship is the need of the country," Mr. Hoover said in his message, "but it is no less an obligation of the party to subject all proposals to the scrutiny of constructive debate and to oppose those which will hurt the progress and the welfare of the country."

Replying the executive committee said: "The supporters of our great party will continue to look to you for leadership in these difficult and dangerous days and we of the party organization are relying upon your counsel and co-operation in solving the many problems before us."

Mr. Hoover said both parties could well unite behind certain fundamentals such as preserving the integrity of the currency and of all government obligations, correction of economic and political abuses, strengthening local government, achieving government economies and protecting the nation's institutions and its citizens from forces beyond their control.

Moratorium Bill Passes

Lincoln, Neb., March 2.—Gov. C. W. Bryan's two-year mortgage foreclosure moratorium bill was passed by the senate 25 to 2 today.

It imposes a moratorium until March 1, 1935, on all real estate mortgage foreclosure procedure after the granting of the decree and before the confirmation of the sale. Carrying an emergency clause it then required only the governor's signature to make it effective immediately.

Indiana To Vote On Repeal

Indianapolis, March 2.—The Indiana senate today passed a house bill providing for a state convention to vote upon repeal of the federal prohibition amendment. The measure must be returned to the house for concurrence in minor amendments made by the senate. The vote in the senate was 35 to 7.

Threatening Letters Received

St. Paul, March 2.—Three members of the Minnesota legislature and Governor Floyd B. Olson received threatening letters today. The letters, which were unsigned, were turned over to postal officials.

Man Killed By Blowout

Seattle.—Pounding a weakened tire to loosen it from the rim, Chester Morgan, 35, truck driver, was injured fatally today by a blowout of the tube which shot a piece of casing into his right eye. He died in a hospital.

Labor Federation Attacks Appointment Of Miss Perkins

Washington, March 2.—Union feminism rose to praise Franklin D. Roosevelt today for appointing Frances Perkins to the cabinet but the American Federation of Labor, in discordant note, officially declared it can "never become reconciled" to the selection.

Thus, even before inauguration, the new president had brought down upon himself bitter criticism from a powerfully organized social group.

The disapproval, however, had been anticipated. The federation always has assumed the labor secretary should be a person its leaders regarded as acceptable, and has insisted on backing only a man from its own ranks.

The labor criticism was alone. Women's organizations drafted enthusiastic telegrams and dispatched them immediately to the Roosevelt home. Particularly, they stressed pleasure that Miss Perkins was chosen on the ground of personal fitness rather than sex.

William Green, president of the labor federation, expressed his organization's disappointment thus:

"Labor has consistently contended that the department of labor should be what its name implies and that the secretary of labor should be representative of labor, one who understands labor, labor's problems, labor's psychology, collective bargaining, industrial relations and one who enjoys the confidence of labor."

"In the opinion of labor the newly appointed secretary of labor does not meet these qualifications. Labor can never become reconciled to the selection made."

Accomplishments Of N. C. Dairymen During Year 1932

Raleigh.—Ten definite accomplishments by dairymen of North Carolina for the year 1932 are recorded by John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at State College.

He lists them as follows:

1. There was an increase by 26 per cent in the production of creamery butter over the year 1931.
2. There was an increase by 20 per cent in the production of cheese over the previous year.
3. There was an increase of 14 pounds of butterfat per cow considering the cows in the herd improvement associations.
4. Dairy farmers began the use of the economical trench silo, digging 41 during the latter part of the year.
5. Seventy old barns were remodelled.
6. Seventy-five cooling tanks for milk and cream were constructed.
7. At the request of dairymen, there were mailed blue print plans for 286 barns, 95 milk houses and 30 safety bull pens.
8. There were 233 purebred dairy bulls placed.
9. One new creamery was established.

These ten items of advancement show that dairying is steadily but surely winning a stable place in the farm life of North Carolina, Arey says.

Scouts Win High Honor

New York, March 4.—The names of the four eagle scouts who stood beside President Roosevelt when he reviewed the inaugural parade today are Norman W. Pinschmidt, of Richmond, Va.; Calvin S. George, Jr., of Baltimore, and Reiner C. Lindsay, and Houston Buchanan, of Washington.

Lenoir.—The meanest of the meanest thieves has been reported in Lenoir.

Last week, while County Accountant T. W. Boring was attend the funeral of his wife in Lincoln county, someone entered his residence here and stole all the silverware and other articles. No trace of the thieves has been found.

LIBBY LEAVES SON

Philadelphia, March 2.—Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds left her seven-weeks-old son in the Pennsylvania hospital long enough today to pay a visit to the estate she leased several months ago near Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. Reynolds, widow of Smith Reynolds, has been remaining at the hospital, where the heir to part of the Reynolds tobacco fortune is gaining in weight steadily.

The former Broadway singer leased the Ives estate in Delaware several weeks before she entered the hospital January 10.
