Think Twice

Before you push a brother down.
Think twice.
Before at others sins you frown.
Think twice.
For who are you, in judgment hall.
Your brother to the bar to call?
Tomorrow you may slip and fall.
Think twice.
Beware the stinging gibe and quip.
Think twice.
Lest you yourself should feel the whip.
Think twice.
Withhold the gossip's idle sneer.
The thrust that draws the bitterest tear.
For fortune's favoring gales may veer.
Think twice.

Is charity a quickened art?
Think twice.
And does it thrill both hand and heart?
Think twice.
The mercy you to others show
That mercy you shall someday know.
With others' faults be kind, be slow.
Think twice.

Zangara To Face Court Today

Slayer of Mayor Cermak To Be Arraigned On Charge of First Degree Murder

Miami, Fla., March 7.—The assassin, Giuseppe Zangara, bowing and smiling at the curious gaze of a courtroom full of spectators, today was ordered arraigned on Thursday for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago in his wild attempt to slay President Roosevelt.

His attorneys—the same he had when he was sentenced to 80 years imprisonment on plea of guilty to charges of attempting the life of the president and three bystanders here February 15—declined to say whether Zangara will plead guilty to the murder charge.

The first degree murder indictment returned yesterday by a grand jury called hastily into action from recess was not read in today's brief session of court. Copies were delivered to Zangara's attorneys after they asked, in spite of the state attorney's statement that he was ready to go to trial at once, for time to consider the case.

Under Florida law, the penalty for first degree murder is death in the electric chair, except in the case of a recommendation for mercy, when the penalty is life imprisonment.

Another feature of the law requires that, should Zangara enter a plea of guilty to the first degree murder charge, he cannot be sentenced by the judge without the taking of evidence in the case. Should he plead not guilty a 12-man jury will decide his fate.

H. V. TORMOHLN SAYS:

Is He Good Enough?

A poultryman said to me yesterday: "I almost ruined my flock and lost an entire year in my breeding improvement program by using a male that was not right."

In times like these there is more temptation than at others to use a male at the head of a pen or in a flock that is not as good as he should be. If you have fallen to that temptation and have one or more males in your yards this season that are not what they should be, it is yet time to face about and save yourself much grief and money.

We must not forget that the male is half the flock and as such puts an indelible stamp upon the flock of next year and the year after. Indeed more fowls take definitely after their grandfathers than they do their sires. In other words greater disaster may be apparent in two years than next year. On the other hand a good male may not appear to make such a wonderful sire until you have kept him long enough to see his grandsons and daughters. It is in the second generation that the wise old poultryman looks most carefully for results from a sire he had every reason to believe would make history. We have found this so often in our more than a quarter century breeding that we think the rule almost an inviolable one. True, we get many splendid individuals the first cross but it is the next cross where all but perfection is attained in some individuals.

Breeding males were never so cheap in the last decade and choicest blood lines were never as an open book as they are today. If the males or male you have are not good enough it is yet time to purchase better ones almost at your own price. Make progress this year by long strides and at the least cost. Many $25 and $50 males are selling for $5 and $10 in this year of 1933.

THEY ADVERTISE

A hen is not supposed to have much common sense or tact. Yet every time she lays an egg she cackles forth the fact. A rooster hasn't got a lot of intellect to show. But none the less more roosters have Enough good sense to crow. The busy little bees they buzz. Bulls bellow and cows moo. The watch dog barks, the gander quacks. And doves and pigeons coo. The peacock spreads his tail and struts. Pigs squeal and robins sing. And even serpents know enough. To hiss before they sting. But man, the greatest masterpiece

That nature could devise. Will often stop and hesitate. Before he'll advertise. —Swiped.

To Consider Armory And School Athletic Building Here Friday

City Commissioners Took Matter Up Tuesday; No Decision Reached

PROTEST CHARTER MOVE

The board of city commissioners in session Tuesday afternoon laid aside for further consideration the matter of aiding in the erection of an Armory and School Athletic building to replace the armory which was burned recently and in joint session with the trustees of the North Wilkesboro city schools passed a resolution protesting the proposed legislation in the General Assembly which would abolish certain charter school districts, including the North Wilkesboro district.

One of the most important meetings of the year was held by the commissioners. Mayor J. A. Rousseau and all members of the board, I. E. Pearson, S. V. Tomlinson, J. C. Reins, L. A. Harris and Ralph Duncan, were present.

Consideration of the Armory and School Athletic building was deferred until tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 4 o'clock when another meeting will be held. W. D. Halfacre, superintendent of the city schools, represented the Athletic Association, Ralph R. Reins, captain of Company "A", appeared for the National Guard, and H. H. Morehouse, president of the Great Wilkes Fair Association which has always used the armory as an exhibit hall during the fair, represented that group.

In a brief joint meeting with the school trustees, the resolution opposing the move to abolish the local charter district was adopted by both groups. It is generally understood that all charter districts except nine which are located in the larger cities would be abolished by the proposed legislation.

A copy of the resolution will be forwarded to all state senators and representatives immediately. A claim for damages in the amount of $1,500 submitted by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Gudger was rejected. It was claimed that the property of the claimants was damaged by reason of work done on "G" street.
