

Bowie Appropriations Measure Is Approved By 53-44 House Vote

Substitute For Committee's Biennial Supply Bill Contemplates Expenditures of $73,000,000 During 1933-35

Raleigh, March 17.—Leaders of the drastic economy and anti-sales tax bloc of the house early today drove to victory in four hours of hectic debate and secured adoption of the Bowie-Cherry appropriations substitute calling for expenditures of $73,000,000 during the 1933-35 biennium. The vote was 53 to 44.

For the first time this session the house clock was turned back to avoid running into another legislative day. The session formally adjourned at 12:10 o'clock this morning.

The Bowie-Cherry substitute slashes the joint appropriations committee bill by $10,000,000, which in turn had cut allotments for this biennium by $18,000,000.

Opponents of the Bowie bill managed to hold the floor during most of last night's debate and argument was cut off shortly before midnight by Representative

Gardner, of Cleveland, a signer of the Bowie measure, who called the previous question.

Adoption of the Bowie bill was predicted upon adoption of amendments to be offered by Representative Cherry, of Gaston, who had reached an agreement with the Ashe representative.

Bowie's bill sets appropriations for the six months' school at $10,000,000 yearly, while the Cherry amendment will place them at $12,500,000. Allotments for other institutions will be increased by other Cherry amendments, already agreed to by Bowie.

Bowie, who is a member of the joint appropriations committee and who fought in committee for greatly reduced allotments as compared with budget advisory commission figures, based his bill on a 25 per cent reduction in practically all state expenditures. Salaries would be reduced by 30 per cent under present levels.

Other features of the substitute include diversion of $1,000,000 yearly from the highway fund for general fund purposes and drastic reductions in funds for maintenance of state and county roads. During tonight's debate, which ran to about 10 hours, the debate on adoption or rejection of the Bowie substitute, the house got its first taste of filibuster in a session. Opponents of the economy and anti-sales tax bloc succeeded in holding the floor to the full limit of their time.

A MODEST MUSSOLINI

(Shelby Star)

One of the most impressive phases of the new Roosevelt administration with its near dictatorial powers is the modesty with which the President bears and expresses himself.

It is difficult to be both commanding and modest, but Mr. Roosevelt appears to have surmounted the difficulty.

Few, if any, presidents of the United States have ever had the power entrusted to Roosevelt, a power that surpasses all of the much talked dictatorial rule of the Mussolinis, Hitlers and Stalins, yet that power has not, as they say on the street, gone to the head of America's chief executive.

Within one week's time Mr. Roosevelt took the reins and complete charge of the American government. He took immediate action in the bank crisis. He demanded bank legislation that would protect every depositor and Congress gave it. He declared the public expense must be cut and had his policy adopted but with a little more difficulty than his other policies because the representatives in Washington are afraid to meddle with the political pie counter and patronage which help keep them there.

Through it all the President maintained a level and unassuming head.

Speaking on the radio Sunday night, in his first message from the White House, President Roosevelt urged the American citizenship to show proper courage and faith. He also expressed his appreciation for the confidence placed in him. Time and time again there came places where he could easily have said "I", "me", "we", or "mine", but he did not. When he referred to any one of the acts of his administration which has won for him the 100 percent loyalty and confidence of the people, he said the "policy of the government," not "my policy." The modest manner in which he expressed appreciation for reception of policies which were practically his personal policies caught the attention of his radio hearers and his newspaper readers.

It takes a real man, as Kipling put it, to rule, command and lead and still retain the common touch. So far Roosevelt has done just that and thereby has won for himself an even firmer spot in the hearts of his countrymen who now look to him almost without exception as the Moses longed for.

Cut of 40 Per Cent For Fourth Quarter

State Departments, Bureaus, Commissions Notified By Budget Bureau

Raleigh, March 17.—The cost of North Carolina's state government will be slashed almost in half for the last quarter of the 1931-1933 biennium which will end June 30 with an accumulated deficit estimated at $12,600,000.

State department and institutions Friday were informed "there is no possibility of borrowing further sums even if it were desirable" and they would have to get along during April, May and June on allotments "that will seem absurd and impossible."

Henry Burke, budget executive, estimated allotments to departments and institutions supported by the general fund, would have to cut more than 40 per cent for the quarter while the highway department cost will have to be cut in half.

In explaining the memorandum that went to department and institutional heads, Burke said the reductions would not be made on a horizontal basis.

"Some way will be worked out to maintain a skeleton of the present set-up," he said. The general assembly is now wrangling over appropriations for the 1933-35 biennium.

The budget memorandum said the reductions could not be helped, adding that "after calm consideration, it will not be either absurd or impossible."

General fund allotments for the third quarter approximated $7,200,000, of which only $237,000 was for debts. The fourth quarter allotments were estimated at $5,275,000, including $2,350,000 to be paid on debts in April and $325,000 for pensions on June 1.

Ehringhaus For Keeping Schools Of State Moving

Governor, Near Collapse, Helped From Chamber After Finishing Speech

Raleigh—Failure of the North Carolina general assembly to adopt some form of sales tax or new taxation would result in the "crucifixion" of the state's credit, schools, roads and institutions, Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus told a joint session of the legislature in a special message Monday night.

The governor delivered his lengthy address under a physical strain, having last night a recurrence of an ailment he suffered prior to his inauguration. He mopped his brow fervently and frequently as he read his text in clear, resonant tones.

Upon completion of the message Ehringhaus was practically carried from the house chamber by two legislators as the others arose and applauded. He was too weak to walk alone down the twisting capitol steps. He went immediately to the executive mansion and to bed.

It was apparent the governor's message had been received with grave concern as legislators commented on its inclusiveness.

Presenting his view on taxation and balancing the budget to the men who have struggled over the problem for more than 60 days, the state's chief executive avoided a specific recommendation as to the form of a sales tax.

"The prerogative of choosing methods is yours," Ehringhaus declared. "I can only beg you to follow the one which in your judgment will rest less heavily on the lives, habits and activities of our people."

Farmers to Have Larger Incomes If Roosevelt's Farm Plan Is a Success

Chicago, March 16.—The income of the farmer would be boosted substantially if the Roosevelt farm bill, now before congress, achieves its goal of restoring the average prices for the pre-war years, 1909-14.

Average market records here show the average farm prices for those years for major commodities were:

Wheat, 76 to 99 cents a bushel.
Corn 48.8 to 69.1 cents.
Cotton 8.86 to 14.23 cents a pound.

Among the higher quotations on leading exchanges for today's booming market were:

Wheat, 53 cents for May and July futures; 55 1-2 No. 1 hard on the cash market.

Corn, 26 to 27 for No. 2 yellow cash; 29 for September futures.

Cotton, 6.79 for May contracts at New York.

though economical provisions and an unmistakably balanced budget."

GROWING A FLOWER GIRL

ILLUSION:
The magician exhibits a flower pot with hinged sides on a table in the center of the stage. He opens the sides to show that this container is empty. Closing it up, he places a screen between it and the audience. After a short period of magic incantations he removes the screen. The astounded audience sees a beautiful girl, covered to the shoulders in lovely flowers, rising from the "empty" container. Where did she come from?

EXPLANATION:
The girl was hiding behind the drape of the table. There is a trap door in the bottom of the flower pot, with a hole large enough to allow her to crawl through. The flowers, called "magicians' feather flowers," are a regular part of a magician's outfit. The flower girl wears a rubber tunic and a bathing cap to keep the flowers compressed into small space. She slides the tunic down and the flowers expand when she emerges.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED ... IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

A trick frequently worked in cigarette advertising is the illusion that mildness in a cigarette comes from mysterious processes of manufacture. EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.
