Program At Brier Creek Announced

Homicide Causes Excitement In Dellaplane Community

ROARING RIVER, Route 2, May 30.—The sesqui-centennial and home coming at Brier Creek church, four or five miles from Dellaplane, June 25, will open at 10 a. m. There will be a sermon at 11:00, probably by Rev. C. F. Fields, of Benham, a former pastor, if he is able to preach. There will be a short lecture on the growth of Baptist principles, and a history of Brier Creek church through its 150 years. The afternoon will be characterized by one address and several impromptu talks. Throughout the day there will be good singing by several choirs and quartets, including that of Brier Creek, the Swan Creek quartet, and the Bethel class. Dinner will be served on the grounds at twelve, and all those who are not coming from too great a distance, and otherwise inconvenienced, are requested to bring baskets. A more detailed program will be announced through the papers within a few days. The program committee, appointed Saturday, and consisting of the pastor, Rev. N. T. Jarvis, and Miss Mattie E. Sale, and Mrs. Laura Martin Linney, are busy completing the arrangements for the celebration.

The homicide which took place only about two miles southeast of Dellaplane the latter part of last week, when "Sucker" Sale, colored, killed Gib Parks, also colored, with an axe, has caused considerable excitement here, as killings are very rare in this immediate neighborhood. Gib, the slain young colored man, son of Hamp Parks and his first wife, an Allen darkie, was regarded here as a very good, industrious, and peaceable darkie. He was the husband of Claire Anne Walker Parks.

Cranberry church was enlarged and repaired last week by members of the congregation, which includes several excellent carpenters.

Mesdames Robert Sale and sons, of the Cranberry community, and Roxie Staley, and son Laurence, of Roaring River, spent last Thursday in this community, having their corn at their farm and girlhood home, the old Carringer place, shelled.

Relatives here are glad to learn that Mr. D. S. Lane, of North Wilkesboro, has returned home from Mercy Hospital, Charlotte, where he underwent a very serious operation some weeks ago. He is said to be getting along abo, as well as could be expected, considering his advanced age of 70.

Miss Hazel Love, of Roaring River, spent Saturday night with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Love, and accompanied them to the cherry orchard at Mr. France Sale's Sunday.

Mrs. H. D. Eller, of near the cotton mill, above Roaring River, was a North Wilkesboro visitor, Saturday.

Judge and Mrs. Phleto A. Martin, of Wichita Falls, Texas, are attending the World's Fair, Chicago, and may come on to Wilkes for the sesqui-centennial at Brier Creek. Judge Martin, who grew up within a mile of the old church, has been asked to make an address.

Mrs. Alice Love and grandsons, Coy Love and Chuck Ridings, were in North Wilkesboro shopping and consulting Dr. Gilreath Saturday, and also visited her daughter, Mrs. Gypsy Anderson, of Wilkesboro Route 2.

Many white people, as well as colored, attended the funeral of Gib Parks, at the colored church, Union Grove, Monday afternoon, attesting the esteem in which he was held and the sympathy aroused by the tragedy.

Rev. J. W. Rash, of Statesville, preached at Brier Creek Saturday afternoon.

Miss Mabel Cherry, returned missionary to Korea, who is speaking at a Methodist zone meeting in North Wilkesboro, is well known at Dellaplane and very popular with those who have followed her career with interest. She served pedagogical novitiate here, having taught the Dellaplane school, her first experience, in 1915-1916, immediately after she was graduated from Davenport college. The Dellaplane correspondent was one of her students.

Mrs. Duck Walker, beloved old lady of the Brier Creek community, remains about the same, and relatives have been at her bedside.

Rev. N. T. Jarvis, of the Cranberry settlement, preached at Dennyville, near Cycle, Sunday morning, and at Brier Creek Sunday afternoon. At Brier Creek he based his discourse on the third chapter of Revelations, the letter to the angel of the church at Sardis. In a good sermon he stressed especially the first verse, "I know thy works, that thou
