ELKIN AND JEFFERSON ROADS TO BE STARTED SOON

Prohibition Repeal Campaign Warming Up In Wilkes

Pete Murphy Will Speak In County; Lovill Is Coming

Repeal Forces To Hold Rally Next Tuesday Night At The Courthouse

ONLY ONE "WET" RALLY

Boone Attorney To Fire Final Gun In Dry Campaign On November 5th

Interest in the election on November 7 in which the voters of Wilkes will elect a delegate to the constitutional convention to vote on the question of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment is picking up and indications are that both the repeal and anti-repeal leaders will see the busiest days of the campaign between now and election day.

The big guns of the campaign of those favoring repeal will be heard next Tuesday evening, October 31, at the courthouse in Wilkesboro when the county-wide rally of the repeal forces will be held.

Pete Murphy, of Salisbury, state manager for repeal, and a prominent Republican speaker, whose name could not be learned this morning, will be the speakers. The dynamic Salisbury attorney and legislator is expected to draw an immense concourse of people to hear him.

The rally will begin at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and leaders extend an invitation to the public to hear the two speakers.

The closing gun of the dry campaign will be fired Sunday, November 5, when W. R. Lovill, prominent Boone attorney, will deliver an address at a county-wide rally in Wilkesboro.

Announcement that the big rally is planned was made yesterday by dry leaders who expressed pleasure at being able to secure Mr. Lovill for this meeting.

The rally will be held in the evening at 7:30 o'clock either at the courthouse or in the Wilkesboro school auditorium.

Both sides are expected to make every effort possible to get their sympathizers registered Saturday, the only day which registrars will be at the polling places.

Up to the present time, the repeal forces have held no speakings and no active campaign has been waged. However, the drys have been busy, sending speakers into almost every nook and corner of the county.

The response of the citizenship to their campaign has been most enthusiastic, according to leaders. On the other hand, those favoring repeal believe that the great wave of sentiment which has resulted in a repeal victory in every state which has voted will continue and place Wilkes and North Carolina in the wet column when the votes are tabulated.

Approximately 135 dealers in Good Gulf products from five counties in this territory were guests of Distributors C. D. Coffey, Jr., of this city, R. G. Vannoy, of West Jefferson, and R. L. Church, of Elkin, at a delightful banquet at Hotel Wilkes Tuesday evening.

Distributor Coffey was toastmaster and welcomed the large number of dealers and their guests.

The five counties represented at the banquet meeting were Wilkes, Surry, Ashe, Alleghany and Watauga.

The principal speaker was W. A. Bourne, of Atlanta, Ga., a special representative of the Gulf Refining company who told of the efforts that are being made by his company to help service station operators to obtain a large share of the gasoline and oil trade. He stated that the company had gone to considerable expense to gather together the material used in the picture which was to be shown and that the ideas incorporated in it had been tested and were being used to advantage by many Good Gulf dealers throughout the country.

The talking picture, revealing the transformation of a bankrupt service station into a paying enterprise, was the outstanding feature of the program. In addition to showing the modern ideas of merchandising, the picture gave the dealers some valuable information regarding the quality of Good Gulf products.

A delightful dinner was served prior to the showing of the picture.
