REPEAL RALLY IS ADDRESSED BY TWO LEADING SPEAKERS

Simply means that North Carolina believes in tolerance, he continued.

The state manager of the repeal campaign was presented by J. B. Williams, of this city. In the beginning of his address, Mr. Murphy declared that he was not advocating the return of the saloon. In the two prohibitions of 1881 and 1908, Wilkes voted against prohibition and Mr. Murphy said he expected Wilkes to be loyal again.

Crime last year cost North Carolina twenty-three million dollars under national prohibition, compared with a crime cost of three million in 1919 before the law was enacted. Mr. Murphy stated in answering the claim that crime has decreased under prohibition. In 1919 there were 147 murders in this state against 253 in 1932. In 1919 before prohibition there were 7,537 criminal cases tried before a jury in superior court and in 1932 there were 15,181. Continuing Mr. Murphy said that in 1919 there were 760 persons in state prison; last year there were 2,808.

The speaker said the American Legion, American Medical Society, National Bar Association and the American Federation of Labor had all gone on record for repeal.

"Liquor is here and the thing to do is to control it," Mr. Murphy said. He said wise regulatory laws would go further toward bringing about the desired end—temperance—than all the so-called prohibition laws that could be enacted.

Crime Wave Since Prohibition Enforcement Relaxed Cited by Story As Danger Evidence

ministration has resulted in a crime wave that only a vote to retain the Eighteenth Amendment halt.

"I want to urge every voter to study the question carefully in the light of this information before casting a ballot for repeal.

"Under enforcement every dry law did a power of good. Public drunkenness was driven away. Cost of enforcement did not exceed income from fines and forfeitures as has been charged. In 1932 alone, the following figures are taken from Director Woodcock's report: Appropriations for the enforcement of prohibition amounted to $9,623,390.00 and credits from fines, $4,138,000.00, sale of seized autos, $3,218,000.00 and from other seized property, $21,484,000, making a total of income for the government in the year of $28,840,000.00. In other words the government collected three times as much as was paid for enforcement.

"Our asylums have not been filled with those who became insane on account of drink as charged, and the seeming large court dockets that have been so widely discussed are by no means chargeable to the 18th amendment.

"Remember that all those who are voting dry should make a cross mark in the square to the left of the words No Convention and in square to the left of the name of your dry candidate."

NEGRO DIES ADMITTING MURDER OF 19 PERSONNS

A 19-year-old negro, Grady Brooks, admitted killing 19 persons just before he was put to death in the electric chair at the Georgia state prison at Milledgeville, Ga., Friday.

Brooks and George Zuber, another negro, were electrocuted for slaying Lee Lindsey, a convict guard, during an attempt to escape from the Pickens county chain gang last July.

As Brooks was being prepared for the death chamber, Chaplain C. Atkins urged the negro "confess your wrong doing before meeting your Maker."

The chaplain, Warden W. L. Proctor, and a newspaper man heard the condemned man's recital of the murders he said he had done. He said he remembered killing 19 persons during his short life, but could not recall circumstances of eight of the slayings "which were just jobs I had been hired to do for $5 fee."

The eleven murders Brooks could remember something about included slaying of two white men and three negroes he said occurred in Philadelphia in 1927. He said he left the two white men dead in an alley, after getting $124 from one and $85 from another. He couldn't remember their names. He left the bodies of the three negroes on Seventh
