TRAPHILL HIGH SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY NEWS

A concert was held at the high school building Saturday night of last week by the "North Carolina Ramblers." The people seemed to enjoy the music greatly. The proceeds amounted to a little more than $14.

Mr. R. C. Pruitt, Traphill high school boy, spent a day or so last week in Davis hospital, Statesville, for examination of the bones in his knee. His trouble was found not to be serious, and he returned immediately to school.

Mr. W. W. Dickson, traveling salesman of Ashe county, who has been representing the Faucette Grocery company of Bristol, Va., for some twenty years, was in the village Friday.

A large crowd attended the Halloween party at the school building Tuesday night of last week. Besides the music furnished by the North Carolina Ramblers string band in the auditorium, each school room furnished entertainment to the visitors. Among the many features of the occasion, which attracted both interest and curiosity, was a "curio" room, in which fortunes were told, one in which a wild animal (the only one just like it in the world), one in which the marvelous results of a well known doctor and medicine produced marvelous restorative powers; another in which a boxing contest was given by small boys, and in all the other rooms things fully as interesting. Among the managers and performers, it is perhaps, safe to say that "Doctor" Clarence Holbrook was an outstanding performer. The "dignity" used in his whole demeanor throughout the exercises most assurdly deserves honorable mention. The proceeds amounted to a little more than $11. All money taken in at entertainments is being used to better equip the school.

Dr. H. M. Brooks, of this community, made a business trip to Ashe county last week. A forest fire has been burning in the mountains some two miles from the little village of Traphill for the past few days. It is not known how the fire originated or the extent of damage done.

Prof. D. R. Wright conducted prayer meeting at the Baptist church Sunday night. Three things, which may be considered rather arbitrary classifications are being emphasized in Traphill high school this year: 1. Proper conduct on the trucks, on the playgrounds, and in the school room. 2. Closer application of time. 3. More thorough work. So far it seems that some results have been accomplished.

Both the community and the school combined contemplate giving a play sometime between now and Christmas. Details of the matter will be given later.

The property, owned by Dr. H. F. Long, was recently appraised at $90,000. The Duke donation will meet one-third the appraised value. The remaining two-thirds Dr. Long has generously offered as his contribution.

Kennedy Talks On Telephones

Tells Kiwanians About Development of Industry; Parts Are Shown

George Kennedy, manager of the North Wilkesboro office of the South East Public Service company, took charge of his own program at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club Friday and read an interesting paper on the development of the telephone industry. Many interesting facts were brought to the attention of Kiwanians by Mr. Kennedy and the paper revealed a romantic story of progress. Mr. Kennedy also had with him the various intricate parts of the telephone and explained the workings of these.

The luncheon program was opened with the invocation by P. M. Williams. Guests for the day included Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Scott, of Sweetwater, Tenn., and Kiwanian J. D. Holcomb, of Elkin. L. M. Nelson had as his guests, Mr. C. M. Byers and F. B. Miller, of Charlotte.

The club voted to write a letter to Bishop Edwin Mouzon requesting that Rev. J. H. Armbrust be returned to this city for another year.

Methodist Church Notes

Flowers were placed in the church Sunday in loving memory of Thomas Brackenridge Jenkins, born April 29, 1857, translated October 31, 1931. He was the father of Mrs. J. C. Grayson. May his memory bless his descendants.

Jimmie Call Carter, small son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Carter, was dedicated to the Lord by baptism at the home on Sunday afternoon. Mr. J. R. Hix accompanied the pastor for that service.

Dr. Sam Cassel was at the helm of the Sunday school Sunday. He began splendidly his work as Superintendent. Prof. Halfacre taught his class Sunday after an absence of two Sundays. W. C. Moore, new vice president, was in charge of the business affairs of the Men's Class Sunday. The new president, H. V. Wagoner, was out of the city. Mrs. W. D. Halfacre was the Sunday school chorister for the worship periods.

Dr. Cassel announced that on November 19th the Ladies Class will have charge of the Sunday school worship period and on the 26th the Men's Class will do that work.

The Boy Scouts will meet Monday, 7:30 p. m. Scout Master H. F. Bouknight in charge. The fellowship services were held on Sunday night. An evening service was held on account of the Prohibition Rally at the Court House.

No prayer service is planned for this Wednesday night. The pastor must be out on Quarterly Conference work in connection with the charges under his supervision.

Monday and Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. will be days of prayer for Missions. Tuesday will be the regular Auxiliary Day. Let the ladies of the church attend.

The stewards met after the Sunday morning service to transact business in connection with the financial obligations of the year. Let every member and friend make a contribution toward the amount needed by next Sunday. Every one must help to make it a success.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. John Rhodes and his family on account of the death of his sister. Likewise to Mr. C. L. Sockwell because of the passing of a kinsman.

We have several very sick people in our communion. Our most earnest prayers rise for them. When Christians pray for their sick they ask God to spare them, but if not to give grace to sustain the loss. Prayer always makes the petitioner better.

NEIGHBORS QUARREL; ONE SHOT TO DEATH

Rutherfordton, Nov. 2.—John H. Pritchard shot and instantly killed his neighbor, Roy Price, age 21, here at noon today. Pritchard used a 12-gauge shotgun and fired one time, across the hood of an automobile. The charge struck Price's right side, also tore the muscle of his arm.

It is understood that an old feud had existed between the men for some time. Threats had been made. Sheriff Moore stated that Price had no gun, but that he smelled whiskey on his breath. The men quarreled and Price cursed Pritchard before the shooting, it was said.

WILKESBORO P-T. A. WILL MEET THURSDAY

The Prohibition Fight

The fight that has been waged in Wilkes during the past few weeks for the cause of prohibition has been one which we who are in favor of retaining the Eighteenth Amendment are proud. Now that the last days of the battle are here and that the issue is soon to be decided for right or wrong, there is little that need be said. The various men and women who have so gallantly fought for the cause that they conscientiously believe to be right have told the truth as it is revealed in everyday life about us, as they have seen and interpreted it from everyday facts and from those imperishable principles of life that have been our heritage from the past. They have answered, one by one, all of the arguments of the wets, using even their own figures and statements to prove their principle of repeal unsound and unwise.

But in a statement made publicly in the local press by the candidate for repeal delegate, Mr. H. H. Morehouse, one argument has been brought forth that is so illogical and so unreasonable that no member of the dry forces had considered it worthy of attention. In the statement referred to, Mr. Morehouse says, among other things: "To me it (prohibition) is... 3—Unchristian. Christ said 'Be ye temperate in all things.' Temperance and Prohibition are not the same thing. The cause of temperance has been set back most seriously by this so called 'Noble Experiment'..."

It is on this stand, specifically, that I, in all due respect for the candidate for repeal, wish to challenge Mr. Morehouse. Christ did say for us to be temperate in all things, but I am sure He did not put down or even have in mind the definition of temperance implied by Mr. Morehouse. There are many good things in life that may become evils if taken immoderately. A good example of this is eating good food. If we overindulge ourselves we endanger our health and shorten our lives. Things of this nature were what Jesus was speaking of. On the other hand there are certain things in which there is no temperance except total abstinence. It has been proven by experiments and by the best scientific research of the land that alcoholic liquors are poisonous, destructive to tissues, and paralyzing to human intellect, even when taken in minute quantities. Up till the present time no one has shown where or how alcohol taken into the human system is beneficial in any way. May I ask Mr. Morehouse what he would call a temperate use of alcohol or any other poison if it is not total abstinence?

The same Bible from which he quoted the words of Jesus states very emphatically the attitude of God toward all things evil. "Thou shalt not commit murder. Thou shalt not steal." It does not say be moderate or temperate in stealing your neighbors goods or taking his or your own life. These evils and others are absolutely forbidden. May I ask him then, is it reasonable to believe alcohol, which has been proven to be an evil, destroying the individual and endangering society can be indulged in temperately. If so why do we not repeal those laws which prohibit those other evils mentioned and teach people to be temperate in killing and stealing? According to the argument set forth in the above quoted article, prohibition has promoted the use of liquor for intoxicating purposes. If this be true it is logical to believe the prohibition of any crime by law promotes indulgence in it. Therefore we should repeal all such laws and rely on the "temperance" of individuals to protect our lives and property. The whole idea, of course, is absurd and so the whole argument is reduced to absurdity. There is no temperance in drinking except total abstinence and there is no better way to encourage abstinence than by legal prohibition—the official denunciation of drunkenness by law and the punishment of all offenders.

We hear the argument that prohibition interferes with personal liberty. So it does and so does every law that has been made to regulate crime and protect society. In any organized society personal liberty must end at that point where it endangers the lives and liberty of the great mass of people that goes to make up the population. If civilization is to continue to advance it must increasingly restrict personal liberty along certain lines in order to secure a better type of individuals and a more perfect order of civilization. Prohibition was a great step forward toward the attainment of a more perfect civilization. To repeal it now is to begin a moral and social retrogression that may lead to the destruction of social order.

Mr. Morehouse speaks, derisively, of prohibition as a "Noble Experiment." So have thousands of others before him spoken. The wets have appealed to us not to make North Carolina the laughing stock of the nation by retaining prohibition. Lightly do they regard the efforts of God-fearing men and women to make this land better. But my one sincere hope is that we of Wilkes county and North Carolina stand steadfast at our posts even while the whole world looks on in scorn and derision. What nation ever made a forward stride in civilization but that men, short sighted and blind except to selfish interests have scored and blocked on every hand? So it is with prohibition. Every effort has been expended to tear it down and belittle its benefits to humanity. We who stand steadfastly now may rest assured that right cannot always be put down by might and as the successive cycles of civilization pass down through the ages and worthiness of our ideals will inevitably become apparent to all mankind. Let's not be afraid to stand for the right when we go to the polls tomorrow.

Helped By Cardui

Here's the true story of how Cardui helped Mrs. H. E. Dunning, of McComb, Miss., as written by herself:

"I was sick and rather discouraged. I was so weak and thin, I was not able to do my work as I should be done. This made me fret a good deal, and did not help my condition.

"I had pains across my back and lower part of my body. My nights were spent in rolling from one side of the bed to the other, hoping I would soon go to sleep. Then when morning would come, I would be just as tired as when I went to bed. A neighbor, seeing how badly I felt, told me to try Cardui. After I had taken one bottle, I was much better. I kept on taking Cardui, and I was stronger and slept much better at night."
