To Discuss War Scare

TODAY and TOMORROW

WASHINGTON . . . wants to vote

The people of the District of Columbia are again demanding the right of self-government. The President of the United States is the Mayor of Washington and the Congress of the United States its Board of Aldermen. Any changes in the ordinances for the government of the city have to go through the same legislative channels as a bill to raise billions of Federal revenue.

I lived in Washington a good many years. It is the cleanest, best-governed city in America, with the worst traffic regulations. Before the Federal Government took over the management, in 1879, it had its own elected Governor and legislative body, and it was probably the worst-governed city of that time. President Hayes proposed that the Federal Government would pay half the upkeep, being the largest property owner, if the people would let Uncle Sam run its own Capital. They gave up their right to vote, but got in return a low tax rate and a well-managed community.

Some people, however, are never satisfied.

WOLVES . . . and wild dogs

There is a "wolf scare" almost every cold winter in Northern New York and New England. Tales of big timber wolves from Canada crossing the St. Lawrence on the ice frighten country people, who dread to go out after nightfall. This year there have been so many sheep and cattle killed in the northern Adirondacks that the State has put a bounty on wolf scalps. I haven't heard that any bounty money has been collected, either there or in Pennsylvania, where there is another wolf scare.

We staged a wolf hunt in the hills near my farm a few winters ago. The "wolf" turned out to be a huge Geyman "police dog" which had heard the call of the wild and reverted to life in the woods. I have talked with a good many hunters and naturalists since, and they are pretty well agreed that the recurrence of "wolf" raids can nearly always be traced to wild dogs, usually collies or Alsatian shepherds of the type called "police" dogs. Those two breeds are many generations nearer the ancestral wolves from which all dogs are descended, and when they break away from domesticity they know how to take care of themselves in a wild state better than most other breeds.

AUTOMOBILES . . . more comfort

I went to the New York automobile show and examined all the new and, many of them, odd-looking cars. One thing impressed me particularly, and that is the effort of all the makers toward greater comfort in riding. In such matters as independent front wheel suspension, moving the rear seat forward so it is not right over the axle, roomier and more comfortable seats, new kinds of windows to provide ventilation without drafts, larger and softer tires, and many minor details, the emphasis is all on comfort.

Greater speed through "streamlining" is another trend to which all the makers are making and nowhere have I seen such a variety of color, inside and out of automobiles.

Manufacturers and dealers were jubilant. Sales at the show were far in excess of the highest expectations. This is going to be a good year for the automobile industry, but I would suggest to anyone who wants a new car to place his order now, for the factories are already behind the demand. Also, prices are likely to go up before the year is over.

CAREERS . . . often accidental

Few people know when they are very young what their life-work is going to be. Most of them find themselves in careers which they never dreamed of. There is Ted Geisel, for example. He went through two or three universities, intending to become a great author or a college professor, or both. But one day he drew a comic sketch and sent it to a popular magazine. It was published and caught the eye of the advertising manager of a big corporation.

"We want that young man to draw advertising pictures for us," he said, and that is what Ted Geisel has been doing, with great profit to himself and his employers and amusement to the public, for several years. Everybody has seen his pen-name, "Dr. Seuss," on advertisements.

Most people become whatever they are by accident, after all.

RESOURCEFULNESS . . . a girl!

I am impressed by one result of the depression. It has stimulated the resourcefulness of many people, young and old, who had been content to let other people do things for them.
