the auditorium. And, though the occasion was young Democracy's get-together, "old Democrats" by the score were present. Legislators, past, present and prospective, as well as county officials and would-be future governors of the state attended.

Only two congressmen were present. John H. Jerr of the second district and R. L. Doughton of the ninth. John C. Rodman, Jr., of Washington read letters from the other congressmen. Of the east expressing regret they could not be present. Doyle D. Alley of Waynesville introduced Congressman Doughton.

"Since 1932 there have been no old Democrats and no young Republicans," Congressman Doughton said. "All Democrats are young and active while Republicans are old, decrepit and nearly lifeless."

Congressman Doughton asserted that the Democratic party gave the country safe and good government, "which the Republican party does not do," and is the only instrumentality of government which does give safe rule.

Governor Ehringhaus added his praise for Roosevelt and North Carolina congressional delegation and then turned to a recounting of state Democracy.

"I summon you, each and every one, to the comradeship of a real party loyalty that suggests but does not obstruct, that aids but does not obstruct, that plans but does not prescribe, that rallies but does not rail at its fellows in the ranks," the governor asserted.

Ehringhaus declared there was "danger" confronting the Democratic party. "It is insidious; it comes from within and not from without our ranks," he said.

"If you, don't know what I mean, watch and read carefully the Republican campaign keynote speech which is soon to be delivered in a neighboring city, and then see for yourself how much of it is but a rehash of utterances of self-styled Democrats," the governor asserted.

Defending the record of his administration, Ehringhaus said the 11 pledges in the 1932 Democratic platform had been kept, adding "and I challenge a study of the record in proof of this assertion."

The pledges were enumerated as: revaluation of property, removal of the 15 cent ad valorem tax, preservation of the state's credit through a balanced budget, maintenance of public schools and higher institutions of learning in efficiency, promotion of public health and welfare, care of unfortunate and helpless, consolidations of governmental agencies where practicable, reduction of governmental expense, enforcement of prohibition laws, fair dealing between capital and labor, and maintenance of highest possible standard of state institutions.

Governor Ehringhaus recounted the administration's part in obtaining government aid to increase the price of cotton, tobacco and peanuts.

He said it stood behind development of port facilities, the park movement in the west and the fight for lower freight rates.

NOTES FROM 'THE HIRED MAN'S' SCRAP BOOK

By J. B. WILLIAMS

Dear Reader:

Let us make a survey of the Holy fields and call up the sacred memories of the past in the shadows of this Easter Monday eve.

Should we tread the heights of Zion and walk along the shores of the Sea of Galilee and rest in the Vale of Nazareth, we would find that the sun shines as brightly today on the Sea of Galilee as it did when the people from the housetops of a hundred cities looked down upon its glassy waves. Hermon wears its diadem of snows as gloriously as it did when one nameless mountain outshone all others in the glory of the Transfiguration. Carmel looks as calmly on the Great Sea, Olivet broods as piteously over Jerusalem as when Elijah called down fire from heaven and Jesus poured his divine lament over the doomed and blinded city. The rose is as beautiful on the plains of Sharon, the oak as majestic on the slopes of Tabor, as when Solomon reigned on the throne of David and the Son of God lodged with Fisherman in Capernaum.

We rejoice in the brightness which clothes the morning land even in its desolation. But in the sacred charm of night we would grope for awhile in the dark of ancient time, that we may rejoice the more in the dawn of our day. When we call up the spirits of the mighty dead and bring back the days of old we must needs sit in the shadows of evening or go forth to meditate in the sacred stillness of the night. Forms dimly seen impress us more than when set in the broad day. We get our clearest sense of companionship with departed loved ones, saints and heroes "in thoughts from visions of the night when deep sleep falleth upon man."

The Bible is a simple, sincere, affectionate message from the Parent to all His children.

When we can look backward toward our yesterdays and smile, we take two pleasant trips.

Mr. Pessimist: Forget general business conditions and attend to your own business.

Coughlin Raps A. F. L.

Detroit.—Speaking from the shrine of the little flower Father Charles Coughlin during his regular Sunday radio address said:

"We learn a lot about cracking down on industry. Well, how about cracking down on the American Federation of Labor?"

He declared that the federation is the only vocal labor organization in the country and that it has accomplished some good, but he accused it of stupidity, greed, and bigotry. He said that in its thirty years of existence it has collected $900,000,000 in dues at the rate of $80,000,000 a year and that little has come from it.

WILKES STUDENTS AT WAKE FOREST ARE MAKING GOOD

Blueprints are now being prepared for an auditorium to replace Wingate Hall which was burned recently. When this structure is completed Wake Forest will have replaced both of its buildings which were destroyed this year by fire. Last year a new medical building was constructed as a memorial to the late William Amos Johnson, and concrete bleachers were erected on Gore Athletic Field.

During her century of service Wake Forest has turned out approximately 10,000 men. She now enjoys the distinction of being the oldest and largest Baptist institution for men in the United States.

Its freshman class enrollment has increased from 97 men in 1930 to 357 at present. With the increase in number there has been a corresponding increase in caliber of the men which is evidenced by the fact that the average score made by incoming freshmen this year on the North Carolina high school senior examination had risen to twelve points above the state average.

Mrs. Len Mays, of Taylorsville, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Wilkes Hospital ten days ago, was moved to her home in Taylorsville yesterday. Mrs. Mays is the wife of the sheriff of Alexander county.

The only low-priced car with fully-enclosed Knee-Action Wheels and what a difference that makes in performance and dependability

Simple as a Shock Absorber!

Chevrolet's "fully-enclosed" Knee-Action is, in reality, a gigantic shock absorber, built solidly on to Chevrolet's big, heavy frame, with the front wheel solidly anchored to the "shock absorber" arm. The result: When the front wheel comes in contact with a bump or hole, it rises or falls to absorb the shock.

CHEVROLET A smooth, restful, gliding ride... a bounceless back seat... a new feeling of safety and relaxation in high-speed or rough-road travel. All these pleasures are yours with Knee-Action wheels. And if your car has enclosed Knee-Action, like Chevrolet's, you not only get this gliding ride at its best, you also get two other extra advantages. One of these is shock-proof steering. And the other is dependable operation, thoroughly protected against wear and tear. The patent rights on this special kind of Knee-Action are held exclusively by General Motors. That's why no other low-priced car has it. Also, no other has a Fisher body, cable-controlled brakes, a Y-K frame, or a Blue-Flame engine of unsurpassed economy.
