Beverage Days Are Here

When the sun shines bright, and breezes flee for parts unknown; when the heat seems to penetrate one's very bones and it's almost too much effort to even move, the Beverage Days are here.

Some people call them the Dog Days, but we know better, they're really the Beverage Days... because nothing does quite so much to revive wilted spirits and heat-exhausted nerves as a deliciously cool drink from a tall, frosted glass.

That's why on hot afternoons in Montana or Ohio or anywhere else in these United States clever home managers serve their guests and families long drinks of ice-cold lemonade, sparkling fruit punch, or creamy iced chocolate.

For the housewife with an electric refrigerator the problem of cool beverages at all times is easily solved... there is always a generous supply of ice cubes... the ingredients are thoroughly chilled before being blended into delectable beverage... and there is always the crispier ready to supply the sprig of fresh mint that turns plain iced tea into a drink fit for the gods.

The following recipes for beverages that will keep you cool in spite of mounting mercuries and tempers have been developed and tested and are brought to you through the courtesy of Miss Addie Malone, local Kelvinator Home Economist, who will be glad to supply you with other delicious refrigerator recipes.

Foundation Syrup

1 cup sugar
2 cups water
Cook sugar and water for ten minutes, cool, pour into jar and seal. This syrup will dissolve much easier in cold beverages than sugar and will keep in your electric refrigerator indefinitely if placed in a sealed jar.

Sparkling Fruit Punch

3 limes
2 lemons
1 orange
1 cup canned pineapple juice
1 quart gingerale
Combine all fruit juices and chill. Add ice cubes and gingerale just before serving. No sugar is needed because the pineapple juice provides enough sweetening. Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

Cranberry Fizz

1 qt. cranberry juice
1 qt. gingerale
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup lemon juice
Combine fruit juices and thoroughly chill. Add gingerale just before serving. Makes 2 1/2 quarts.

Pineapple Lemonade

1 pt. water
1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
1 qt. gingerale
1 cup sugar
Juice of 2 lemons
Juice 1 orange
Boil sugar and water for ten minutes, add pineapple and fruit juices. Strain and cool, store in electric refrigerator in covered container until ready to serve. At the very last minute add ice cubes and gingerale. Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: Is it too early to plant vegetables in the open?

Answer: Spring plantings in the open depend primarily on the temperature requirements of the different crops. Hardy crops such as cabbage, collards, kale, onions, and spinach may be planted from six to eight weeks before the last killing frost. The half hardy group such as beets, asparagus, turnips, radishes, celery and Irish potatoes will stand light freezes and may be put out from three to four weeks before the average date of the last heavy frost. The crops that are easily killed should not be planted until all danger of frost or freezes is past. Planting dates for the various sections of the State are given in Extension Circular No. 132 and copies will be sent free upon request to the Agricultural Editor, State College.
