Firm To Manufacture Stomach Trouble Remedy

Some husiness men of this city have organized the H. & H. Manufacturing company for the manufacture and sale of R149, a remedy for indigestion and other stomach disorders, the value of which is already well known to many persons in this community.

About forty years ago one of the most prominent physicians other northern points of interest. many calls to prescribe for various forms of stomach disorder, Mrs. Adams were an ensemble of was convinced that there was a great need for a formula that all white accessories. would remedy this prevalent complaint; so with the assistance of his chemist, and with great care, he compounded a remedy that he was sure would meet the requirements.

Reputable physicians do bottle medicines for sale but only prescribe them, so R149 has never before been sold from the drug store counter.

The first prescription written by this physician, for this famtired of lugging it around with ous medicine, was number 149, and its cure was so great that the patients to whom it was prescribed returned time and time again to have "R149" refilled; they told their friends about its merits, until after forty years there are a number of drug stores in Baltimore where one may ask for R149 and have this prescription refilled. Shortly before the death this physician, who compiled victims of an hereditary paralysthis remedy, he gave the formu-Baptist church at Roaring River la to his son (a member of the family since the Civil War. H. & H. Miss Lola Church Weds Quincy Adams

Mande E. Smith, of Greensboro, was solemnized at eleven thirty; are looking forward to an "odu a. Wednesday at the church of the Transfiguration, Little Church Around the Corner," in New York City when Miss Lola Church became the bride of J. Quincy Adams.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Anna Belle Church, of Winston-Salem, who was maid-ofhonor. Her dress was powder blue crepe and the accessories were all white. She carried an arm bouquet of pink radiance

The bride and groom took their place together and spoke their vows before the Rev. Randolph Ray, D. D., who used the impressive ring ceremony.

The bride was lovely in an imported wedding gown of white moss crepe. Her hat was a turban effect with soft drooping brim: all accessories were of white. Her gloves and bag were of soft white hand crochet. She wore a shoulder corsage weetheart roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Adams is the daughter of A. M. Church of North Wilkesboro. She received her education at Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone, and at Asheville Normal, Asheville. She taught in Avery and Wilkes and now has a position with Ralph Duncan's Electrical Supply company. Mrs. Adams is an attractive young woman, actively connected with the social and religious life of the city. She is admired by a host of friends. Mr. Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vickery Adams, of Millers Creek. Following the completion of school work at Millers Creek school Mr. Adams became associated with business interests in North Wilkesboro. He is an employee of the City Post Office Department.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Adams left for a wedhome in this city. For travelling blue triple sheer crepe and used

Among those attending the Misses Anna wedding were: Belle Church and Emily Mayberry, Winston-Salem; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. English, marguerite and Billy English, Winston-Salem, Dr. and Mrs. Howard B. Mason and Mary Jane Mason, Freehold, N. J.; Miss Alice Partridge, Mt. Airy, N. C. and Westfield, N. J.

Refuses To Allow Doctors To Change Sex of Her Sons

St. Clairsville, Ohio, July 10. -A mother's heart was almost broken today when Mrs. Alice Deitrich made the most bitter decision of her life.

She refused to allow doctors to change the sex of her sons, though she knew it might prolong their lives.

Her sons, Glenn, 16, and John, 17, have lain helpless for years, is which has lingered in the

The doctors pointed out to Mrs. Deitrich that the disease seemed to affect only the male offspring of female descendants of the family; that by reversing their sex the malady probably could be halted.

It was a bitter decision make, but the mother made it today. She refused the physicians permission to perform the operations and treatment.

"I appreciate the help of the medical profession regarding my boys." Mrs. Deitrich said, tears strea ing from her eyes. "But now that they are through with their suffering I will let God handle the matter and not doctors who couldn't help them when they were younger and in terrible pain."
