The coaxing fingers moved softly and then slid away. A dry cough sounded behind them. The Gages had returned and must have come in through the back way. Gage looked at them with his blunt stare, grunted a greeting and addressed himself to Barry. Cleo decided that she loathed John Gage.

Shadows were lengthening when Anne heard the sound of a car, coming in from the desert side. That would be dear old Boone. She went over to a window and looked out.

It was not the big grey car. This was black, or had been, and it was much smaller and a little battered, and the driver was not tecting coat and went back into Petry. The door flashed open. Anne stood there.

He was looking deliberately around him.

"No sign of the haughty husband. Are domestic relations still strained, or are you just hiding out until company goes home?"

"I've left. It's over, everything is over, and you should be the last to ask why."

Kennedy made a brief sound like a muted whistle. "Took it hard, didn't he?" He frowned and moved his shoulders irritably. "Keep your chin up, and he'll come back."

Anne shook her head. It was not a subject she could discuss with Jim. "How did you know I thought as she caught sight of was here?"

Kennedy dropped into a chair and settled himself comfortably. "How did I know? Ask me a hard one, Nancy. I knew where you'd started for, and that you had a little ranch somewhere content to wait.
