Wilkes Products Will Compete In N. C. State Fair

Apples, Corn and Other Exhibits From Wilkes Expected To Win Again

GENERAL FARM EXHIBIT

Clifford Moore Will Try For Highest Honor At State Exhibition

When the 1934 North Carolina State Fair gets under way in Raleigh for a week's run Monday Wilkes County is going to be well represented in the exhibit halls with many products of its own.

Outstanding among the exhibits at the state fair will be Clifford Moore's general farm exhibit, featuring hundreds of products of his farm located in the Straw community. He is preparing a most attractive and worthwhile exhibit for the fair next week and will personally supervise its display in the exhibition halls Saturday.

Last year Mr. Moore won the Blue ribbon and the cash that went with it. This year he and those who have seen his products expect him to repeat the performance of last year and prior years.

A number of Wilkes orchardists, with their apples from the nationally known thermal belt of the Brushies, will again try for the highest horticultural honors and cash prizes in competition with apples from all parts of the state which the king of fruits is grown.

Last year Wilkes County's members of the corn club had plenty of competition but little difficulty in winning a blue ribbon for Wilkes county. County Agent has this token of worth on display in his office in the courthouse and the corn club members confidently expect to have the 1935 blue ribbon for the best county exhibit to place alongside the present one at the close of the fair next week. The county exhibit will be made up of several specimens of the now famous Wilkes County White.

Lexington, Oct. 2.—Declaring that he came as an apostle of the new deal "because I honestly and sincerely believe in its philosophy and objectives, in a more equitable distribution of the national income, the relief of unemployment, the feeding of the hungry and clothing of the naked; the easing of pressure of the deflation which was not only wiping out all persons in debt but relentlessly mowing down all property values," Representative Walter Lambeth, of the eighth district, opened his speaking campaign in a rally of his home county folks here tonight.

C. H. Ferguson Is Collecting 1934 Taxes For County

Will Serve as Tax Collector Until First Monday In December

DISCOUNT IN OCTOBER

County Accountant Will Issue Receipts To Those Paying Taxes

C. H. Ferguson, county accountant, was appointed temporary tax collector Monday by the board of county commissioners in October session. The appointment was made to continue until December 1, at which time Sheriff W. B. Somers will have completed sale of land for 1933 taxes and will be able to make settlement. The law stipulates that the sheriff or tax collector must make settlement for the previous year's taxes before taking over the new tax books.

It was impossible this year for the sheriff to make settlement this month, due to the fact that the commissioners ordered postponement of tax sales.

Mr. Ferguson has the tax books for the year 1934 in his office and will serve as tax collector, issuing the regular receipts, until December 1.

He calls attention to the fact that the law allows a discount of one per cent on 1934 taxes if paid in October. Taxpayers are urged to pay and save this discount.

The commissioners did little other business of public interest in the October meeting. Routine matters were disposed of and Ernest Laws was granted a peddler's license, he being a war veteran. The full board, composed of N. B. Smithey, chairman, C. C. Hayes and M. F. Absher, were present for the session.

In cases where a land owner had defaulted in his 1932 taxes along with taxes of previous years foreclosure suits were begun for the full amount.
