U. S. Sets Pace By Fixing Up White House

Uncle Sam, who, with the aid of the National Housing Act, is seeking to induce property owners all over the country to modernize and improve, is setting the example to the rest of Americans by undertaking a alternation operation on the President's home in Washington—the White House.

With the aid of the annual appropriation provided by the Congress for maintenance of the Chief Executive's house, workmen are now engaged in converting a portion of the building to conform to the growing needs of the Presidential family. The undertaking includes an addition, interior alteration, painting and routine maintenance work.

To finance this project, it was not necessary for Uncle Sam to go to a bank to borrow (although his credit probably would have been very good, indeed), but there are countless home owners in the country who are expected to begin improving their properties in the same way—with cash.

If the Federal Housing Administration insures loans up to the maximum of its capacity to do so, $1,000,000,000 in modernization and repairs will take place under its program. But this figure fails to take into consideration the volume of work that will go forward with funds available to property owners without the necessity of borrowing.

A peculiar death occurred recently at Conover, Catawba county, the attending physician attributing the death of a two-year-old child of John Hartsell to suffocation caused by the child holding its breath. It was said that the child had been slapped by another and while crying, its breath was caught and the baby was dead when the doctor arrived.

The weatherman is giving us some rather cool nights just now and we look for frost in the very near future. Farmers who have not harvested all their hay and forage crops should do so at once. Sorghum making is in progress and 'possum hunting will soon be the order of the night.

We have intended giving a character sketch for some time of the life of Mr. Smith Walker who was born, raised, lived and died in this section of the county. Mr. Walker, "Uncle Smith" as he was known died about twenty years ago and a more congenial friendly never lived. We will never forget him riding his sorrel mule to Kendal post office, (new Ferguson), twice a week for his mail. He was always vitally interested in matters of public interest and to read his newspapers closely as well as his Bible. We will always like to think of the genial countenance of this man because he was a good citizen.
